SOME COLONIAL HOPPER FAMILIES.

BY HARRY SHELMIRE HOPPER, A.M.

THE name of Hopper is an old one in America and several distinct lines appear among the records and families of colonial times. The following outline may serve as a guide for more complete research.

In the latter part of the seventeenth century, two or three distinct families of the name of Hopper settled in the vicinity of New York City. The name occurs frequently in the early records of New Jersey and New York but it is not, in every instance, a matter of certainty to which one of the two or three lines it may belong.

One family is of three brothers supposed to have been Quakers who left their native country to avoid religious persecution and settled in Flushing, Long Island, about the year 1675. They were natives of County Durham, England. About the year 1700 they appear to have left Long Island, and with many other families removed to New Jersey and settled in Gloucester County in the vicinity of the town of Woodbury. Here the family dwelt, and increased for several generations. The nearness of the city of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, seems to have had much to do with drawing them away from their New Jersey homes. They frequently married in Philadelphia and removed their business to that city and elsewhere, until now there are none of their descendants to be found in the neighborhood of Woodbury. The names of the three brothers who settled in Long Island, according to family traditions, were John, Robert and Christopher. The names of John and Christopher appear in the Documentary History of New York as residents of Flushing in 1698, but only the descendants of John have been traced in succeeding generations. Possibly the destruction by fire of the records of Flushing in 1789 may have deprived us of much information concerning the family. The descendants of John Hopper are now to be found in many states and widely scattered.

The tradition is that the first generations of the family in America were Quakers. No Friends' Records have, as yet, been found to verify this. Their names, however, do not appear among any Revolutionary or other military records, which fact would indicate that they were men of peace, consistent with their Quaker principles.

Among the New Jersey records also appears the name of Robert Hopper, who owned land in Burlington, N. J., in 1683. He was described as of Scarborough, County of York, England. York adjoins Durham County, which raises the suggestion that this Robert was one of the three brothers. He also owned land in Philadelphia. Family records state that Robert was a seafaring man and, in harmony with this there are records that Robert Hopper was master of a ship named "The Providence" and made voyages to Philadelphia from Scarborough, in 1683. His only daughter and heir died in England about 1701.

In the New Jersey Records, the name of Hopper occurs in Salem County as early as 1725 and as late as 1761. That this family was connected with the preceding family seems very probable but the links have not yet been established.

At the same time that the name of Hopper appears in Flushing, Long Island, it appears in New York city and also on the New Jersey side of the Hudson in Bergen County, etc. These last two lines were from Holland and are represented by many descendants in the old neighborhoods. A well-known landmark of old New York city was the Hopper Farm which was a family homestead in bygone generations. In New Jersey, the Hopper House was a headquarters during the Revolution.

The Holland Hoppers came to America in the first half of the seventeenth century. The early ancestors were Andrie or Andreas and Mathias. One of them settled on Manhattan Island in New York city and later at Bloomingdale and the other in Bergen County, New Jersey. One of the descendants of Mathias was Jasper who was appointed Deputy Secretary of State of New York in 1791.

Riker's History of Harlem gives 1652 as the date when this family arrived in America. One of the descendants gives 1620 as the date according to family tradition.

The family has many branches and numerous descendants now living in New York city and state and in Newark, Hackensack, Jersey City and other places. The name appears frequently in the lists of early New York, and New Jersey marriage lists and in Revolutionary records.

About 1793, there lived a Captain James Hopper who was born in Chester, England, who was the owner in New York of vessels in the merchant service. He and his brothers were sons of William H. Hopper. This appears to have been a distinct family from other New York lines. Descendants now live in Utica, New York.

In the State of Maryland a prominent family of the name of Hopper is represented by many branches and trace their ancestry to colonial times. They have been designated as the Eastern Shore Hoppers, in distinction from the descendants of the Maryland branch of the Long Island and Woodbury family. As early as 1676 the name of Captain William Hopper appears as a member of the Maryland Legislature for Queen Anne's County. He was probably an ancestor of this family. Many of them attained distinction and have occupied positions of prominence and honor.

Hoppers appear to have early settled in Virginia and from there to have spread through western and southern states. There were settlers of the name also in other southern states in the eighteenth century. They came from Ireland or England.

One family, composed of William, John, Hugh and Alexander, came with their parents from northern Ireland to America in 1753 and settled in Newberry District, South Carolina. Some of them subsequently located in Alabama. There are a number of descendants of this family.

About the time of the Revolution a settler named Hopper emigrated from Wales to South Carolina and later moved to Kentucky. Descendants live in Indiana.

One Robert Hopper came from Ireland to America prior to the Revolution and settled in Fayette County, Pennsylvania. The family is represented in the western states. Robert is said to have had a brother who settled on the eastern shore of Maryland. This suggests a possible connection with the Eastern Shore Hoppers.

In or prior to the year 1787 a family appeared in Philadelphia from England. Descendants are now in New York city and in Florida. According to Bible records, their ancestors were John and Sarah Hopper who were married in London in 1773. Some of their children were born in England and some in Philadelphia. The wife, Sarah, came from Herefordshire, England.

In Savage's Genealogical Dictionary is the name of Daniel Hopper of New Haven in 1654 with the suggestion that it was intended for Hooper; and in the Rhode Island Census for 1774 is the family of Henry Hopper of South Kingston. There were six in the family, four males and two females.

These records indicate that there were early families of the name in New England. Some of the traditions of the Durham Hoppers state that one of the brothers located in New England.

Fragmentary records of other families of the name have been found in various places which suggest still other lines that have no connection with any of the above.

MAIRE POINT PAPERS, NO. I.

BY EBEN PUTNAM.

MAIRE OR MARE POINT, BRUNSWICK, CUMBERLAND CO., MAINE.

The region about Brunswick was inhabited by the Pejepscot tribe of Indians, who were probably never very numerous.

At various points along the eastern shore of Maire Point may still be seen the remains of shell heaps created by the Indians upon occasions of their annual visits to the shore. The Quoghog, now practically extinct in those waters, then abounded, and the shells are found mixed with those of the clam and bones of birds and animals. Unlike the shell heaps further east, casual examination of these remains have not revealed many implements of Indian manufacture. In the field to the north of Blockhouse Hill Mr. Hill found a stone ax and elsewhere on his farm found another similar ax. One of these is now preserved at Bowdoin College.

John McKeen, Esq., in a lecture, referred to by Wheeler, stated that it was probable, from the remains and relics found there, that the Pejepscots in the sixteenth century had a village at Maire Point.

It is said, that, up to the opening of King Philip's war, the settlers about Brunswick lived on friendly terms with their Indian neighbors.

DERIVATION OF NAME.

The point of land projecting south from Brunswick, and now lying wholly within the limits of that town, is variously called Mair, Mare and Mere Point.

Williamson, in his history of Maine (vol. 1, p. 564, note), states that John Mare[1] was an early settler on the Point. Wheeler, in the History of Brunswick (p. 83), inclines to the opinion that a man named Marr (or Mare) lived on the Point, and that Mair, the spelling he adopts, is a corruption.

I have found no evidence of occupation of the Point by either John Mare or a man by the name of Marr; indeed the latter supposition does not seem at all probable. The brook bearing the same name, which is between the point and the town, seems to suggest the probability that some person named Mair, lived near the upper end of the point and both point and brook were so called after him. There was also a Maire's brook in Saco.

While I have found no trace in Maine of a John Mare in those early times, I have found a John Mare taxed at Salem, Mass., in 1683 and a Walter Mare of Saco, in 1659, and a Richard Mayre at Black point, in 1661 (York deeds, vol. I, p. 145). It is extremely probable that one or all of these individuals may have lived for a time near the point and bestowed their name upon it.

The correct spelling, if we adopt that of the time, would undoubtedly be Maire, Mayre or Mare; the final e should be always retained. For Mere there is no authority whatsoever; it has merely taken root from the partial adoption by some persons of the theory of a French origin of the name.

In 1620, King James I granted a charter to forty persons, noblemen, knights and gentlemen, constituting them the Council of Plymouth and granting them the country from the fortieth to the forty-eighth parallel of latitude and from the Atlantic to the Western sea.

From the Council of Plymouth emanated the grants to the Plymouth company of New England, the Kennebec (or New Plymouth) Company, the Muscongus (or Waldo) Company, and to the Pemiquid Company, as well as, upon the 16 June, 1632, that to Thomas Purchase and George Way, which lands were finally transferred to the Pejepscot Company. In Wheeler's History of Brunswick will be found a statement of the title of the Pejepscot company compiled from authentic sources.

Thomas Purchase had settled near the Androscoggin prior to 1628, and is styled of "Pagiscott" as early as 1639, when, on the 22 day of the 5th month, he placed his patent under the government of Massachusetts Bay. His claim included Maire Point (?).

The history of Maire Point falls into four periods: the period prior to Purchase's settlement on the coast; the period of English occupation till driven away by the Indian wars of 1675-7; the intermediate period between that date and the purchase and re-settlement of the country by the Pejepscot company and that since the re-settlement. The first period has already been briefly noticed. Materials for the second period are scanty. The third period is expressed in a few words, desertion and desolation, while it is with the last period that these papers have the most to do.

SECOND PERIOD 1628-1677.

Maire Point was occupied at times by (John Maire or Mare?), Thomas Haynes, the Phippeny's, or more correctly Phippens, James Carter, Nicholas White, John Seares, James Lane, Thomas Redding.

Thomas Haynes[1] was a resident of Casco Bay as early as 1658, when he lived at Maquoit (Willis, Me. Hist. Coll. I, 65); but at a date subsequent to 1664, removed to Lynn. In a deposition dated 21 July, 1684, he and wife Joyce, and Sampson Penley state that "having all been antient inhabitants in Casco Bay, that twenty years last past the Indians had sold to Francis Smale, an Indian trader, the Ysland of Sebascoe Diggin, etc." York Deeds, IV, 19. On the 2 Aug., 1678, Thomas, Hayns, husbandman, and wife Joyce, once of Maquoyt, now of Lynn, sell to Edward Cricke of Boston, tailor, for £17-11-2, 200 acres of upland and five acres of marsh, or more commonly called "beareberry Marsh," lying in the head of Casco Bay in the town of Westgostuggoe at Maycoyt, being bounded by Alexander Thawits land on the northwest fronting by the bay or into the bay southeast and the "bareberry" marsh butting upon the bay northwest, and also the dwelling house on the premises. Savage confounds him with Thomas of Amesbury, who died in 1683, leaving a widow Martha.

[1] It is doubtful if Haynes ever lived on Maire Point but rather at Maquoit.

William Haynes of Falmouth, a schoolmaster, may have been a son. He married, prior to 1672, Margery, widow of Nicholas White and removed to Lynn at the time of the Indian troubles, thence to Portsmouth about 1686, and finally to Newbury, where he died in 1702. He had a son Francis.

This William Haynes was a witness to a date dated 24 Dec., 1669, at Westquatogoe, made by Richard Bray of that place. James Lane was also a witness. York Deeds, III, 53.

In 1667 Nicholas White of Westgostoggoe sold to John Wallis lands at Papoding in Casco Bay, and receipts for payments upon the purchase are given after and in 1672 by William Haynes and in 1673 by Haynes and his wife Margery. York Deeds, II 181.

In Oct., 1683, he witnessed the deed of John Blany of Lynn, and Elizabeth his wife, administratrix and relict of Thomas Purchase, of the lands at Pejepscot to Richard Wharton. York Deeds, IV, 16; the following year he appears at or near Kittery. John White was also a witness to the Blany deed.

George Phippen or Phippeny is said by Wheeler, who also mentions Andrew Phippeny as a resident, to have lived on Maire Point, prior to 1672. The testimony of George and Elizabeth Phippen was given 20 Feb., 1702-3, that Nicholas White was a resident of Maire Point in 1660 till driven away by the Indians, and probably places them as residents of that date. George Phippen of Maire Point and Joseph Phippen of Falmouth were sons of David and Sarah Phippen, who migrated from Melcomb, in Cornwall, to Hingham Mass., in 1635, thence to Boston in 1641, where he died in 1650. His widow married George Hull of Fairfield, Conn. David was the son of Robert Phippen, who married 18 Sept., 1580, Cecelie, daughter of Thomas Jordan of Dorset. Robert was of Melcomb and was the son of John Phippen of Weymouth in Dorset, who was the son of Henry Fitzpen of St. Mary Overy in Devon, said to be a descendant of John Pen, sheriff of London, in 1410, and who is probably the same person who represented Weymouth in Parliament in 1413, 1420 and 1422. Joseph and George, sons of David, therefore belonged to an ancient and honorable family and used and were entitled to coat armor, which may be described as follows: Argent, two bars sable, in chief, three escallops of the second, Crest, a griffin's head (see p. 9, vol. 4, Heraldic Journal). Joseph[1] married Dorcas Wood and removed to Falmouth where he bought 100 acres of land. He died at Salem, in 1687; of his sons, Joseph lived at Falmouth till 1676, when he removed to Salem, and David, also of Falmouth, who was killed by the Indians at that place about Aug. 10, 1703.

George Phippen lived in Boston, Casco Bay and Hull. His son James left descendants. His daughters were Elizabeth, Mary, Ruth and another. He had also another son who may be the Andrew mentioned by Wheeler, whom I otherwise cannot place.

THE PARISH REGISTER OF STEWKLEY, CO. BUCKS, ENGLAND.

CONTRIBUTED BY REV. R. BRUCE DICKSON, M.A., VICAR OF STEWKLEY.

Copied from the original by Mr. A. F. Heintz, under the direction and at the cost of Mr. Dickson.

The Stewkley Register (which is here printed) covers the following period:

Baptisms, 1545–1653.
Burials, 1599–1653.
Marriages, 1599–1646.

[Stewkley is about four miles west of Leighton Buzzard in Bedfordshire. At the time of the Doomesday survey there were three manors there. In the sixteenth century the most opulent family in that immediate vicinity were the Duncombes, who perhaps came into possession of Stewkley as early as, if not earlier than, 1545.

Thomas Duncombe was of Wingrave and may be he who died 3 Sept., 1548.

He left sons Thomas of Whitchurch; Richard of Aylesbury, who had Stewkley; Henry and Bennett. Richard Duncombe, son of Thomas, left an heir John, who held Stewkley in 1558. Soon after it passed from this family.

John Fox, who was appointed vicar at Stewkley in 1545, has been identified by some historians as John Fox the martyrologist, said to have been born in 1517.

The Church is of the eleventh century and was once occupied by Cromwell's troopers during the civil war. No memorials prior to 1660 remain in the church. Many names common to New England occur on this register. It may be remarked that Nicholas Putnam, formerly of Wingrave, and father of John Putnam of Salem, Mass., was, at the time of his death, a resident of this parish.—EDITOR.]

QUERIES.

No. 1. MARTIN. Can any one give me any information concerning George Martyn, one of the early settlers of Salisbury? He was there in 1649, and married for his second wife Susanna Worth, who afterwards was hung as a witch.

2. WHIPPLE. Can any one give me the parentage of Susanna Whipple, of Ipswich, who married David Batcheller of Wenham, in 1709?

3. SCOTCH-IRISH. Where can I obtain any account of the early Scotch-Irish emigration early in 1680, I think it was? I have a record of one William Straw in Salisbury, Mass., 1686, who I think must have been a Scotch-Irish emigrant. I can find no earlier record of the name.

4. Charles Stewart. Charles Stewart was commissioned as ensign in Capt. Wm. Grimes' company of the 15th Va. regiment of Foot, commanded by Lt. Col. James Innes, Revolutionary war. His name first appears on the roll of that organization for July, 1, 1777, with remark "commissioned April, 1777." He is reported on the roll for August, 1777, as "looking after the sick in Philadelphia;" on the roll for Sept. and Oct., 1777, without remark, and on the roll for Nov., 1777, as "turned over to Capt. Gregory's Co., Dec. 1, 1777." On the roll for Dec., 1777, he is reported with rank as 2d Lieut., and on rolls for Jan., Feb., March and April, 1778, his name is borne without remark.

His name next appears on the roll for Dec., 1778, of the field and staff of the 11th Va. regiment, commanded by Col. Buford, with remarks, "Appointed June 24, 1777, rank 2d Lieut. 5th Company," and on the company muster rolls of Capt. David Mason's Co. of the 11th Va. regiment in Gen'l Woodford's Brigade, commanded by Col. Buford from Dec. 1778, to Nov., 1779, without additional information. The roll for Nov., 1777, shows the designation of the organization to be the 5th and 11th Virginia regiment of Foot, commanded by Col. William Russell.

Charles Stewart was a resident of Norfolk county, Virginia, near the Dismal Swamp. I want to inquire if any of your readers can give me any further information about him. He died in 1804.

William H. Stewart,
Portsmouth, Virginia.

5. Dix. In 1637 the town of Ipswich granted the widow Dix six acres of land. Who was the widow Dix, when did she die, and was she mother of Ralph Dix? H. Y.

6. Reynolds. Who can give me any data about the Reynolds family prior to the coming of Robert and his brother to Boston in 1632?

From what place in England did they come? A.

7. Clark. Was Deacon Joseph Clark, after graduation at Yale, 17—, a druggist of Middletown, Conn., a relative of Nathaniel Clark, of Newbury (whose daughter Elizabeth married D. Robert Hale, of Beverly), or of Deborah Clarke, wife of Dr. Thomas Deane (whose daughter Jane, married, 1738, Major John Gilman, of Exeter, N. H.)? Where can facts concerning these Clarks be found? Also, who were the parents and ancestors of Sarah Clark, who after the death of her first husband named Marvin, married, in 1660, Joseph Sill, Sr., of Cambridge or Lyme?

8. Coleman and Kirby. Who were the ancestors of Ruth Kirby Coleman, who married Isaac Hubbard (1749–1848), of Middletown, Conn., the son of Nehemiah Hubbard, Sen., and Sarah Sill?

9. Lowe. Who were the ancestors, and who was the wife of Daniel Lowe, of Ipswich, about 1700?

11. Crofts and White. Who were the parents and ancestors of Frances White, the mother, and Sarah Crofts, the wife of Rev. Jonathan Winchester, of Brookline, Mass., the first minister of Ashburnham (born 1717; died 1767; Harvard 1734).

12. Johnson and Earle. Who were the parents and ancestors of Sarah Johnson (died 1776), the wife, and Mary Earle (1663–1732), the mother of Nathaniel Hubbard, Jr., of Middletown, Ct.? He was born in 1690; died in 1738, and married April 12, 1716.

13. Collins and Whiting. Who were the parents and ancestors of Rev. Nathaniel Collins and Mary Whiting, whose daughter Martha married Thomas Hurlburt, Sen., of Middletown, Ct., in 1705?

14. Phelps—Davis. Who were the parents and ancestors of Lois Phelps Davis, who married Henry Winchester (1753–1834), of Ashburnham, Mass.?

ANSWERS.

Reneau. In 1821 Lewis Reneau represented Sevier Co., Tenn., in the Tennessee House of Representatives; was the only member who refused to vote for a resolution commending Andrew Jackson to the country for President, giving his reasons on the Journal (1) none of the legislature's business; (2) not binding on anybody; (3) too far ahead.

This is undoubtedly the same stock as Pierre Renaud, who came to Manikin, Tenn., Sept., 1700. MAIRE POINT PAPERS, NO. I.

BY EBEN PUTNAM.

MAIRE OR MARE POINT, BRUNSWICK, CUMBERLAND CO., MAINE.

George Phippen owned and lived upon what is now the Skolfield brothers' farms on Maire Point. The depression of the cellar may still be seen on the eastern side close to the shore and to a natural landing place. This location was that chosen by John Orr when he settled on the point. Phippen lived there till driven away by the Indians and tradition states that into his well was thrown the family plate. Years afterwards the story of his settlement and flight was told by Mr. Skolfield in the family circle and the story of the silver repeated. A woman living in the family as a domestic determined to possess the silver. Providing herself with implements she began the tedious task of digging out the old well filled with stones and refuse. Long before she made any considerable progress she was so badly poisoned by the ivy which abounded that her life was nearly despaired of. It is needless to state she lost all interest in either the silver, or "mercury" in or about the old well.

About 1714, it is supposed that one of the Pejepscot proprietors made out a list entitled "An Acc't of the Eastern Parts and of the several settlements that have ever been made on the lands formerly purchased by Mr. Wharton and now bought by eight of us." In this document is recorded "but one settlement at Mair Point by John Phippany, but one settlement Maquoit by Robert Haines." This does not necessarily mean that Phippen and Haines then, in 1714, had settlements at those points. Both the christian names are wrongly given and White's name is entirely omitted.

Other discrepancies occur in the list; but the evidence is positive that George Phippen lived for many years on the southeastern side of the point. See Eastern Claims.

James Carter is said by Wheeler, to have been an inhabitant of Maire Point.

[Richard Carter, who died previous to 1682, but was probably living at Westgustoggoe in 1672, on land adjoining John Mayne, left a widow Agnes, who in 1682 was aged about 82 and was then Agnes Maddiver, second wife of Michael of Falmouth, an early settler, whom she married prior to 1670, when Mr. Maddiver died (Trelawny Papers p. 324 note). He also left a son Richard, aged about 37 in 1682. Richard Carter the younger, in various depositions gives his birth as about 1644-5; and testifies regarding sale of lands by his father in 1652 to Richard Bray. Presumably this Richard is identical with the Richard of York in 1680 and of Kittery in 1695. See York Deeds IV, 11, 37; III, 115, etc. Joan Carter, widow, of Great Island (Portsmouth) in 1691, deeds land to son John Dimond, which was formerly her husband's William Desmonds. York Deeds V, 67. But she was wife of Edward Carter in 1686. See N. H. Province Rec. 1, 578. Richard Carter of Exeter 1643-5 of Dover 1665. (See do. 270-9.) Edward of Great Island in 1707. (do. Vol. II.)]

Nicholas White was one of Winter's men at Casco in 1639 and had formerly been apprenticed to John Sparke from whom he went into Trelawny's service. He was fishing in 1638, and in 1640 left Winter. He at one time owned a quarter part of House Island, which he sold in Oct., 1661, the deed being witnessed by John Sears. Wheeler states that he lived on White's Island, which was named from him. In Feb., 1714, Samuel White of Boston in the right of his grandfather, Nicholas White, late of Casco, claimed land "at a place called Mare Point, toward ye upper half of ye said point toward Maquoit, bounded betwixt a tract of land belonging to John Sears on ye N. E. side and a tract of land belonging to Henry Webb on ye southwest fronting one outside against Merriconeage Neck ranging across ye Neck of land called Mare Point over to ye Bay running up to Maquoit against Maquoit . . . and also a piece of Meadow at a place called Sears Creek and another piece at ye head of ye Bay betwixt Mare Point and Merriconeage Neck and which parcell of land meadow said Nicholas White peaceably enjoyed and lived upon forty years ago and until drove off by the enemy as appears by a paper under ye hand of George Phippens and Elizabeth Phippens. Dated 20 Feb., 1702-3, and witnessed by Thomas Comes and Silvanus Davis." He further claimed Pulpit Island alias New Damaris Cove and land at Merriconeage Point as per evidences sworn to by Thomas Mitchell, 11 Aug., 1701, and Robert Nichols, 26 July, 1701. Book of Eastern Claims.

Nicholas White submitted to the Massachusetts Bay government in 1658, and presumably at that time and until 1677 he was a resident of Maire Point. But in 1673 John Sears in selling land to James Land bounds his land on Mare Point neck with land formerly in possession of Nicholas Whytt. On the 25 Nov., 1667, Nicholas White, then of Westgostoggoe, planter, sold to John Wallis of Casco, a plantation at Papoding. To this deed Daniel White gave his consent. Before Wallis had finished his payments on this purchase White had died and William Haynes, who married the widow Margery, gave receipts in 1672 (York Deeds II, 181). Joel Maddiver, son of Michael mentioned above, and his wife Rebecca, were witnesses.

Samuel White's claim was allowed, at least in part, as in 1730 he owned 30 acres on the Point, between Wentworth's and Minot's property. This land was sold 13 Dec., 1744, by Benjamin Edwards and his wife Elizabeth, formerly Elizabeth White, administratrix on the estate of her late husband, Samuel White, late of Boston, to John Minot of Boston, the tract being described as that which was granted to Samuel White by the Proprietors of the Pejepscot Company (York Deeds 27, 114). The story of White's fifty acres is shown by two deeds on record at Alfred, one by Samuel White to the proprietors in settlement of a dispute of fifty acres on Maire Point, the other to White from the proprietors, of fifty acres on Maire Point located as follows "to lie on the Easterly side of a run of water which goes across Mair Point neck." These deeds are dated 12 May, 1721 (Book 23, 75). White's fifty acres is now comprised in the farm of Alexander Minot, Esq.

John Sears, born 1613, was of Charlestown in 1639 and of Woburn in 1640. He was admitted freeman 2 June, 1641. His first wife was Susanna, who died at Woburn, 29 Aug., 1677. He married 20 Nov., 1677, Esther Mason, who died 14 Aug., 1680, and that same year he married 2 Nov., 1680, Ann, widow of Jacob Farrar He is said to have no children. Early in 1654 he engaged in the Eastern settlement and in 1655 sold Long Island in Casco Bay (Savage). In 1667 and 1669, he was selectman at Woburn. He died 5 Oct., 1697. John Seares of the Province of Maine, planter, for £20, sold under date of 15 May, 1673, to Mr. James Lane of Westgostuggoe, an island called Reddings, lying to the eastward of Mayre Point neck together with land on Mare Point neck bounded with the land formerly in possession of Nicholas Whytt: commonly known by the name of Sandy Point, and thence running to ye falls and so over to Maquoit Bay, together with all marsh formerly in the right and possession of Thomas Redding, deceased, about 60 acres more or less. Witnessed by Ezekiell Carveath and John Lane (York Deeds II, 135).

John Seares gave possession unto Mr. James Lane of the island in lieu of the whole land and marsh mentioned in above deed, 18 May, 1673, Ezekiell Carveath, Richard Short witnesses. He was a lieutenant in the Narragansett war of 1675-6 (Sears Gen. by May).

SOME DESCENDANTS OF GEORGE ABBOTT OF ROWLEY.

BY EBEN PUTNAM.

George Abbott was of Rowley as early as 1643, when he had a two-acre house lot in the first division. Blodgett says there is no further mention of him on Rowley Records. He died in 1647. He brought with him four sons.

Thomas, who appears on the court records in 1650, and that year was paid a bounty for killing two wolves and five foxes. He married 13–5–1655, Dorothy, daughter of Richard Swan. He died sine prole, and was buried 7 Sept., 1659, leaving a will dated 5–7–1659 and proved 27–7–1659, in which he mentions father Richard Swan, brothers George, Nehemiah, and Thomas Abbott. Unto the widow Brocklebanke* and her sons fifty shillings. Wife Dorothy, executrix. Inventory £234–15. The widow Dorothy married, second, Edward Chapman, and third, in Newbury, 13 Nov., 1678, Archelaus Woodman,† and died in Rowley 21 Oct., 1710.

George, removed to Andover prior to 1659.

Nehemiah, of Rowley, but of Ipswich in 1659.

Thomas, of Concord in 1659. (Perhaps he of Andover, who married 15 Dec., 1664, Sarah Stewart and had Joseph, born 16 March, 1666, died 1667; Thomas, born 1668; Sarah, born 8 Jan., 1671, married 26 Nov., 1691, Joseph Chandler; Joseph, born 16 Aug., 1674; Dorothy, born 2 Jan., 1676, died young; Nathaniel, born 9 Jan., 1678; John, born Oct., 1681; Dorothy, married Breviter Gray; Mary, born 22 July, 1686; Eben'r, born 23 Nov., 1690. He was a captain and died 6 May, 1695. His widow died Feb., 1716. Descendants are found in New Hampshire.)

*The Brocklebankes were from Yorkshire, so was George Abbott, Sr., of Andover. See sketch of Brocklebanke family to appear later.

†See sketch of Woodman family.

GEORGE, of Andover, a tailor, called "junior" on Andover records. He settled near George Abbott, Sr., only Sutton's farm dividing them. In 1657 he testified that he was about twenty-six years of age, born therefore about 1631. He married, at Andover, 26 April, 1658, Sarah Farnum. His death occurred 22 March, 1688–9, and on the Essex Probate records will be found an agreement between the heirs dividing his estate. After reciting the fact that at the time of his death "the government of the country was in an unsettled posture," the widow and children who are of age, acknowledge their adherence to the division outlined below. The widow received £25 and one end of the house. George, eldest son, took 16 acres of land formerly given him by his father, and upon which he had erected a house in his father's lifetime, together with certain meadow and stock and household furniture.

John, the second son, had the homestead and orchard. Nehemiah, the third son, had residue of upland and meadow, stock and furniture, and he and John agreed to pay shares of the other children, Sarah, Mary, Hannah, and Lydia, the latter of whom chose Nehemiah as her guardian. Each to have £18. They were also to pay the youngest children, Samuel and Mehitable, whatever the court should order, which was £70 and £18, respectively. Henry Ingalls who had married the widow gave his consent to this deed as did also John Falkner, husband of Sarah, and Stephen Barker, husband of Mary.

Dated at Haverhill, 21 March, 1689–90, and witnessed by Dudley Bradstreet and John Ingalls.

Signed by Nehemiah Abbot, Sarah Falkner, Mary Barker, Hannah Abbot, Lydia Abbot, Henry Ingalls, Sarah Ingalls, George Abbot, John Falkner, John Abbot, Steven Barker. (Essex Probate, II, 208.)

George Abbott was held in respect by the people of Andover. He had to do with the repairing of the meeting house and had charge of it.

"At a meeting of the Selectmen of Andover, y^e^ 16 of y^e^ 1 month, $167\frac{9}{80}$, we have agreed with George Abbot, drummer, to ring the bell at nine of the clock at night, as also to give notice by y^e^ towling of the bell every night of y^e^ day of the month, and his time of ringing to begin the time of ye instant March, which he is to doe, and to be payd for his labour thirty shillings by the yeare."

It was the custom to beat the drum for the signal for service and daily labor, and none but a sober and industrious man could be chosen for such duties.

It is a fair inference that his near neighbor George Abbott, Sr., was a kinsman; however, nothing positive is known about this. He is supposed to have gone to Andover in 1655.

Children, born in Andover:

George, born 28 Jan., 1658–9; married, 1689, Elizb. Ballard; married, second, Hannah Eastey.

Sarah, born 6 Sept., 1660, married 19 Oct., 1682, John Falkner.

John, born 26 Aug., 1662; of Sudbury; died 24 March, 1718, in Watertown.

Mary, born 29 March, 1664; married 13 May, 1687, Stephen Barker.

Nehemiah, born 20 July, 1667.

Hannah, born 20 Sept., 1668; married 16 April, 1695, James Ingalls.

Mehitable, born 17 Feb., 1670–1; died young.

Lydia, born 29 Sept., 1675; married 28 Nov., 1695, Henry Chandler.

Samuel, born 30 May, 1678; settled in Sudbury.

Mehitable, born 4 April, 1680.

Sarah Abbott, the mother of the above children, married, 1 Aug., 1689, Henry Ingalls, and died 1728, aged 90 years; born therefore about 1638.

NEHEMIAH,* of Ipswich, son of George, died in Ipswich, 1706. He was a deacon in the church there. Administration on his estate was granted to his son Nehemiah, 20 Jan., 1706–7. Inventory to £181–02, by John How of Topsfield and Abraham How of Ipswich. Heirs, widow Mary, and only child, Nehemiah.

Children:

Nehemiah, died 1736; of Ipswich; married 21 Jan., 1689–90, Remember Fisk, who died 12 July, 1703. Children, Dorothy, bapt. Topsfield, 26 Apr., 1691. Mary, bapt. Topsfield, 5 Nov., 1693. Elizabeth, bapt. Topsfield, 22 Dec., 1694. John, born 9 Apr., 1691; died Nov., 1764. Nehemiah, born 19 Oct., 1692. Sarah married, 1727, Joshua Jackson. Mehitable, born 7 Oct., 1700. In settlement of estate he is variously styled "weaver," and "gentleman." Left lands in Rowley and Ipswich.

Mary, born 19 Nov., 1660.

Mehitable, born 1 Nov., 1665.

NEHEMIAH, of Andover, deacon, son of George and Sarah, born in Andover 20 July, 1667; died there 8 Oct., 1750; married at Andover, 9 April, 1691, Abigail, daughter of John and Mary (Osgood) Lovejoy, born 20 Aug., 1669.

He was a deacon of the South church at Andover, of which church he was one of the founders in 1709. He was chosen deacon 22 Sept., 1720, and held that office till his death; he represented Andover in the general court in 1717.

On the 15th Oct., 1747, he gave his son Zebadiah, the homestead and all other lands, etc., he then possessed in Andover, in consideration of a bond for £1000. The homestead is described as being 160 acres, bounded on the east by Shawshin river, with land of Benjamin Abbot, Thomas Abbot, and John Dun, on the north, by John Foster and another John, and Zebadiah Johnson, on the west, on the south by Timothy Ballard. His common lands in Merrimack woods, near and on Wood Hill and all that lay near Tewkesbury line were also included. The deed was recorded 13 Feb., 1752 (vol. 96, fo. 212, Essex Deeds). No wife is mentioned.

Says the historian of Andover, "He was highly esteemed for his Christian virtues."

Children, born in Andover:

Nehemiah, born 19 Jan., 1691–2; settled in Lexington.

Abial, born 10 Aug., 1693; settled in Windsor, Conn.

Zebadiah, born 6 April, 1695; of Andover.

John, born 31 Oct., 1697 settled in Tolland, Conn.

Abigail, born 30 Sept., 1699; married Benj. Abbot.

Mary, born 24 March, 1701; married James Bridges.

Joseph, died young.

Of the above children there are many illustrious descendants. Dr. Nehemiah, son of the eldest son, was settled at Chelmsford and in Andover. He died at the age of 77, in 1808, trustee and treasurer of Phillips Academy. Dr. Nehemiah's sister was Abigail and was married to Amos Lawrence of Groton, and from this union come the Abbot Lawrences. Hon. Amos Abbot, M. C., was also a descendant.

Zebadiah, of Andover, yeoman, son of Deacon Nehemiah (George, George), was born in Andover, 6 April, 1695, and died there in 1767. The only one of the boys to remain in Andover, he received from his father a deed of the homestead.

His will, on file, recorded in Essex Probate, vol. 215, fo. 344, is dated 21 April, 1767; proved the 5th October following. Having provided for his wife and charged his eldest son with her support, he divides his property between his children Nehemiah (who had the homestead), Zebadiah, daughters Sarah Ballard and Chloe Abbott (she had married Jeremiah Abbott). To his grandson, Abraham Mooars, he gives £41–5–1 when twenty-one, and this together with what his daughter Lydia Mooars, deceased, had had at and since her marriage is declared to be the whole portion of Isaac and Abraham Mooars. His books were to be divided between Nehemiah and Zebadiah, the former of whom was executor. He left a good estate.

He married Anne, daughter of William and Sarah (Frye)

Lovejoy of Andover, born Sept., 1711, a grand niece of his mother.

Children, born in Andover:

Anna, born Oct., 1729; died 14 Apr., 1738.

Nehemiah, born 4 Sept., 1731; died 13 Oct., 1808.

Sarah, b. 14 Aug., 1733; married 1755, Timothy Ballard.

Zebadiah, born 8 Oct., 1739; died 24 Nov., 1793.

SOME DESCENDANTS OF THOMAS GRIDLEY OF HARTFORD, CONNECTICUT.

BY EDWIN A. JONES.

Thomas Gridley, a cousin of Richard Gridley, of Boston, Mass., who were the first of the name in America, is said to have come from Essex County, England, in 1631–2. Settled in Hartford, Conn., and in 1639 was a proprietor "by courtesie of ye towne;" his home lot was on the south side of the road from George Steele's to the South Meadow; was of Windsor Sept. 5, 1639; had been one of the thirty men sent from Windsor to the "Pequot fight" under Capt. Mason, and his heirs received a grant of fifty acres Oct. 12, 1671. He married 29 Sept., 1644, in Hartford, Mary Semmor (Seymour), and she may have been sister of Richard Seymour. He appears to have been interested in the settlement of Nonotuck (Northampton), as he was present at a meeting of the proprietors held in Springfield, Oct. 3, 1653; but he died in Hartford. Inventory was taken June 12, 1655, and he probably died the same year. Amount £282, 12s. 6d. He left a widow and two sons both born in Hartford: Samuel, 25

*Town records. Another authority 8 Aug.

Nov., 1647, and Thomas in 1650, both of whom had numerous descendants. Thomas married Elizabeth Clark and died in 1742 aged ninety-two. Thomas Sr's widow removed to Farmington, Conn., with her two sons and they became two of the original proprietors of that place. She married Deacon John Langdon of that town.

Samuel Gridley[2] (Thomas[1]), born 25 Nov., 1647, at Hartford; died 1712 at Farmington, Conn.; married, first (before Dec. 2, 1680, but the exact date cannot be found), Esther, daughter of Thomas Thompson of Farmington and Ann Welles his wife, daughter of Gov. Thomas Welles. She was born posthumous; baptized June 17, 1655. After her death he married, second, Dec. 1, 1698, Mary Humphreys, of Simsbury. She outlived him, and married, second, John Wadsworth in 1714. Samuel was by trade a blacksmith and a man of considerable note. He was sometimes mentioned as "the trader." His name occurs frequently in the Colonial Records.

Issue, by first wife:

Samuel, married June 8, 1710, Ruth Lewis.

Thomas, married Oct. 31, 1704, Hannah Wilcoxon.

John, baptized Jan. 29, 1681–2; married May 3, 1716, Dorothy Benton, of Hartford, Conn.

Daniel, born Dec. 11, 1711; died 1781; married Feb. 14, 1732–3, Mary Woodruff, born Oct. 12, 1712.

HEZEKIAH GRIDLEY[3] (Samuel,[2] Thomas[1]), born August, 1701, in Farmington; married May 5, 1731, Sarah, daughter of Samuel Newell and Mary Hart, his wife, born June 17, 1707, in Farmington, Conn., and died March 27, 1796, aged eighty-nine. They settled in Southington, and then removed to Bristol, where he died July 21, 1776, aged seventy-four. He was the first Justice of the Peace in Farmington, and the Colonial Records say he was appointed 1757, 1758, 1759 and 1760. A committee was appointed to try suspected Tories, and he was a member of that committee, 1775.

Issue:

Hezekiah, born Jan. 30, 1731–2; died Feb. 18, 1816, at Clinton, Oneida Co., N. Y.; married Dec. 12, 1754, Abigail Peck, born May 20, 1736 and died April 21, 1826, at Clinton, N. Y. He was a Captain in the Revolution.

11. Alice Craft, daughter of Samuel and granddaughter of Lieut. Griffin Craft was baptized in Roxbury 19 Feb., 1681, "owned the Covenant" 1 March, 1702. She married (1) Robert Loverain at Roxbury, 3 Jany., 1704–5; (2) Ephraim Lyon, 4 July, 1723; (3) John Greenwood, 24 July, 1729, of Newton; (4) James Shed of Roxbury 28 Sept., 1743 in Newton; (5) John* Winchester of Brookline, 1750 (probably), who died in 1751.

Alice Winchester survived her fifth husband thirty-two years, and died in Holliston, Mass., in 1783 in her 102d year, at the house of her grandson Joseph Lovering.

Samuel Craft, brother of Alice the last mentioned, who died in Brookline in 1771 aged 70, had a daughter Sarah Winchester in Ashburnham.

Sarah Craft (Samuel, Samuel Griffin) born in Brookline about 1728; married in Brookline 5 May, 1748, Rev. Jonathan Winchester, son of Henry and Frances (White) Winchester of Brookline. He was born there 21 April, 1717, was graduated from Harvard College 1737, and for several years was a school teacher in Brookline, where they dwelt for about ten years after their marriage. In Nov., 1759, he received a call to become the minister of the church at Ashburnham, Mass., which he accepted and was ordained April 23, 1760, being the first pastor of the society.

His death occurred Nov. 26, 1767, at the age of 50 years, after a ministry of but seven years.

"His widow," a lady of education and talent "continued to reside in Ashburnham, where she died 27 July, 1794. By * John Winchester was Capt. John Winchester, the son of John Winchester and Joanna (Stevens) Winchester, the grandson of John and Hannah (Sealls) Winchester. F. W. H.)

the will of her father dated 2 Feb., 1770, she received all his property in Ashburnham, inventoried at £226, 13s. 4d. (See Crafts Genealogy.)

Mr. Edward Augustus Bowen, of Brooklyn, N. Y., a lineal descendant of Capt. John Winchester and Sarah White, states that Capt. John Winchester married, first, Sarah, daughter of Lieut. John and Elizabeth (Bowles) White, and sister of John White, Treasurer of Harvard College. (See Sibley's Harvard Graduates for John White.)

Sarah (White) Winchester born 1670; died Jan. 31, 1715.

From John White's (Treasurer of Harvard College) estate, her children received £440, 2s. 6d, which was paid to their father as guardian.

I should suppose that the Frances White, mentioned in query No. 11 must belong to the same family, for the gentleman she married was Henry Winchester, brother of Capt. John Winchester, both of them sons of John Winchester and Joanna (Stevens) Winchester. I hope if any light is thrown on the Frances White, wife of Henry Winchester, and more facts are found about her and she is traced accurately, you will kindly send such facts to me, as I am a lineal descendant of the second John Winchester, father of Henry who married Frances White.

Mrs. Justus Street Hotchkiss née Fanny Winchester.

13. William Whiting, of Hartford, 1632; Magistrate, 1641; Treasurer. Had title of Major 1647, the year he died.

His children by wife Susannah:

William, died 1699 at London; John (Rev.) born 1636 and died 1689, at Hartford; Samuel, Sarah, Mary, Joseph.

Rev. John married Sybil daughter of Edward Collins 1st. His 7th child was (Rev.) Samuel born April 22, 1670, settled in Windham, where he was ordained Dec., 1700; married Sept. 14, 1696, Elizabeth Adams, whose mother was Alice Bradford granddaughter of Governor Bradford.

Rev. Sam[l] died at Enfield while on a visit to his cousin Rev. Nathaniel Collins, Sept., 1725. H. P. M.

PROBATE RECORDS OF ESSEX CO., MASS.

Published under the auspices of the Essex Institute.

Abstracted and Edited by Eben Putnam.

It is proposed to print abstracts of the records of the county of Essex, Mass., now deposited in the office of the Registrar of Probate.

These abstracts will contain all of genealogical value which can be gleaned from the wills, inventories, administrations, etc., and every name occurring in the settlement of the estates will thus be printed and hereafter easily referred to.

The early series of wills, etc., proved in the old county court, are already MOSTLY in type, having appeared in the early volumes of the Essex Institute Historical Collections. The present compilation will begin with those estates recorded in Volume I of the Probate Records, and documents on file, but not recorded, will be included. The method of publication will be that adopted by the Maine Genealogical Society in printing the Probate Records of Lincoln county, Me., i.e., monthly parts of thirty-two pages, ten or twelve partsto a volume, at $5 per volume.

The series will be maintained until all the records have been printed to the close of the 18th century.

As Essex county furnished a very large number of the emigrants to other parts of Massachusetts, to New Hampshire, Vermont, Maine, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Western and Central New York, Ohio, Illinois, and states further west, the great convenience to genealogists which this publication will afford, should be immediately recognized, and substantially supported. Only a limited number of copies will be printed, commensurate with the subscriptions received.

The copies remaining after subscribers to the monthly parts have been supplied will be held at the price of $7.50, and from the limited edition the price will surely advance, it therefore behooves genealogists and librarians to place their orders at an early date.

The first part will be ready for delivery in March or April.

An early response to this circular is requested, in order that the edition may be decided upon.

Address all orders, with check or money order payable to

EBEN PUTNAM, Salem, Mass.

This may Certify that I have inlisted James Jones, John Stearns and mustered them before Colo. James Barrett, muster master, into Col. Samuel O. Brewer's Regt. under Capt. Richard Faxton, they Belonging to the Fifteen Battalions in Continental Service, to the Selectmen

From yours, Epm. Minor, Lieut.

CHIEF JUSTICE CHRISTOPHER GALE AND CHIEF JUSTICE WILLIAM LITTLE, OF CAROLINA, AND THEIR DESCENDANTS.

BY MRS. FLORENCE FARRINGTON, A DESCENDANT OF THE 10TH GENERATION FROM SIR JOHN GALE OF FARNLEY HALL, ENGLAND.

The histories of these two men and that of their descendants are so interwoven that they are described together.

John Gale, a descendant of the Gales of Scranton and Mashans, and Joanne Dobson, daughter of Miles Dobson of Kirkley, Overblow, Yorkshire, England, were the father and mother of Miles Gale, who was born at Farnley Hall, near Leeds, in 1647.

Miles married Margaret, daughter of Christopher Stone, who was chancellor of York from 1660 to 1667.

Miles Gale was a writer and an antiquarian. Among his writings were "Memoirs of the Gale Family," particularly of the learned Dr. Thomas Gale, Dean of York, and of his son Christopher, who was Her Majesty's attorney general in Carolina in 1703. His works can be found in the libraries of Leeds and Cambridge, and his collection of relics can be seen in the museum at Cambridge.

After his removal to Carolina, Christopher Gale made his home at Edenton, then a village of twenty houses, used mostly for business purposes, the residences or country seats of the gentlemen being located on either side of the Chawan river on which Edenton is situated.

Christopher Gale married Sarah, the widow of Gov. Thomas Harvey, who had died in 1699. Of this marriage there were four children, Miles, Theophilus, Elizabeth and Penelope.

In 1709 we find Gale serving as one of the eight Lords Proprietors' deputies. On September 7, 1711, Gale witnessed the massacre of the white settlers by the Tuscarora Indians, when a hundred and twelve persons lost their lives by tomahawk and in other barbarous ways. The account of this tragic event has been transmitted to posterity by a letter written by Gale, now in possession of Professor Hubbard of the University of North Carolina.

In 1711, Gale was made chief justice of the Carolinas and of the Bahama Islands. In 1724 Gale, owing to difficulties with the governor of the colony, who was endeavoring to eject him from office, visited England for the purpose of laying the matter of disagreement before the Lords Proprietors who refused to give place to the governor's favorite and reinstated Gale as Chief Justice. In 1728, while still chief justice, Gale was made one of Gov. George Barrington's council. In 1729, with Colonel Loverick and William Little he was appointed one of the commissioners to run the dividing line between Virginia and North Carolina. For that service Gale and Little were each awarded a tract of four thousand acres of land of great value. Gale's tract near Halifax was called "Oconocha Neck," and Little's on the Soxpohon river was called "the Handfield" tract. The proprietors retroceded the sovereignty to the crown in 1729 and Gale returned to private life. He died in 1731 and lies buried in Edenton, and "left a name that is never mentioned but with respect."

It was when Gale was in England in 1724, that he made the acquaintance of the before-mentioned William Little, a native of Boston, Mass., and a member of a prominent and wealthy family of that town, who had gone to England to complete his studies at the University of Cambridge. A warm friendship sprang up between these two gentlemen, and when Gale returned to America he induced not only his brother Edmond Gale, but William Little to join him. Through Gale's influence, William Little received the appointments of attorney general, comptroller and receiver general of the King's quit rents, which offices he held successively until 1731, when he was appointed by the crown, chief justice of the Carolinas.

In 1726, William Little married Penelope, the youngest daughter of Christopher Gale; by her he had three children: Penelope, born July 28, 1727, William, born Sept. 27, 1729, George, born 1731. In 1734, Judge Little died, leaving all of his children quite young. After the English style his fortune was given to his eldest son William, but he gave George, the younger son, a tract of land, "and bound him to the sea."

Mr. Little's widow married, a second time, a Dr. Hardy, and had two more daughters, Sarah and Elizabeth. Sarah married a gentleman named Hurt, and Elizabeth married one named Bower. Elizabeth had two sons. After the death of Mr. Bower she married a man named Roberts. These people, the Gales (Christopher and Edmond), the Harveys, Bowerses and Robertses lived in or near Edenton, where they now have numerous descendants.

Judge William Little's daughter, Penelope, married Mr. Robert Baker, on Cape Fear river, and they had a son Samuel, and a daughter, but to whom she was married was not stated. Mrs. Baker died in 1816.

William Little, the judge's eldest son, was wealthy, of fine form, and most agreeable manner; he married, first, a daughter of Galomon Kimbrough, and made his home at Cheraw, S. C.; by this marriage he had a daughter named Sarah, and a son George. Mrs. Little died, and Mr. Little remained a widower for seven years; then he married Catharine Stewart, a daughter of Sir Patrick Stewart, who was chief of the Stewart Clan of Balquheidder, Scotland. By this wife, Mr. Little had one child only, a daughter, named Elizabeth, who became the wife of Morgan Brown, Jan. 22, 1784. Morgan Brown and his wife moved to Tennessee in 1795. Their descendants would number more than a hundred. William Little died Dec., 1766.

George Little, the youngest of the judge's two sons, made his home on his farm on the Mehesin river. He married Miss Parsons, the sister of Gen. Thomas Parsons, by whom he had three children. The eldest, George, at fourteen years of age, was drowned in the Mehesin river, "in time of fish." The second son inherited the greater portion of General Parsons' great fortune. William was a man of the highest respectability, and for many years represented his district in congress. George Little had a daughter, who married Sharp Blount. They had children but their names are unknown to the writer.

The late Col. George Little, of Raleigh, who was also a member of congress, was a lineal descendant of Chief Justice Little.

Sarah, the eldest daughter of Mr. Little, married William Thomas, Esq., the son of Philemon Thomas of Queen Anne Co., Maryland. They had a son named William Little Thomas. At twenty years of age he married Clarissa Benton, daughter of Col. Samuel Benton of Cheraw, district of South Carolina. Here ends the writer's knowledge of the descendants of Mr. William Little by his first wife Miss Kimbrough.

ADAMS, OF CHELMSFORD, MASS.

BY EBEN PUTNAM.

Henry* Adams who had grant of land in Braintree in February, 1641, and is said to have come to Boston in 1634, bringing with him eight sons, is referred to in the following inscription on a granite column erected to his memory in the churchyard at Braintree, by his illustrious descendant John Adams, President of the United States.

"In memory of HENRY ADAMS, who took his flight from the dragon of persecution in Devonshire, England, and alighted with eight sons near Mount Wollaston. One of the sons returned to England, and after taking time to explore the country, four removed to Medfield and the neighboring towns; two to Chelmsford. One only, Joseph, who lies at his left hand, remained here, who was an original proprietor in the township of Braintree, 1639."

He was buried 8 Oct., 1646. Of the traditionary eight sons but five are named in his will proved 8 June, 1647, viz.: Peter, John, Joseph, Edward, Samuel, and daughter Ursula. Besides these he is known to have had Henry and Thomas.

Henry, Jr., married 17 Nov., 1643, Elizabeth, daughter of Moses Paine, and removed to Medfield. He was prominent in town affairs, was Representative to General Court 1659–'65–'74–'5, and was killed by Indians Feb., 1676, at his own door. His sons were Eleazer, John, Moses, Henry, Samuel died young.

The descendants of Thomas and Samuel are mentioned below.

Joseph remained in Braintree and married 26 Nov., 1650, Abigail, daughter of Gregory Baxter. Their eldest son Joseph, by his second wife Hannah, daughter of John Bass, was the father of Rev. Joseph of Newington, N. H., and of John

*No reliance can be placed on the fictitious pedigree of Henry Adams, which appears in N. E. Hist.-Gen. Reg., Whittemore's Adams Genealogy, and other publications. Apparently it was made to fit the case.

Adams, the latter of whom was father of John Adams, second President of the United States, and grandfather of John Quincy Adams, president of the United States.

Edward left many descendants. He was prominent in public affairs. Descendants of his son Henry are found in Canterbury, Conn.

Peter was of Medfield and has descendants in New Hampshire and Canterbury, Conn.

Captain Samuel Adams, son of Henry of Braintree, and brother of Lieut. Thomas, whom he accompanied to the new settlement at Chelmsford. He was an inhabitant of Charlestown in 1649, and town clerk 1653. Commissioner for 1667. He erected the first saw mill in town and in consideration thereof received a grant of 450 acres. He married, first, Rebecca, daughter of Thomas Graves of Charlestown, who died 8 Oct., 1664. Thereupon he married 7 May, 1668, Esther Sparhawk, daughter of Nathaniel and Mary Sparhawk of Cambridge. Her will is dated 29 April and probated 23 Dec., 1692.

Capt. Samuel Adams died at Charlestown, 24 Jan., 1688–89, aged 72 years (g. s.) Administration on his estate was granted to widow Esther, 17 Dec., 1689, whose bond is witnessed by Joseph Adams and Mary Symmes. Inventory, £300. Administration was granted to Daniel Waldo of Chelmsford, John Waldo of Boston, and Samuel Webb of Dorchester, 19–7–1692, sons-in-law of Capt. Samuel Adams, and under date of 25 June, 1694, an agreement regarding the estate is signed by the heirs, viz.; John Waldo, Samuel Webb, Daniel Waldo, Joseph Adams, Joseph Tompson, guardian for Benjamin Adams. Mdd. Probate.

Children:

Mary, married 16 Dec., 1686, Samuel Webb, of Braintree.

Samuel, born 3 July, 1647.

Rebecca, married John Waldo.

Thomas, born 1651; married 28 April, 1680, Mary, daughter of Henry Blackmore. He died s. p. in Barbadoes. Will dated 28 Feb., 1683–4; proved 3 June, 1686.

John.

Katherine, born 29 Oct., 1657.

Katherine, born 11–4–1658; married John Rayner.

Susanna, married Daniel Waldo.

Nathaniel, born in Chelmsford, 28 Feb., 1662.

Martha, born 8 Sept., 1664.

By Esther:

Samuel, born 7 March, 1671.

Joseph, born 27–11–1672; of Concord 1703, then eldest son.

Benjamin, born 29 May, 1679.

Captain Joseph, son of Capt. Samuel, born in Chelmsford, 27–11–1672. Joseph Adams and Mary Jones were married at Concord, 26 Sept., 1696.

His will dated 20 June, 1717–18, states he is "very sick." Mentions wife Mary, youngest child Hannah, not sixteen, sons Samuel, Joseph, Benjamin, Jonas, daughters Esther, Mary, Rebecca, Sybil, Hannah. Wife to have the £40 she had from her father's estate. Proved 25 Feb., 1717–18. Inventory of "Capt. Joseph Adams" taken 27 March, 1718.

Children, recorded at Chelmsford:

Samuel, born 30 July, 1696. Administration on his estate to brother Joseph of Chelmsford, mother consenting, 9 Nov., 1721.

Joseph, born 8 July, 1698; married Mary, and had at Chelmsford, Mary, born 24 July, 1721; Sarah, born 5 Oct., 1723.

Benjamin, born 1 Dec., 1701.

Esther, born probably at Concord, 10 March, 1704.

Mary, born 1 July, 1707.

Rebecca, born 28 Nov., 1709.

Jonas, born 16 Dec., 1712. In 1731 he chose his uncle Benjamin his guardian.

Sybil, born 14 Aug., 1714.
Hannah, born 17 Sept., 1717.

Benjamin, son of Capt. Samuel, married 18 Dec., 1707, Mary Parker of Chelmsford. 11 Dec., 1708, he and wife Mary deed to brother Joseph two parts of his father's house, "and one part my sister Rebecca Waldo's."

Children, born at Chelmsford:
Catherine, born 20 April, 1710.
John, born 16 April, 1711.
Micah, born 27 Dec., 1715.

Lieutenant Thomas, son of Henry of Braintree, removed from Braintree to Concord, and when in 1653 certain inhabitants of Concord and Woburn sought a grant of lands about Chelmsford, he was one of the first to go thither. Chelmsford was granted 18 May, 1653, and on 22 Nov., 1654, the first board of selectmen was chosen, among whom was Thomas Adams.

It is said that he and his brother Samuel contributed most liberally of any toward the building of the first meeting house in 1655.

Thomas Adams was town clerk 1668–9; selectman, and in 1673 representative to the General Court.

Under date of 19 March, 1666–7, John Barit sends to the General Court the names of Capt. Samuel and Thomas Adams, and Mr. John Webb as chosen commissioners for the court of Chelmsford for the year 1667, and John Fiske as chosen constable.

His will dated 28 May, 1688, was proved 7 Nov., 1690. He died at Chelmsford aged 76 years, 20 July, 1688. In his will he mentions his wife Mary, sons Pelatiah, Timothy, Samuel and Jonathan. His daughter Cooper and her children, the daughter to have his wife's wearing apparel and her bed. Upon the probate records and papers he is styled "Lieutenant."

His widow, according to Wyman, died at Charlestown, 23 March, 1694–5, aged 82 years.

Children:

Mary, born 24 July, 1643; died young.

Jonathan, born at Concord, 6–1–1646.

Pelatiah, born at Concord, 6–1–1646.

Timothy, born at Concord, 15–2–1648.

George, born at Concord, 29–3–1650.

Susanna, baptized at Charlestown, 3–12–1660. She is called by Rev. Zachariah Symmes "daughter of cousin Thomas Adams."

Rebecca, born in Chelmsford, 18 Sept., 1657.

Eliza, born in Chelmsford, 21 Oct., 1659.

Estate of Timothy Adams of Chelmsford, settled 1762. Adm. to son John was granted 4 Jan., 1762, his mother assenting.

ADAMS, OF CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

BY EBEN PUTNAM.

John Adams was of Cambridge in 1650. On the 8th, 12th month, 1657-8 he received a grant of 4 acres, 3½ rods in Menotomy field. In 1677, he, "of Menotomy Row," buys of Jonathan Bunker, 3 acres in Menotomy field, bounded east by Menotomy river and north by the Mystic river. He was a millwright. Freeman 1666, which year he joined, the church. He signed the petition of the 17th, 8 month, 1664, testifying to the satisfaction the government of the Colony gave and praying that they "may not be subjected to the arbitrary power of any who are not chosen by this people according to their patent." This was a part of the opposition to the Royal Commission of that year.

The John Adams, impressed as a trooper in Nov., 1675, was probably the son John, rather than the father. His name does not appear on the Shawshin division of 1652. In 1688 he was rated to pay tax that year of 10sh. 8 pence upon estate and two persons, which is exceeded by very few, and by none in Menotomy. Thomas Danforth, Esq., is rated the heaviest and he only for 12 sh. one penny.

That year polls were rated at 1sh. 8d. each and estates at a penny in the pound, therefore he was assessed for £88 valuation of estate. It is needless to say that the valuation was low.

On the 4 Sept., 1697, he, and wife Ann, deeded to son Joseph a certain tenement with lands in Cambridge and Charlestown being part of the homestead and eight acres, upon which was a mansion house. Also land at Menotomy Bridge bounded by Charlestown bounds. Mdd. Deeds, 12, 554. He died August, 1706, aged 85 (born therefore in 1621) leaving a widow, who removed to Sudbury and lived with her son John there settled. On the 18 May, 1710, she deeds to Joseph of Cambridge, weaver, five acres of land in Cambridge bounding on the lands described above, and on the first of October, 1714, she, as relict of John of Cambridge, and John Adams of Sudbury, son and executor of John Adams of Cambridge, sell to Joseph Adams four acres in Charlestown. Mdd. Deeds.

His will dated 1 June, 1706, proved 7 Oct., 1706, gives to wife Ann the use of his estate, but said estate to be in the hands of son John for her benefit. To son John the farm next Mr. Pelhornes farm in Cambridge, 110 A., between Cambridge and Concord, also land in Charlestown.

Son (sic) Joseph the deed of gift he already has, and five shillings. To grandson William Patten three acres in Menotomy and he is to pay grandchildren Martha Smith £3 and Rebecca Squire, widow, forty shillings, son-in-law Nathaniel Patten, son-in-law Eames. To Elizabeth, daughter of Henry Rurbye, a cow. Wife and son John to be executors. Witnessed by Joseph and Sarah Winship and Stephen Willis, Sr. Inventory 16 Aug., 1706, about £400. Mdd. Probate.

By wife Ann he had children:

Rebecca, born in England, died Dec., 1677; married Nov., 1669, Nathaniel Patten.

Mary, born 25 Oct., 1652; died 1681; married John Eames.

John of Watertown, born 1 May, 1655.

Hannah, born 8 August, 1657, baptized 17 June, 1660; died 25 January, 1660-1.

Joseph born 1660.

Daniel died young.

Daniel born 14 September, 1662; died 14 May, 1685.

John Adams, son of John, married Hannah, daughter of John Bent. By an indenture, dated 1 June, 1683, between Samuel Gookin and wife Mary of Cambridge, and John Adams of Sudbury, he came into possession of 200 acres in Natick. In 1715 the question of bounds arose and John How aged 50 and John Pratt, aged 50, both of Sudbury, testify that they were present when Samuel How, deceased, showed Matthew Rice his bounds on John Adams. Mdd. Deeds 17, 437-8.

Children:

John, born 12 March, 1683-4.
Daniel, born 1685.
Hannah, born 1688.

Joseph Adams, son of John, Sr., baptized in Cambridge, born in 1660; married 21 February, 1687-8, Margaret, daughter of Thomas Eames, born 8 July, 1668; having married, second, Lieutenant Daniel Dean of Concord, 27 December, 1705.

Joseph Adams died 20 July, 1701, leaving an estate inventoried by Samuel Bull and Joseph Winshipp at £100. The widow was appointed administratrix 11 August, 1701, having as sureties John Adams and John Jackson.

Children:

Joseph, born about 1688.
Daniel,* born 1690 at Concord.
Cherry, baptized 31 January, 1697; married at Concord, 5 November, 1712, Jonathan Stone, of Lexington; married, second, 1734–5, Thomas Wellington.
John,† born 16 April, 1697.

1774, aged 86 years. In his will, dated 16 March, 1749, proved 8 November, 1774 by sons Joseph and William, he styles himself yeoman. He mentions wife Rachel, sons Joseph, William and Thomas, daughters Rebecca Kent and Mary Cutter, daughters Anna and Mary Adams and heirs of daughter Doubleday.

He was selectman and assessor of Cambridge, 1729, 1731, 1732, 1737, 1738.

He married first, 18 January, 1710–11, Rebecca, daughter of William and Rebecca (Rolf) Cutter, born (1693?) died, 12 January, 1717–18, aged 24. He married, second, 26 June, 1718, Rachel, daughter of Joseph and Ann (Brazier) Allen of Weston. She died 1 August, 1775.

Children:

Thomas*, born 3 December, 1711; died 17 November 1713.

Thomas (originally Joseph), born 20 August, 1713.

Joseph, born 3 July, 1715.

Margaret, born 26 May, 1717; married 21 October, 1736, Elisha Doubleday.

Rebecca, born 12 September, 1720; married 27 November, 1740, Samuel Kent.

Lucy, born 29 October, 1722; died 17 April, 1810; married 21 May, 1745, John, son of Deacon John and Lydia (Harrington) Cutter.

William†, born January 11, 1724–5.

* Thomas married 22 September, 1737, Anna Frost, who died at Worcester, 6 October, 1740; married, second, Lydia Chadwick, who died at Worcester, 1748; married, third, 15 September, 1754, Elizabeth Bowman. He was a captain of militia, lived at Worcester and Menotomy, where he died October, 1802. Children: Joseph, died 1740; Hannah, married Walter Russell and married, second, Enos Jones; John, married Joanna Munroe, lived at Ashburnham and Hartford, Pa., where he died 26 February, 1849, aged 104 years; Lydia, married Lemuel Blanchard and married, second, Joseph Thorndike of Jaffrey, N. H.; Lucretia, married Ethan Wetherbee; Eben; Thomas, married Polly Goodwin. See Paige.

† William died 10 September, 1787, was a captain. He married 14 June, 1750 Sarah Hill, who died 11 November, 1805, aged 74. Children: born at Cambridge, John; William, married Hannah Stone; Sarah, married James Perry; Lucy, married John Cutter; Anna, married Richard Hay; Rebecca; Lydia, married Eben Russell; Margaret, married Thos. Russell; Mary, married Nathaniel Russell; Susanna. See Paige Anne, born 8 July, 1729; married 19 April, 1750, Peter Tufts, Jr.

Mary, born 12 May, 1733; married 6 June, 1751, Nathan Tufts.

Joseph Adams of Menotomy, son of Joseph (Joseph, John), born 3 July, 1715; died 3 May, 1794. He was a deacon in the second parish church and had the care of the church service. At the time of the retreat of the British from Lexington his house was looted by the British and the service taken. The thieves sold it to a Boston silversmith, from whom the church reclaimed it. (See Boston Sunday Herald of 2 August, 1885.) From the state archives it appears that the vessels, linen and cash belonging to the church of said precinct, taken out of the house of Joseph Adams, deacon of said church, amounts to £16-16-8.*

The British piled up some furniture in the centre of a chamber whence they had driven Mrs. Adams, then with a babe of 18 days, not even giving her time to dress or call the other children, and set the whole on fire, using as kindling the leaves of the family bible. But little damage was done as the fire did not kindle, a fact ascribed by the good deacon to the sacrilegious use of the good book. This story I have often heard from my grandmother, Martha Adams (Tapley) Edmands, a great granddaughter of Deacon Joseph Adams.

The deacon's name is not upon any of the military rolls of the day, but as he evidently was away from home, it is a fair inference he was with his countrymen harassing the British retreat and found it impossible to reach his home and get his family to a place of safety.

He was selectman of Cambridge 1758, 1769, 1770, 1771.

* The estimated damage by the British that day was

Cambridge,	£1202- 8- 7
Lexington,	£1761- 1-15
Concord,	£ 274-16- 7
Total,	£3237-25-29

The largest individual loss was that of Joseph Loring of Lexington, whose house and barn were totally destroyed. His loss was £720.

His first wife was Martha, daughter of Ephraim and Sarah (Cooper) Frost, born 4 Aug., 1722, whom he married 20 Jan., 1739–40. Her sister Ann was the wife of Thomas Adams. She died 23 Dec., 1749, and he married, second, 11 Sept, 1750, Hannah, daughter of Thomas Hall, born 1730; died 13 August, 1803.

Children, born in Cambridge:

Anna, born 14 Dec., 1740; died 8 Oct., 1825; married 7 May, 1761, Timothy Tufts of Medforp.

Joseph, born 29 Nov., 1743; died 1824; married 6 Sept., 1770, Lucy Kent, who died 1785; married, second, 25 Feb., 1802, Sarah Tufts, who died 1843. Left descendants.

Martha,* born 25 Sept., 1746; married Samuel Tufts. The compiler of this article has a silver cream pitcher, made by Paul Revere, which was given the couple on their wedding day, and which has their initials engraved upon it.

Thomas, born 19 July, 1751; married 28 May, 1780, Martha Stone and removed to New Salem, where he died 27 June, 1848. His wife died 22 Jan., 1847.

Rebecca, born 16 Aug., 1753; died, unm., 19 May, 1834.

Hannah, born 12 April, 1756; died 24 Jan., 1843; married 22 July, 1773, Peter Tufts, 3d, of Medford.

Susanna, born 26 June, 1758; died 28 June, 1828; married 3 Oct., 1776, Gershom Teele of Medford.

Mary, born 13 Feb., 1761; died 2 Oct., 1846; married 4 April, 1788, Benj. Winship.

Nathan, born 9 Aug., 1763; died 25 March, 1842; married Martha Wilcox, born 23 Oct., 1767; died 15 April, 1803; married, second, 13 Dec., 1803, Rebecca Tufts, born 20 Sept., 1770; died about 1848. Left descendants.

* Paige gives her as marrying Samuel Locke, Jr., 16 May, 1771. He married Margaret Adams.

Joel, born 23 Aug., 1765; died in New Salem 8 Feb., 1841; married 23 Aug., 1788, Sybil Stone of Medford.

Amos, twin with Joel, died 24 March, 1844; married 19 April, 1790, Lydia Adams.

Daniel, born 14 March, 1768; married 3 June, 1793, Phebe Britton.

Abigail, born 18 Sept., 1772; married 19 Oct., 1800, Joseph Convers of Medford.

Ann, born 1 April, 1775; married 11 Oct., 1796, James Hill.

QUERIES.

15. I desire information concerning George Henry Snelling of Boston, who died about Sept., 1892. He was, it is believed, a member of the N. E. Hist. Gen. Society. Would like to communicate with near relative or descendants.

R. G. CARTER,
3218 16th street, Washington, D. C.

16. PAGE. The undersigned would like to communicate with any one interested in the genealogy of the family of Page. LEVI B. CHASE, Sturbridge, Mass.

17. McKENZIE. Who was Martin McKenzie who married at Nantucket, in 1794, the widow Hephzibah Bunker? It is said he was a master-mariner from Kingston.

18. REYNOLDS. In the "Record of Service of Conn. Men," I find the name of Samuel Reynolds as private in fifth Regiment "Conn. Line" under Col. Philip Burr Bradley of Ridgefield and Capt. Josiah Child of Woodstock, Conn. Samuel Reynolds enlisted 26 May, 1777; discharged 26 April, 1780.

What were the names of his parents, and where and when was he born? J. A. E. WIGHT.

19. PEPPER. Stephen Pepper, born 1734; died in Sherman, Conn., 30 April, 1815; married, 1758 at Sherman, Conn., Lucy Bennet, daughter of Lieutenant Bennet, born 1740, and died 22 April, 1817. Issue, eleven children.

Wanted, names of their parents and dates of birth.

20. PRATT. Calvin Pratt, born near Westfield, Mass., had by first wife (name desired) a son Ephraim, born about 1825. Second wife was Phœbe Mott née Smith, born 1812, daughter of Ebenezer and Sarah (McCann) Smith of Suffield, Conn. Issue, five children: the eldest, George W., born 23 August, 1833, at Russell, Mass. Who were Calvin Pratt's parents and where born?

21. M'CALEB. Wanted the connection between the Maryland family of this name and those of the same name in other parts of the country, particularly in the South. Is anything known of the ancestors of Capt. Wm. M'Caleb, born about 1748, of the Carolinas, a Revolutionary soldier.

It is said the name was originally Mc'Alpine.

22. BOWEN.—Who were the parents of Margaret Bowen? She married John Weld, of Roxbury, Dec. 24, 1647.

J. S.

23. ELKINS–POINTS. William Elkins, supposed to be from New England, died in Philadelphia, Penn., 9 April, 1798, aged 47 years. He married in Philadelphia, 10 January, 1774, Mary Points. For proof of parentage of the above William Elkins a reward of twenty-five dollars will be given. For parentage of Mary Points, fifteen dollars. Communications must be sent to

J. GRANVILLE LEACH,
733 Walnut street, Philadelphia.

24. Abigail Gardner of Brookline, Mass., married, 1709, James Wilder of Lancaster, Mass. Lucy Gardner married, 1702, Joseph Wilder of Lancaster, Mass. Where were they born and who were their father and mother?

25. Mores or Moses White kept an apothecary store in Boston 1846–7. Wanted the address of some one of his descendants or anything in regard to his family. M. L. W.

26. GREENE. About 1766, Daniel Greene of Rhode Island, married there Rebecca[5] Barton (Rufus,[4] Andrew,[3] Benjamin,[2] Rufus[1]) of Warwick, and soon after removed to Vermont. Was he the Daniel Greene born in Warwick, R. I. Oct. 10, 1747?

27. TRIPP. Mehitable Tripp of Exeter, R. I., born Dec. 1, 1729; married Sept. 21, 1752, Benjamin Greene of West Greenwich. She was daughter of Job, born April 20, 1701, and Sarah——born May 20, 1704. Facts are wanted to show Job's line of descent from John Tripp (his undoubted ancestor), the first of that name in Rhode Island.

28. RICE–CALKIN. Samuel Rice, born 1751, probably in Litchfield Co., Conn., married Content Calkin, probably of same county. He was a soldier of the Revolution, serving with forces from New York state, from 1775 until close of 1780. Knowledge as to his ancestry and that of Content Calkin, his wife, will be thankfully received.

THE GRAVES GENEALOGY.

Gen. J. C. Graves, of Buffalo, has published volume one of the Graves Genealogy. This volume relates to the Connecticut family, descended from Thomas Graves of Hartford. It is a remarkable volume in many ways and the numerous illustrations are particularly well done and of more than usual interest. There are excellent indexes. Vols. II and III are to follow, and in these volumes will be found a detailed history of the Graves family of Lynn and of its branches in Marblehead and Ipswich. 8vo, cloth, pp. 521.

THE ORIGIN OF HERALDRY.

FROM A GUIDE TO THE STUDY OF HERALDRY.—BY J. A. MONTAGU, B.A.

I shall not enter upon the subject of the heralds' duties, their privileges, emoluments, etc.; those who seek for further information upon the subject, I would refer to Mark Noble's "History of the College of Arms," where they will find notices of all the heralds, from the time of their incorporation to the reign of George the Third.[1] In recommending, however, Mark Noble's work, I must caution the reader against his partiality; his names and dates may be correct, but the character of some of the heralds he has strangely vilified. His abuse of Ralph Brook was not altogether merited; Brook was coarse in his language, it is true, but a most learned and acute genealogist and herald. His famous literary warfare with Camden has been of essential service to the genealogist. In Edmondson's "Complete Body of Heraldry," and Dallaway's "Inquiry into the Origin of Heraldry," will also be found much information relative to heralds and their duties. I must not, however, omit some mention of one of the heralds' duties, as it is so immediately connected with the state of heraldry. I allude to the visitations. They were undertaken every twenty or thirty years, under a royal commission, for the purpose of registering and confirming the pedigrees and arms of the gentry throughout England. The earliest on record is, Visitatio facta per Marischallum de Norry ult. ann. R. Henrici 4^{ti} 1412;[2] but this is not supposed to have been under a royal commission. The first under such royal commission was that by Thomas Benoilt, Clarenceux, in 1528. These visitations, which were continued at intervals until the year 1686, were not merely matters of form and registration of whatever genealogies and arms might be presented to the heralds, but in most cases there was a careful inquiry into the right of using such bearings, and proof required of the pedigrees so presented; and in many instances those who had illegally assumed arms, or had forged pedigrees, were disclaimed openly in the market place as ignoble.[1] To those who are fond of genealogical research, Sir H. Nicolas's "Catalogue of the Heralds' Visitations in the British Museum," will be found exceedingly useful. It contains also many references to other manuscripts on genealogy and heraldry preserved in that institution.

[1] Lansdowne MS. 80 in Mus. Brit. has a "Catalogue of all the Officers of Arms &c., down to the year 1595, collected by Thom. Lant, Portcullis."

[2] This is among the Harl. MSS. in Mus. Brit.

The reigns of Henry the Eighth[2] and Elizabeth were no less celebrated than those of Edward the Third and Richard the Second for pomp and pageantry and heraldic display; but heraldry no longer possessed that simplicity and purity which had distinguished it in the preceding reigns. The arms that were granted in the time of Elizabeth were many of them of a complicated nature; and they were now too frequently granted either through carelessness or for pecuniary reasons, to unworthy persons. This is the more to be condemned, as the emoluments of the heralds were at this time very great, in consequence of the love of pageantry and display evinced by the monarchs above mentioned. Another cause which tended to bring heraldry into disrepute arose from a number of adventurers who went about the country, falsely calling themselves heralds, and made money by granting arms and manufacturing pedigrees. A memorable instance of this kind of "notable dealers in arms and makers of false pedigrees" was one W. Dawkins; he was apprehended by order of the Earl Marshal. The names of nearly one hundred families were mentioned, for whom he had compiled spurious pedigrees. He had been twice before apprehended for the same offence; at one time being punished by the loss of an ear, and the other by imprisonment.

[1] In a copy of a Visitation of Wiltshire, in 1623, I find the names of no less than fifty-four persons so disclaimed at Salisbury, as ignobiles. Pen. Auc.

[2] In this reign it became usual to grant arms to those prelates who did not possess them by descent; to corporate bodies, and to commercial companies.

The vast number of manuscripts of heraldry still in existence, which were compiled about this time, evince the industry of at least some of the heralds, notwithstanding their internal dissensions.

Little more need be said; nothing of any moment affected the science of heraldry under the houses of Stuart and Hanover, and it gradually declined in estimation. With the discontinuance of the tournament and the joust, and the altered system of warfare, heraldry lost a great part of its consequence. None of our kings since James the Second ever kept up much state; and the inroad of a number of persons who could afford to purchase arms, lessened, in a great measure, the estimation in which heraldic distinctions were held.

It is a little curious that, during the usurpation of Cromwell, the heraldic body still held its place, when most institutions of a similar nature fell to the ground. We find Oliver with his heralds occasionally about him, and as fond of magnificence as any legitimate crowned head; in proof of this, look at his reception of the Dutch ambassadors, and his solemnization of the funerals of his mother and daughter. Cromwell caused the arms of the Protectorate to be substituted for those of the exiled Stuarts; and for his own coat he bore the arms of Cromwell as an escutcheon of pretence over a modification of the arms of the Protectorate.

It is now necessary that I should mention the sources from which my readers may gather information upon the subject in question; and also that I should so guide their steps in their search for it, as to lead them through the richest fields, and those which are the freest from weeds, at the same time without wearying them with the length of the way. Although I feel with Dallaway that, "to enliven a catalogue is one of those literary felicities to which I do not expect to attain," yet it is a necessary task, and may prove, perhaps, the most useful part of this short essay.

I will at once, then, suppose the reader perfectly ignorant of heraldry, and put into his hands works which will enable him to convert the jargon of the science into the illuminated coat. I do not think I can offer him better assistance than he will find in such small works as Clark's "Introduction to Heraldry," or better still (if he can procure it), Claude Menestrier's "Véritable Art du Blazon," published at Lyons in 1671. I have been particular here in the date, as there are three works by Menestrier, under the general title of "Le Véritable Art du Blazon:" one on the Origin of Arms, another on the Method of Blazoning (that above mentioned), and a third on the Usage of Arms. I may take this opportunity of stating, that all Menestrier's works, of which there are a great number, will be found of the very best service. Dictionaries of heraldic terms, and their meanings, are easily to be had; such are found in Edmondson's "Complete Body of Heraldry," and Guillim's "Display of Heraldry." Gelliot's "Indice Armorial" is also a useful work. I might here almost conclude my notice of heraldic books, by at once referring the reader to Moule's "Bibliotheca Heraldica," a work though apparently a mere catalogue of books, of much labour, and great and careful research. It gives the titles in full of nearly every work that has been printed in England connected with heraldry, genealogy, coronations, etc., with a detailed account of the contents of each, and remarks by which one may judge of their merits. More than eight hundred books are mentioned, beginning with a work relating to the Order of the Garter, printed in the year 1469, and supposed to be Caxton's second attempt at printing; and ending with Willement's "Regal Heraldry," published in 1821. At the end there is a list of the Heralds' Visitations,[1] with references to the principal manuscripts connected with the genealogies, etc., of the several counties, contained in private collections. The notices of foreign genealogies are very numerous,[1] and any one who can meet with a tenth part of those mentioned may consider himself exceedingly fortunate. There is also a list of some foreign systems of heraldry, but this part of the work is incomplete; to supply in part this defect, I may mention, among German authors, George Philip Harsdorfer, of Nuremberg, who was the first German who wrote on heraldry; Theodore Hopingk, John Limnaus, and upwards of twenty others. But it is to Philip Jacob Spener, who wrote at the end of the seventeenth century, that the Germans are indebted for their best work on the subject; from his "Insignium Theoria seu Operis Heraldici," most of the other writers have taken their information.

Amongst Italian writers there are, Philibert Campanile, whose work "Dell' Armi," etc., may be consulted; Antonio Stephano Catari, Paul Jovius, Der Graf Marc Ant. Ginani, and some others.

For Spanish authors the reader may refer to Gerhardus Frankenau's "Bibliotheca-Hispanica Historico-Genealogico-Heraldica," which contains the names of seven hundred authors, and titles of one thousand four hundred and ninety works upon these subjects.

In the Netherlands, they have had John Lavens, Thomas de Rouck, and John Christyn.

The Swedes too can name John Ihre and Carl Uggla, as writers upon heraldry.

But what is of most importance to the heraldic student, and that which will alone give interest to the science, and render it of service in the study of history, are good authorities for armorial bearings. For such, one of the most obvious sources (after seals) will be the original note books of the heralds in their visitations. Of these many are, of course, in the College of Arms, and many again scattered about in private collections; these will be for the most part inaccessible. But in the Harleian collection of manuscripts in the British Museum there are upwards of two hundred of these visitations. In referring to them, the little work by Sir H. Nicolas, before mentioned, will be very serviceable. A vast number of other manuscripts of arms, by such men as Glover, Camden, Vincent, Segar, whose names stamp them with authority, will be found in the Harleian collection; the excellent catalogue to which will be found of easy reference. Amongst the Lansdown, Hargrave, and Cotton manuscripts in the British Museum many heraldic collections also exist. Among these manuscripts there are many of arms from tomb-stones, mural monuments, etc., in various churches throughout England. These are very valuable authorities.

NOTE ON YORK CO., MAINE, RECORDS.

The County Records at Alfred are in good condition and well indexed. The town records at Alfred are imperfect, but have been recently rebound. They are not indexed and are in the usual condition of early records, well mixed.

The records of the Town of Wells are at Wells Beach. These records are in very poor condition. They are not indexed and are fast going to pieces. When examined by me they were under the counter in a grocery store. They are quite full, so far as intentions of marriages are concerned. They have not many births or deaths. The Proprietors book has many transfers of land in it. These proprietors books should be collected from the towns and deposited at Alfred in the fireproof building there. All the early titles of land in the County depend on these records. Not only are the original grants found in them, but in many cases they contain the records of the later transfers. The Records of the First Parish of Wells are in excellent order and are very full. They give many infant baptisms. They are at Wells Beach.

At Arundel (Kennebunkport), I found the Records in a meat shop. These records are in very good condition. They are not very full.

PATRONYM AND ORIGIN OF THE GOLDTHWAITE FAMILY.

BY ROBERT GOLDTHWAITE CARTER, U. S. ARMY,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

THE name—Goldthwaite—is from Scandinavian gol, Sclav gola, a wood, and thveit, a clearing—a wood clearing. Thomas de Goldthwait would be, therefore, Thomas of the Wood-clearing. By dropping the "de," the name—although spelled in more than twenty ways, as Gowthwaite, Goldthate, Gouldthwaight, Goldthright, Gouldthait, etc., etc.,—finally became Goldthwait, and continued thus for many years after the family had become firmly established in this country. But by the addition of a terminal "e" it is now universally known in the United States as Goldthwaite. The emigrant ancestor was Thomas,[1] and the first official mention of his name is in the Mass. Colonial Records, June 14, 1631. He is there spoken of as Thomas Goilthayt.

There is but little doubt that he came from Yorkshire, England, and it is safe to assert that the family of Goldthwaite had its origin at or near Pateley Bridge, Nidderdale District, or the valley of the Nidd, York Co., England.

Several Goldthwaites are buried in the old churchyard at Pateley Bridge, and the old wills of the family thus far found point with great positiveness to the writer's assertion as to their origin. They were probably of Norman descent. In "Nidderdale and the Garden of the Nidd, a Yorkshire Rhineland," by Harry Speight, the well-known English author, is an intensely interesting and exceedingly valuable description of the beautiful Nidd Valley and all that surrounds and attaches to Pateley Bridge and Gowthwaite Hall, the ancient home of our Goldthwaite ancestors; and the following is largely a transcript and re-arrangement from the text of this charming work—almost in the language of the author—with some observations by the writer pertinent to the subject. Extracts from wills were furnished by Miss Charlotte Goldthwaite, Hartford, Conn., and the churchyard inscriptions at Pateley Bridge, through the kind and thoughtful consideration of Mr. Oliver C. Goldthwait, Carshalton, Surrey, Eng., who, strange to say, is perhaps the only living descendant bearing the name now living in England, and he is known to have come from American stock.

Early in the twelfth century the whole of Nidderdale excepting Bishopside (in the hands of the Archbishops of York), was in possession of the great Baron Roger de Mowbray. He and his grantees bestowed it upon the newly founded monastery of Fountains and the house of the Baron's foundation at Byland. The former held Brimham, Hartwith-cum-Winsley, Dacre, Bewerley, and the extensive township of Fountains Earth. While to Byland Abbey belonged, with a few reservations, the Forest of Nidderdale, comprised by the townships of Stonebeck Up and Stonebeck Down, extending from Bewerley along the west side of the valley northwards through Ramsgill and Middlesmoor, to where "heaven water falleth," between Wharfe and Nidd, and eastward to the junction with the lands of Fountains Earth, and the southwestern boundary of the Parish of Masham-Bishopside was included within the Liberty of St. Wilfred of Ripon, but the Archbishops of York retained all proprietary rights as manor lords, claiming all royalties, etc. When the name of Pateley Bridge was first given to this place is not ascertained, but it is so written, with variations, in the early Mowbray chapters. Of its antiquity there is no doubt, but the name does not appear in written records until the bridge was built on the site of the old Norman (Roman) ford.

Though always asserted to have been derived from Pate, a provincial name for the badger (an animal once very common in the Yorkshire dales), there is just a suspicion that the origin of the word is to be found in Pata, an eastern word signifying a city or fortified place. In the oldest deeds met with, the place is variously written Pathlay, Patalay, Padla, Padely, Pathelai, Petla, Petala, Patli, etc.

Passing Pateley Bridge, just to the north is "the picturesque district of Stonebeck Down;" this township extending from the Merryfield Beck on the south to How Stean on the north. The first object of note met with on leaving Heathfield, is Gowthwaite Hall, an interesting Elizabethan manor house, built by the family of Yorke, who long resided here, before Bewerley became their home. The house stands on or near the site of a still older homestead, occupied in the Norman centuries by a family named Goldthwaite or Gowthwaite, who probably derived their patronym from this place. In 1456 Thomas Golthate kept the Abbot of Fountains' sheep at Dacre. In 1480 John Golthate was the keeper of the lodge at Eastholme, and Robert Golthate, a descendant of this family, was a freeholder living at Pateley bridge in the middle of the last century. The old grange at Hayshaw, belonging to Fountains' Abbey, was pulled down long ago. At the suppression it was held in moieties by the family of Gill and Goldwathe, or Goldthwaite, the latter doubtless deriving its name from Golthwaite or Gowthwaite, in the township of Stonebeck Down near Pateley Bridge.

(1.) His family, no doubt, derived their name from Golthwaite or Gowthwaite, in Hyyefield forest, on the west side of Nidderdale, a place which had been essorted by the monks of Byland, and where the Yorkes built about the time of Queen Elizabeth, a picturesque mansion, of which a view may be seen in the second volume of Dr. Whitaker's Richmondshire. In 1456, William Colgwate or Golthwate held the onerous office of cook at Fountains Abbey with 20s. wages. At the same time Thomas Golthwat kept the Abbots sheep at Dacre. In 1480 John Goldthwaite was the keeper of the lodge of Esatholme house, and Robert Golthwaite of a part of new house. In 1481 was engaged with Richard Atkynson and John Myrre in the same service of Hayshay, but in the next year he was sole Keeper, as he remained in 1496—when his tenure was, 'ad voluntatem domini'—and he was bound to keep of the Abbot's store sixty cows and two bulls, and to return of the profits of the vaccary, yearly, eighty stones of cheese, forty stones of butter, and thirty shikets (strikets(?)). Also to keep two hundred sheep from Michaelmas to the 3d of May—the maintenance of which was to be worth 13s, 4d.—the return amounting to £11, 6s, 8d. The family long retained a respectable position in Nidderdale, and Francis Gowthwaite of Pateley Bridge, was a Freeholder there, a little more than a century ago."

MAIRE POINT PAPERS, NO. II.

MAIRE OR MARE POINT, BRUNSWICK, CUMBERLAND CO., MAINE.

It is evident that Thomas Reading or Reddan, was not a resident at the Point; but, from the above deed of Sears, he is shown to have owned land at Maire Point and elsewhere about the Bay. He was of Saco in 1653. He died in 1673 and left a widow Eleanor who, in 1673–4, 10 March, mortgaged to James Andrews of Falmouth, the lands of Thomas Redding in order to pay a mortgage given by said Thomas dated 1672, to John Sands, shopkeeper, of Boston. This was witnessed by James Lane. In 1680 she mortgages this same property, 200 acres bounded on land of James Lane to the eastward, to Mary Atwater, alias Higginson, the relict and executrix of Joshua Atwater, late of Boston, merchant. This deed was made at Salem.

John Redding of Waymouth, John Taylor of Boston and Joseph Donell of Casco Bay, and Ruth his wife, release the above to Mary Higginson, alias Atwater, widow, 1680.

NOTE. Willis, Vol. I, Me. Hist. Soc. Col., p. 209, states that Henry Donnell from York married a daughter of Thomas Reading, an early settler at Saco. who afterward settled in Casco Bay. Henry Donnell had sons Henry and Samuel, of York.

John Reding of Gloucester, fisherman, son and heir of Thomas Reding, formerly of Casco Bay, deceased, sells to Philemon Warner of Gloucester, blacksmith, 100 A. of land and 20 A. of marsh which Thomas Redding bought of Stephen Laraby and John Pain, lying in Casco Bay, bordering on "land point" so called northward, and on ye eastward side of Cosen's river. Dated 5 Jan., 1715. Signed by John and Jane Redding his wife, by mark. Acknowledged at Gloucester. Essex Deeds, vol. 29, 239.

John Reading of Gloucester died 17 Nov., 1716, aged 56. p. 261, Babson.

"Thomas Kimball's heirs claim a tract of land bott of John Sears att Casco, about Mare's point, with the marsh and an island adjoining, which land Sears bott of Thos. Rideing, deed dated 26 Aug., 1670." Sears Gen., page 571.

[There is no known connection between the Riddan or Reading family of Casco Bay, and Lynn or Marblehead, yet such is very likely the case, and therefore a short account of the Marblehead family is inserted here as a help to any future investigator.

Thaddeus Riddan, of Lynn, born about 1624; died in Marblehead 6 Jan., 1690–1. He was aged 60 in 1684. His wife was Elizabeth, daughter of Daniel King, Sr., and Elizabeth (Guy) of Lynn.

Thaddeus Riddan and Benj. Redknap were appointed appraisers of the estate of —— Anger of Black Point, Maine, who, wounded by the Indians, died at Marblehead 14 Oct., 1675. Children: Hannah, born and died, 1660; Sarah, twin with Hannah. Hannah, born 1662 married —— Dyar. John, born 3 Feb., 1664–5; died at Lynn, Sept., 1719. Mary. Abigail, born 1671; married —— Partridge. Perhaps others.

John Riddan, son of Thaddeus, owned a large estate in Marblehead. He married 12 March, 1693, Joanna, daughter of Thomas Hawkins.

Children: Thaddeus, baptized 13 May, 1694; died between 1746 and 1751; married 20 Sept., 1717, Sarah, daughter of James Prince. John, baptized 14 April, 1695; died 1756; married 24 Sept., 1724, Sarah, daughter of Michael and Sarah (Davis) Bowden of Lynn. Mary, baptized 31 Jan., 1696–7; married Robert Bond. Thomas, baptized 11 June, 1699, of Lynn; married Jerusha ——, who administered on his estate in 1774. Joseph, baptized 15 July, 1705. Elizabeth, baptized 27 March, 1709; married Humphrey Devereux. Hannah, married Aaron Bourne.]

QUERIES.

29. Kimballs of York Co., Me. Any information that will throw any light on the origin of this family will be very thankfully received by me. The facts so far as I have been able to ascertain them are as follows: Very early in the 18th century two Kimball families are found in the County; these were, to give them in order of appearance on the Records, the families of Caleb and Thomas Kimball. The first mention of Caleb that has been found is his marriage, as follows: Caleb Kimball of Wells, Me., and Susanna Cloyes were married June 15, 1704. Susanna was probably daughter of Nathaniel Cloyes of Wells. No record of their children has been found on the town books, but the following list is from the church records:

i. Nathaniel, baptized Sept. 9, 1705. He is wrongly given on the record as son of Nathaniel Kimball. The county records however show that he was the son of Caleb. He married April 7, 1726, Abigail Couzens.

ii. Richard, baptized March 25, 1706–7; married Catherine Couzens; married, second, Hannah Lord. Left descendants.

iii. Caleb, baptized May 22, 1709; married Sept. 29, 1738, Beriah Welsh.

iv. Susanna, baptized March 4, 1710; married (ints. July 27, 1733) Shadrick Watson.

v. Mary, baptized May 16, 1714.

vi. Joshua, baptized May 4, 1718; married June 12, 1742, Sarah Thompson. He went on the expedition to Cape Breton and died there.

vii. Samuel, baptized April 10, 1720.

viii. Benjamin, baptized Aug. 6, 1721; married Feb. 17, 1742–3, Lydia Morrison.

This Caleb and his sons were early settlers of the part of Wells that is now Kennebunk and the Falls at Kennebunk were owned in part by them for many years. Their descendants are very numerous.

The second family in the county was that of Thomas Kimball. The first notice of him appears on the court records on account of his not having been married as soon as he should have been. On the town records of York the following children of Thomas Kimball and Bethia Bragdon are given:

i. Thomas, born Nov. 28, 1710. He married Mary Goodwin, and moved to Wells about 1739; left a number of children.

ii. Abigail, born Dec. 29, 1713.

Bethia married, second, Charles White of York.

The question arises were Caleb and Thomas brothers, and if so whose sons were they. Were they sons of the Thomas Kimball who had a public house in Wells in 1690? If so, who was this Thomas? Was he a grandson of Richard of Ipswich? The grandchildren of Richard have almost without exception been traced. Thomas, the son of Thomas of Bradford, lived in Bradford all his life and the record in regard to him is full and complete. The family of Henry Kimball of Wenham is all accounted for except his son Benjamin. In the Wells family there is no mention of the name of Henry.

In an agreement made between the children of Richard Kimball of Wenham and his widow it is shown that he had eight children. We have the names of seven of these and can account for their movements. He had a son Thomas, who lived in Wenham and left a will in which his children are named. The records of the remaining sons of Richard[1] of Ipswich are very full. I will willingly give a copy of the Kimball family to any one who will solve this problem.

THE ORIGIN OF HERALDRY.

FROM A GUIDE TO THE STUDY OF HERALDRY.—BY J. A. MONTAGU, B.A.

THE publication of contemporary Rolls of Arms offers us another source which we may rely upon for correct armorial bearings. Four of these Rolls, or Collection of Arms, were published a few years ago by Sir H. Nicolas, accompanied by some excellent notes and introductory remarks. They consist of:—

First. A roll of arms which, from its internal evidence, ably commented upon by the editor, is undoubtedly of as early a date as Henry the Third, and was probably compiled between the years 1240 and 1245. The existence of the original roll is not known, the present publication being taken from a copy made by Robert Glover, Somerset Herald, between 1571 and 1588, whose reputation for correctness is well known. He states it to have been "an old roll of arms made and written in the reign or time of Henry the Third." It contains the names and arms of about two hundred and twenty of the principal landholders in England at that time. This is the earliest authentic collection of arms known, and is of the highest value to the lover of heraldry. Mr. Dallaway mentions a roll of arms of the time of Henry the Third, of the date 1220, but he is in error as to the date. The one he refers to is that of Edward the Second, mentioned hereafter.

Second. The Roll of Carlaverock, a poem written it is supposed by Walter of Exeter, a Franciscan friar, detailing the siege of a celebrated fortress in Scotland. It contains the accurate blazon of the arms of one hundred and five knights and bannerets of the time of Edward the First. Of its antiquity, the editor's remarks in the preface, the certificate of the transcriber, Robert Glover, Somerset Herald, and its internal evidence, afford pretty conclusive proof. Once satisfied of its authenticity, this poem affords us one of the best authorities we possess of the bearings of the persons therein mentioned. The correctness of the author is in nearly every instance confirmed by a comparison of the arms given in a nearly contemporary roll in the Cott. Bibl. Mus. Brit. Calig. A. XVIII, and the seals attached to the Barons' celebrated letter to the Pope in 1301.

Third. A roll of arms of the time of Edward the Second, made between the second and seventh years of that king's reign [1308–1314]. The evidences for this date are excellently set forth by the editor in the preface from a careful review of the contents of the roll. This is printed from the original manuscript in the Cottonian Library in the British Museum, marked Caligula A. XVIII. It is divided into counties, and contains the names and arms of about one thousand one hundred and sixty-five persons. The estimation in which this roll has been held, as an authority for arms, will be apparent (when we consider the little general interest the subject has) from this being the fourth time it has been printed. This edition of Sir H. Nicolas will, however, hold the first place, from the very valuable ordinary of the arms contained in the roll, which is printed with it.[1] A facsimile of the handwriting of the roll is given, which forms no slight addition to the evidence of its antiquity.

Fourth. A roll of arms compiled in the reign of Edward the Third, and apparently between the years 1337 and 1350. It contains the names and arms of nearly six hundred persons who were living at that period, and is written in the form of an ordinary. It is printed from a copy in the College of Arms, transcribed from the original in 1562 by Hugh Cotgrave, then Rouge-Croix Pursuivant, afterwards Richmond Herald. Nearly the same observations apply to this roll as were made upon that of Edward the Second. It may be received as a compilation of the time stated, and forms a valuable addition to our authorities for arms.

Mr. Willement, the author of "Regal Heraldry," published in 1834 a Roll of Arms of the time of Richard the Second, compiled between the years 1392 and 1397. It contains about six hundred names. Mr. Willement also published a few years since a work entitled "Heraldic Notices of Canterbury Cathedral," describing the arms, above eight hundred in number, so profusely scattered over that magnificent building. The numerous notes which accompany the blazon of the arms are of great interest, and evince much genealogical learning and research. By the industry of the same author we are also put in possession of a facsimile of a "Roll of Arms of the spiritual and temporal Peers who sat in Parliament held at Westminster 5 Feb. sixth of Henry VIII. A. D. 1515." It is curious as showing the style of heraldic illumination of the time.[1]

[1] For this addition the editor tells us he is indebted to his friend Joseph Gwilt, Esq.

The following references to some other rolls of arms may be found useful:—

Mr. Rowe Mores printed the arms in blazon of those who were with Edward the Third at the siege of Calais (most probably either from the copy existing in the Ashmolean Collection, Oxford, or from that in Cott. MS. Tiberius E. 9).

Nicholas Charles, Lancaster Herald, in the beginning of the seventeenth century, was very industrious in the collection of old rolls of arms and church notes. Those that follow, collected by him, are in Harl. MS. 6589.

1. A Roll of Arms of the time of Henry the Third, with this note, "This Roll on the other side was copied by the original which Mr. Norry lent me Añ Dm̃. 1607," signed Nicholas Charles. About six hundred and eighty coats.

2. "A copy of a very ancient role of wrought in coulours in parchement, in the time of King Edward y^e^ First, remaining in the custody of Mr. John Guiliams Portesmouth, who lent me the original," signed Nich. Charles. In number about one hundred and fifty.

[1] Beautiful specimens of heraldic illuminations are:—"Knights of the Order of the Saint Esprit," Harl. MS. 4037, and "Knights of the Golden Fleece," Harl. MS 6199.

3. "Ceux sont les Grantz Seigneurs à banniere que le Roy Edouard Premier puis le conquest avait per divers escose. L'an de son reigne XXVI^eme. à la Bataille de Fawkyrke à jour de Sainte Marie Magdalen."

"This Roll was brought from Paris in France by Andrew Thuet, Cosmographer, and was taken out of the treasury chamber at the palace in Paris aforesaid, where the records are kept, in the year 1576. At Paris the 10 of Sept." signed N. Charles, 1606. One hundred and twelve coats.

In the same volume are:—

Arms of those who were at the tournament at Dunstable, second of Edward the Second.

Those who were at the siege of Calais.

The Roll of Carlaverock, and several other collections of a similar nature.

In the Ashmole MS. No. 731, Oxford, is a Roll entitled "Les Noms et Armes de gentz mortz à Borge-brigge [Boroughbridge] le marsdye et le merkedy après le feste St. Gregoire l'an du regne le Roy Edvard filz du Roy Edvard, quinzieme, et furent counter le roi, Bannerets priz à Borgebrigge et ailleurs en mesme cet temps—et ceux furent treyney et penduz."

Some others will be found in the same collection.

Many ancient Rolls of Arms, such as those above described, no doubt exist in private collections, and it is to be regretted that the possessors do not make them common property by publication.

As instances of the authenticity of some of these Rolls, deduced from internal evidence, I may mention the following:—

In the poem of the Siege of Carlaverock, occurs the name of Hugh Bardolf, whose arms are there given, "Azure three cinquefeules or." This Hugh died in 1304, leaving two sons, Thomas, his heir, and William. Now in the Roll of Arms compiled between 1308 and 1314 no Hugh de Bardolf occurs; but we find Thomas de Bardolf bearing the same arms as those here given, and a William de Bardolf with the cinquefoils argent; a common method of differencing arms by a younger son.[1]

Henry Grey, in the poem, bears barry of six argent and azure. He died in 1308, leaving two sons, Richard and Nicholas. In the Roll of Edward the Second, of seven Greys mentioned, there is not one named Henry; but we find Richard Grey, to whom are ascribed the same arms as those in the poem; and Nicholas Grey the same arms with a bend gobonny or and gules. None of the other Greys in the Roll bear the plain arms without a difference. Immediately following the Richard above mentioned, is the name of John de Grey, bearing the same arms as Richard with a label, the usual difference of the eldest son. This Richard had a son named John, who was afterwards one of the founders of the Order of the Garter.

EMIGRATION IN 1753.[2]

NO. TEN ADVERTISEMENT.

Be it known to Every-Body, chiefly whom it concerns that we underwritten Passengers have contracted with Messrs. Isaac and Zachary Hope, merchants in Rotterdam, we contracting by these Presents for us and our Families.

First.

The said Messrs Isaac and Zachary Hope shall furnish us with a good tight and commodious ship that sails well, and cause us to be transported on Board the said ship to Philadelphia or Pensilvania. Fixed Bed-Rooms or Cabins[3] are to be made in the ship six Feet long and one and a half broad for every whole Freight.

[1] See Lansdowne MS. 872, in Mus. Brit. "De origine et antiquitate armorum sive insignorum gentilitium eorundemque differentiis et distinctionibus, requisitis R. Glover. Feciales Regii." A most valuable work on the differences of arms.

[2] About this time strenuous efforts were made to attract Germans to Massachusetts.

[3] A berth was formerly called a cabin.

Secondly

The said Messrs Isaac and Zachary Hope are to victual the ship with every good Provisions, vizt Good Bread, Beef, Bacon, Flour, Rice, Barly, Pease, syrup, Butter, Cheese, Beer, good fresh Water, and other necessaries; The ship is to be purified twice a Day with Vinegar and Juniper Berries to cause fresh Air, and every whole Freight shall daily receive as follows:

Sundays, One Pound of Beef boiled with Rice.

Mondays, Barly and Syrup

Tuesdays, One Pound of Flour of Wheat

Wednesdays, One Pound of Bacon with Pease

Thursdays, One Pound of Beef boiled with Rice

Fridays, One Pound of Flour of Wheat, and one Pound of Butter.

Saturdays, One Pound of Bacon, one Pound of Cheese, and six Pounds of Bread for the whole Week.

Every Day one Quart of Beer (as long as it remains drinkable) and two Quarts of Water for every whole Freight.

Whoever desires Brandy shall receive the same every morning, and such as love Tobacco shall have one Pound for their Journey at their setting out.

Thirdly

The under-written Passengers shall have Liberty (in Time of fair weather) to dress Victuals for themselves and their little children, and for that Purpose to make use of the Fire from six o'clock in the morning to six at Night, and to be on Deck; such as are sick shall especially be entitled to have the Use of Fire and Water as often as they desire it; all sorts of Spices and Wine shall be put on Board the Ship to be used for their Refreshment, in order to take the better care of the Sick.

On the other Hand Promise we the underwritten Passengers, to pay to Messrs Isaac and Zachary Hope in Rotterdam, or Order, for the Transport of our Person, Baggage, and Houshold Goods, from Rotterdam to Philadelphia and Pen-silvania the sum of Seven and an Half Spanish Pistoles; that is to say, for every Whole Freight, and all our Goods shall be put ashore and delivered to us, without our being obliged to pay any Thing on that Account to the Ship's Crew.

Freights are to be judged in the following Manner: Chilren under four Years pay nothing, those of four Years to Fourteen pay half the sum above mentioned, and such as are fourteen and upwards the whole Freight.

In case any Body should be willing to transport us altogether at a less Price, the said Messrs Isaac and Zachary Hope, engage themselves to do the same, unless it should evidently appear that such an Offer is made with no other View than to vex the said Messrs Isaac and Zachary Hope, in which Case they propose to give up the Contract, provided the Person that offers to transport the Passengers at a cheaper Rate, makes good to Messrs Isaac and Zachary Hope the expenses they have been at before the People were brought together.

We promise on both sides Sincerity to fulfil the foregoing Articles, engaging our Persons and Goods for the Performance of this Agreement signed with our own Hands.
Done at

I. C. Sprüng,
Commissary from Rotterdam.

P. S.

We give Notice, that without prejudicing others, we have this Year in some Points made an Alteration in our Contract: the Reason why and in What Manner the same is mended is, that new Merchants, who never before were engaged in transporting of People have ordered the Contract to be drawn up.

In what Manner the Amendment is made, will appear by the following:

Forasmuch we old merchants, who have caused People to be transported these twenty years and upwards, have found by Experience that Bacon and Flesh is very much salted, which is the Occasion of Scurvy and other Diseases; and for as much We Know, that the Germans are brought up more to the use of fresh Provisions than Salt-Meat, We therefore are willing to let our Passengers have two or three Times per week fresh Provisions, which will depend from every one's Choice.

This is the Agreement according to what every Body is treated on Board the Ship that is to transport him.

Whoever therefore is willing, of his own accord, with the Consent of his Superiors, to go to this new Country, may be assured, that he will be then at full Liberty, free from all Taxes for ever. Such as are inclined to repair thither, may apply to the above said Commissary I. C. Sprüng who is arrived from Holland and impowered by Messrs Isaac and Zachary Hope, Merchants in Rotterdam, to engage some Hundreds of People, and to conduct them, with the Blessings of God, next Year to Pensilvania. They may apply to him at Heilbron at .....

or in his Absence get themselves registered by .....

They are to prepare themselves to be ready for their Departure in April, 1753, at which Time they are expected to be present in Heilbron.

They may also apply in Reutlingen to .....

Or in Eslingen to .....

Or in Wimpsen to .....

BOOK NOTES.

A brief sketch of Thomas Fuller and his descendants, with historical notes by J. F. Fuller, Appleton, Wis., 1896. This little book of 47 pages is practically the ancestral line of Mr. Fuller, but so arranged as to be of value to any Fuller descended from Thomas of Woburn and Salem, a fairly complete catalogue of his descendants for three or four generations being given. The parentage of Thomas the first is unknown, and no early instance of the use of the coat of arms, shown in the book, is quoted by the author, who merely says, "these arms have been long in the family."

History of the Town of Manchester, Mass., 1645–1895, by Rev. D. F. Lamson. Published by the Town. 8vo, cloth, pp. 425.

This history is rather a collection of interesting and truthful sketches in the life of the town. The very reading of the account of a Puritan Sabbath, in the appendix, leaves a peaceful, soothing impression, upon one. But we fear Dr. Lamson has not studied the court records of this period and appreciated the fact that even the stern discipline of the Puritan church and state was not all sufficient. Frequently the laws which the author quotes as showing the care their deputies had for the welfare of the people, are prefaced with some such phrase "ye sin of drunkenness doth greatly abound," showing that there was probably cause enough for many of the stringent laws that were passed. But little genealogical material is found between the covers, which is much to be deplored.

The illustrations are very numerous and will be much appreciated. An account of the 250th anniversary is annexed.

Boardman Genealogy, 1525–1895. The English home and ancestry of Samuel Boreman of Weathersfield, and Thomas Boreman of Ipswich, etc., etc., by Charlotte Goldthwaite. Published by Wm. F. J. Boardman, Hartford, 1895. Illustrated. 8vo, pp. 778.

This excellent genealogy, while intended for descendants of Samuel Boreman, or as the name is now spelled, Boardman, is due to the generosity of Wm. F. J. Boardman of Hartford, and to the energetic and conscientious work of Miss Goldthwaite. A very interesting sketch of the English home, and the English ancestry is given. By this it appears that Thomas Boreman of Banbury, co. Oxon, in 1525, was the common ancestor of Thomas and Daniel of Ipswich, and Samuel of Weathersfield. Thomas and Daniel were brothers, and second cousins of Samuel, on the father's side, but their fathers had married sisters, daughters of Felix Carter, which formed a double connection. Considerable space is devoted to cataloguing the heads of other New England Boardman families beside that of Samuel, but no attempt to give a genealogy beyond three or four generations, and this concisely put. Many original papers are published and interesting biographies are presented.

Thomas Boardman (Thos., Thos.), is said to have married Sarah Gurley. This follows the Rowley record, but she was Sarah Girdler, widow (Essex Deeds, 85, 202). It is to be hoped some one will now take up the Ipswich line and prepare a suitable genealogy of that family, of which there appear to be three main stems, that of Ipswich, of Topsfield, and of Newburyport.

QUERIES.

30. Gowing. The subscriber would like to hear from all persons interested in the genealogy of the Gowing, Going or Gowen family.

Robert H. Gowing, Peabody, Mass.

31. Manning. Information of the following persons is desired, and any aid from those having old records, or from other investigators, will be thankfully received.

Samuel Manning, born 19 June, 1698, at Salem; married Margaret ——. What was her maiden name, and what her ancestry? When and where was she born? When did she die? Samuel was a gunsmith at Salem until 1748, when he removed to Oxford, where he died in 1774. His will mentions his granddaughters Sarah and Elizabeth Manning, of Salem, whose history I should be glad to know; his granddaughter, the widow Hannah Weld; his great grandsons, Samuel, Mathew and Robert Martin, and his grandsons, Samuel and Robert Manning, who had accompanied him to Oxford. The will does not mention any of the elder Samuel's children, from which fact it is believed all were then deceased; and, as no list of said children has been found on record, their names are unknown with one exception (that of Robert, who married Hannah Green). What other children did Samuel and Margaret have? If the following were not their children, who were they? (a), Jacob Manning and Mary Tyler, Salem, married 2 July, 1745; (b), Richard Manning and Eleanor Mitchell, at Boston, intention of marriage 27 Feb., 1737–8. Who were Jacob and Richard? What children did they have?

Robert Manning and Hannah Green, mentioned above, were married at Salem, 30 March, 1738. What children did they have? When and where did the parents die? It is probable that they lived in, or near, Salem.

Weld–Martin. Mention has been made above of these two families. What were the children of the marriages there indicated?

John Manning, born at Salem 28 May, 1668 (son of Capt. Nicholas and Elizabeth [Gray] Manning), was living in Boston in 1721, and was doubtless the same who married Joanna Lash, 9 May, 1695. What children did he have?

Jacob Manning, of earlier date than the Jacob before mentioned. Dr. Savage says [Vol. III, page 650]: "Jacob, Salem, son of Return, was deputy marshal in the doleful service of 1692." Where is the proof of this? Return's surname was properly Munnings, not Manning, and I find no son of his named Jacob. Was not the deputy marshal the same Jacob (son of widow Anstiss Manning), who married Sarah Stone, of Salem, in 1683?

Katherine Manning, born 22 April, 1701, at Salem, married 26 Oct., 1722, John Berry; had children, I think, Mary, who married Samuel Ives, and Katherine, who married John Turner, Jr. What other children did they have?

Mary Manning, sister of the previous, born 6 July, 1706, is said in a modern MSS. (the origin of which I have not learned) to have married George Booth and had children, Robert, Jacob, Elizabeth, Sarah and Richard; and possibly this is true, but I find a Mary Manning who married Benjamin Silsby, 1730 (published 21 May), and, further, one John Booth married, 28 Feb., 1749–50, a Mary Silsby who, I suspect, but do not know, was widow of Benjamin. What was Mary's true history?

Priscilla Manning, Ipswich, born 26 Oct., 1740; married Thomas Morong, of Salem, and, second, —— Heath; and had by first husband, Jonathan (baptized 11 Nov., 1764) and Thomas, Jr. Were there other children by either marriage?

John Manning married Elizabeth Stone 28 Oct., 1769; perhaps both of Salem. Who was he? Can he have been a son of Jacob and Mary (Tyler) Manning, before mentioned? When and where did John die? Did he have children? Was she the widow Elizabeth Manning who married Wm. Reed, 18 Feb., 1777?

William T. Manning, a soldier of the Revolution, died at Beverly, 1 June, 1838. He left a widow, Betsey, and daughters: Betsey, married —— Homan; Mary, married —— Patch, and Alice, married —— Cox. I am informed that William's middle name was Taylor (or? Tyler) which may point to family connection, and that his wife was Elizabeth Woodbury, to whom he was married (at Salem?) 28 Feb., 1787. I presume this is correct. What was William's parentage? and are there descendants now living?

Caleb Manning, born about 1746, lived at Charlestown, Medford and Salem; married Rachel Rand and had children, Nathaniel, Caleb, Abigail, Mary and Elizabeth. Were there others? Caleb, Jr., married Lois Graves, 16 April, 1801, at Salem, where both died, she in 1807, he in 1810. Who was Lois? What children did they have? and what became of them? Are there living descendants of the elder Caleb?

WM. H. MANNING,
Care of L. I. Historical Society. Brooklyn, N. Y.

32. BARNES. Information desired of Henry Barnes, merchant, of Marlboro and Boston. Loyalist and refugee; died at Bristol, Eng., in 1808; wife's name Christian ——. Wanted her surname. He or she was related to the Arbuthnots in some way. Can any body give this relationship? His sister, Elizabeth, married Nathaniel Coffin of Boston, whose sons were Sir Isaac Coffin, Bart., Admiral of the British navy, and Sir John Coffin, Lt. Gen. of the British army. Are there any descendants of Henry Barnes living?

33. MONROE–HUTCHINSON. Deacon Isaac Monroe (Wm., George, William), married Mary Hutchinson (Thos., Sam'l, Nath'l, George), of Charlestown. He died in 1791. Did any of the ancestors of the above Isaac and Mary serve in the Colonial wars? Did any of their ancestors serve as deputies or hold other civil office? B. A. L.

34. BISSELL. What was the lineage of Elizabeth Bissell, who married Capt. Abraham Fitch, of Lebanon, Ct., a Revolutionary soldier and veteran of the French war, who was born in 1737?

HUNTINGTON. What was the lineage of Hannah Huntington who, about 1730, married Capt. Nathan Fitch of Lebanon, Ct., grandson of Rev. James Fitch, first minister of Norwich, Ct., and the son of Capt. Nathaniel Fitch and his wife [born Anna Abel]?

36. HINCKLEY–THROOP. How was Rev. Charles Hinckley of Lebanon, Ct., who married Elizabeth Throop, descended from Governor Hinckley of Plymouth? Also how was his father-in-law Rev. Benjamin Throop of Bozrat, Ct., descended from Col. Adrian Scrope the regicide?

37. Scrope. What was the ancestry of Col. Scrope, the regicide? whom did he marry?

38. Hubbard–Harris. What was the lineage of Sarah Hubbard Harris, who married Lt. William Calkins, born 1724, a great grandson of Deacon Hugh Calkins of New London and Norwich, Ct.?

39. Craft. Who was the wife and who was the mother of Samuel Craft who died at Brookline, Mass., 1771, aged seventy?

40. Deane. Where can information be had concerning Dr. Thomas Deane and Woodbridge Deane of Exeter, N. H., or Newbury, Mass.? The former married Deborah Clark, and they were the parents of Jane Deane, wife of Major John Gilman, Jr., of Exeter, N. H.

41. Gage. Any one by the name of Gage, or descendants of John Gage who came to Salem in 1630, are requested to write and send any information concerning their ancestry or whatever may be of historical interest, either personal or otherwise, to Mrs. Mate David, Ipava, Ill.

42. Who was the wife of Charles Gott, Salem, Mass., who came in the Abigail with Endicott, 1628; removed to Wenham 1654; died 1658?

43. Allen Breed, 2nd, born 1621; married Mary (who?), Lynn, Mass.

44. Solomon Keyes, 2nd, born 1665, Newbury or Chelmsford; married, first, Mary; second, Priscilla. Who was Priscilla?

Zebadiah Keyes, son of Solomon and Priscilla; married Mary (who?).

Daniel Keyes, son of Zebadiah, born 1741; married Abiel or Abbiel (who?).

45. Thomas Morris of New Haven, one of the signers of the Plantation Covenant in 1628 or 1639, married Elizabeth (who?).

46. Richard Knowles of Plymouth, 1653, married Ruth Bower. Who were her parents?

Thomas Knowles of Eastham, married Elizabeth Snow, 1724.

Was she the daughter of Jabez Snow and wife Elizabeth, or of Thomas and Hannah Snow?

47. Who was Elizabeth, the wife of Jabez Snow? Who was Hannah, the wife of Thomas Snow?

48. Who were the parents of Elizabeth (or Betsey Adams), born Oct. 22, 1786, Sudbury or East Sudbury; married Smith Adams of Newton, Mass., August 30, 1810?

49. George Henry Snelling of Boston, a member of the N. E. Hist.-Gen. Society, who died at Newport, R. I., Jan. 18, 1892, aged ninety-one, had in his possession about 1872, perhaps later, several letters written by Thomas Goldthwait to Jonathan Snelling (?) during or subsequent to the Revolutionary war.

He is supposed to have deposited them with some unknown person, library, or society for safe keeping, probably at Newport, where he resided some years before his death. Any information concerning them, or that will lead to their recovery, will be gratefully appreciated, by

R. G. Carter,

50. i. Joseph Parkhurst of Chelmsford, Mass., married 1656, June 26, at Concord, Mass., a Rebecca Read. Can any one give the date of her birth and death, and the names of her parents?

ii. John Spaulding of Chelmsford, Mass., married 1638, May 18, a Hannah Hale. Can any one give the date of her birth and the names of her parents? Hannah died 1689, Aug. 14, where?

iii. Timothy Parkhurst of Plainfield, Conn., married 1717, Jan. 14, an Elizabeth Cady. She was born 1698, Nov. 17; died 1792, Dec. 27. Can any one give the names of her parents? It would appear that she was of Chelmsford, and a descendant of Nicholas Cady; but through which son cannot be ascertained.

iv. Jonathan Parkhurst of Plainfield, Conn., married, 1761, May 12th, a Judith Wilson; she was born 1737, July 18; died 1816, Oct. 27. Can any one give the names of her parents, grandparents, etc.?

v. Timothy Parkhurst of Plainfield, Conn., married 1791, Nov. 24, a Hannah Walker; she was born 1767 (about); died 1802, July 23. Can any one give the names of her parents, grandparents, etc.?

ANSWER.

22. Bowen. See the interesting account of Griffith Bowen, of Boston. By Edward Augustus Bowen, Esq., of Woodstock, Conn., in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. xlvii, October, 1893, page 453 to 459.

"Griffith Bowen, by wife Margaret Fleming, had Margaret, born in Wales. She was, perhaps, the eldest child. She married, 24 December, 1647, John Weld of Roxbury. He was born in England, 28 October, 1623; died in Roxbury, 20 September, 1691. She died 13 September, 1692."

SOME NOTES ON THE DOLLIVER, DOLLIBER, DOLLABER, DALLIBER, DOLIBER, DOLOVOR, DOLEVER, ORIGINALLY, DALYBER FAMILIES.[1]

By William H. Dolliver.

Parthus defines the name, as Welsh. He says, the family originated in a valley, or dale, in North Junterice, Wales, from which the name was derived. New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. 48, page 128, has the following will: Robert Dalyber of Selietto in the Parish of Stoke Abbott, Dorset, Yeoman 20 March 1632. Proved 27 Mar, 1633. To be buried in Church Yard, at Stoke Abbot, before the church porch, near the place, my Father was buried, between the Porch, and the Thorn, there. my will, and desire is, to have a Tomb, set over me. The Poor, and Church, remembered. I give to my son, Tristram Daliber. Imprimis. To my son, Samuel, Dito. To my son Joseph. "To my Daughters, Mary, and Sara Doliber, and to my youngest daughter, Rebecca Daliber." To my sons in law, Walter Burt, and John Lesty. Josiah, son of Walter Burt. Three sons of John Lesty, viz., John, Edward and William. My wife—the residue, to my oldest son, Robert, who I make sole executor.

Of Robert, the eldest son, I have learned nothing. Tristram, the second son, bap[d] at Saint Mary's church, Stoke Abbot 1598 (N. E. Hist. & Gen. Reg.), was in America among the earliest settlers. In 1648, I find he was again at Stoke Abbot, England. (See letters to John Balch and William Woodbury. N. E. Hist. & Geneal. Reg.) Again, he writes from Stoke Abbot, 1656, England. In Register, Vol. 6, p. 251, is recorded, under heading of Old Norfolk and Essex settlers, the death of Tristram Doliber, July 3, 1664. Also, a Joseph Doliber, 1669, aged 40. This may have been the son of Tristram, by the wife who died in America previous to 1648. It was this wife about whom Tristram writes to Woodbury and Balch, requesting to be sent him the day and date of her death, under the signature of Mr. Indecot. Rev. Mr. Gourley's answer to Mr. W. E. Trask's letter, states Tristram was published at Saint Mary's, Stoke Abbott, 1657, to Miss Sarah Pavie. I can give no further information in regard to Tristram or his descendants.[2]

Samuel, son of Robert, was at Marblehead, 1647, and no doubt at Salem, several years previous. He had wife at Marblehead, name not known, by whom he had a son Joseph, and daughters Dorothy and Rebecca by a former wife. Samuel was bap^{d} at Saint Mary's, 1608. He was one of the selectmen of Marblehead, at the incorporation of that town, 1648.[3]

In the old records of Marblehead, I find Dorothy Doliber married John Waldron; it was the first marriage recorded at that place. I have never learned anything further in reference to her.

Joseph Dolovor (as it is spelled in R. I. records) had a wife Rachel. They had, born in Greenwich, R. I., Joseph Dolovor, born ——; died 1707, unmarried. William Dolovor, born ——; died 1730. John Dolovor, born ——. Rebecca Dolovor, born ——, who married Peleg Card. Lydia Dolovor, born ——, who married —— Parker. Sara Dolovor, born ——, who married Joseph Johnson. Mary Dolovor, born ——, who married —— Huling. Abigail Dolovor, who married, first, —— King; second, Nathaniel Niles. Joseph, the father, died 1733, calling himself very aged; this man signed, in the settlement of his father's estate, 1684, as the "eldest son, now of Narragansett, formerly of Gloucester;" his wife died 1733. Arnold's Vital Records of R. I., gives several persons, named Dolliver, who, no doubt, sprang from this man; perhaps they were the founders of the Dollivers, of Nova Scotia, where I find many of the name. The dates of births of these children are not given.

Among the Dollivers of Nova Scotia are Mr. Elisha Dolliver (the Nova Scotia family spelled the name the same as the Gloucester family), a prominent shipwright of Port Meday, who has given me, what information they have, in regard to this family. He says, as far as he can find out, one Gamaliel[4] Dolliver settled in Yarmouth, N. S., long before the Revolutionary war. He thinks, the maternal ancestor of that family, was a Ruth Briggs. Mr. Dolliver is the fourth, bearing the name of Elisha, and he was born 1819. I also find several women named Ruth Briggs; Arnold's Vital Records show of several by that name.

Rebecca, daughter of Samuel by his first wife, married, in Gloucester, Richard Dike. They had a large family of children, all of whom either died or left the place. No individual, bearing the name, has been on Gloucester records, for at least, the last hundred years.

The first mention of Samuel Doliver, in Gloucester, I find as follows: June 29, 1652. Thomas Milliard, of Newbury, formerly of Glouster, fisherman, sells to Samuel Doliber, of Marblehead, husbandman, my farm, situate in Fresh Water Cove, in Gloster, about 40 Acrs of Tilliage, and Ten Acrs of marsh.

In August, 1654, Samuel[1] Doliver married, Mary, daughter of Robert Elwell, of Gloster. They had: William[2] Dolliver (so recorded), born Aug. 16, 1656; who, Mr. Babson, the Gloucester historian, says: married Ann, daughter of Rev. John Higginson. He also says they had children; neither marriage nor births of children are on record, in Gloucester.[5]

[4] I find in R. I. records, an Ishmael Dolover, who was at East Greenwich, before 1700.

[5] Rev. John Higginson in his will, dated 1705, mentions his daughter Dolliver's children, viz., Sarah, Peter, Paul.

Anne Dolliver was non compos mentis in 1696, when her father calls her about fifty years old. In 1713 she was living in the family of Mrs. Sarah Bishop of Rehoboth, formerly of Salem.—E. P.

I find in Salem records, a deed in trust, to John Higginson merchant, of Salem, Rev. M^r. John Emmerson, Pastor, of the 1^st Church of Christ, at Gloster, and John Cooke, mariner of Gloster, to William and Ann Dolliver, of a house, and half acre of land, for her use and after her death to the legal heirs of the body of Ann Dolliver. This deed was given by Chas. Redford and wife Eliz^b., of Salem, and is dated, March 16, 1687–1688. The said house and land was formerly the property of William Elwell.

Gloster, June 4, 1674.

Given, to Joseph Elwell, 5 acrs, of ground, and bounded by the lot layers. and lays upon the south side, of the five acrs, given to William Ellery at the same time. (See Gloucester Commoners' records, and original grants of land.)

The reader will see my reasons for being so particular about the above, when he gets further on in my record.

Samuel[2] Dolliver, son of Samuel and Mary, born July 9, 1658, I find mentioned in Gloucester records, as a witness to deed of Peter Duncan, 16—; he is not mentioned in the settlement of his father's estate, 1684.

Mary[2] Dolliver, daughter of Samuel, born March 26, 1662; married John Sanders, who is supposed to be the son of the widow Mary, and was supposed to have been lost at sea, leaving one son, John; of her I know no more.

Richard[2] Dolliver, son of Samuel and Mary, born April 18, 1665; married in Gloucester, Nov. 5, 1697, Agnes Bennett. They had Mary[3] Dolliver, born 1699, who married William Davis of Gloucester.[6] Sarah[3] Dolliver, born ——; died young. Hannah[3] Dolliver, born 1703; she married Josiah Grover of Gloster. Rebecca[3] Dolliver, born 1705; married Joseph Cowherd of Gloucester. This name is not found in Gloucester records after the marriage; they have no children accredited to them. Sarah[3] Dolliver, born 1708; married Jacob Rowe; he was one of the crew of the colonial sloop Merry Meeting from 24 August to 13 December, 1722.

[6] A Rachel Dolliver married a William Davis, of R. I., May 23, 1732. Records E. G., R. I., Vol. 1, page 118.

Richard, the father, lived on the farm which his father bought of Milliard.

Sarah[2] Dolliver, daughter of Samuel[1] and Mary, born Dec. 24, 1667; married Joseph Killum of Gloster; she died at the age of twenty-one years. They had one daughter Sarah, died young.

John[2] Dolliver, son of Samuel[1] and Mary, born May 27, 1671; married Nov. 1, 1700, Susanna Marriner of Gloucester. They had: John[3] Dolliver, born 1702, who was drowned in Ipswich river at the age of fourteen years. Susanna[3] Dolliver, born 1704; she married James Dike, her cousin. Mrs. Dolliver died and Mr. Dolliver married for second wife Elizabeth Wood. They had Anna[3] Dolliver, born May 26, 1708, who married Daniel Fuller of Ipswich. Elizabeth[3] Dolliver, born Nov. 20, 1711; went with her father to North Yarmouth. Samuel[3] Dolliver, born 1716; went to North Yarmouth. William[3] Dolliver, born Sept. 22, 1724. John[3] Dolliver, born 1721; these last two also went with the family to North Yarmouth and at that place married women named Mayo or Mawhew. This whole family left Gloucester 1725 and took up land at North Yarmouth, Maine.

Samuel Dolliver the elder died in Gloucester 1684; his wife, Mary Elwell, married again to one James Gardner of Gloucester, but lived only a short time; she died 1686.

Joseph Dalliber, son of Robert of Stoke Abbot, also came to America and was at Salem very early. He also settled at Marblehead, where he was a constable 1648, and also the collector of church rates (History of Marblehead). He had[7] by wife Margarett (who perhaps may have been the daughter of John Peach, senior, of Marblehead), John Doliber, Joseph Doliber, Peter Doliber, Thomas Doliber, Hannah Doliber, Mary Doliber, Rebecca Doliber.

[7] See will of Joseph, Salem, Mass., 1688.
[8] Marblehead Records.

Peter[2] Doliber,[8] of Marblehead, married Mary Ward. He died 1698, leaving at least two children, Margarett,[3] who married a Curtis of Marblehead, and Peter[3] Doliber, who was a minor 1706, and appointed his honored mother Mary Waters (Mrs. Doliber became the wife of William Waters of Marblehead, 1699), his guardian (Probate Court Records). I think he was the Peter Doliber who died unmarried 1736, and his sister Margarett Curtis settled his estate.

I find a Peter Doliver's (so spelled on stone) tombstone in the old graveyard at Marblehead who died 1808. The records of Marblehead state a Peter Doliber and Mary Dennis married 1722; had son Peter born 1724–5. This I think was their son. The records at the above town state a Peter Doliber died 1736, another, same name, died 1746. A Peter Dolliver (so spelled, letters received from grandson), of this family I think, died in South West Harbor, Mount Desert, Maine; he was a revolutionary soldier in General Glover's regiment.

The family of Dollivers (letter from Pilsbury Coombs Dolliver), living at Searsport, Maine, and also at Augusta, now of Boston, are descendants of the Nova Scotia Dollivers. The Dolliver brothers of San Francisco, Cal., are from the Marblehead Dolibers (letter received from Clara G. Dolliver), as are also the Dollivers of Minneapolis (letter received from William Dolliver) and Buffalo, N. Y. The ancestry of the Dollivers, of Worcester and Wakefield, Mass., (letters received from E. and Horatio Dolliver), I have been unable to locate.

FROM GLOUCESTER TOWN AND CHURCH RECORDS.

William Dolliver died 1772 in Gloucester, whom the Columbia Sentinal of that date speaks of as a Capt. William Dolliver dying at an advanced age.

Parson Chandler, of the First Church at Gloucester, in his diary says: April 2, 1752. Mr. Dolliver died last night. And, again, April 10, 1756, went to see Widow Dolliver, aged —. She is declining fast.

1707–8, Paule[1] Dolever is first mentioned in Gloucester records. This on boundary line of Richard Dolliver. He was a cooper and married in Gloucester, Feb. 11, 1713, Mary, daughter of Josiah Wallis. He died about 1749; she died 1736. They had Mary[2] Dolliver (so recorded), born Nov. 5, 1713. Sarah[2] Dolliver, born May 1, 1716; and died young. Anna [2]Dolliver, born Aug. 31, 1719. Another Sarah[2] Dolliver, born October 12, 1723. Paul[2] Dolliver, born March 4, 1728. I have been unable to find whom the daughters married.

Paul,[2] married Feb. 29, 1748-9, Rachel Barber, daughter of Daniel and Rachel (Baker) Barber of Gloucester. They had Daniel[3] Dolliver, born 1753; died 1765. Paule,[3] born ——; died young. Anna[3] Dolliver, born Sept. 18, 1755; married, first, Capt. John Colson, who was lost in the Privateer Gloucester, 1776; she married for second husband Capt. John Somes; no children. She died April 13, 1846, aged 90.

Rachel[3] Dolliver, born Feb. 10, 1758; married Abraham Sawyer of Gloucester, Sept. 26, 1784. They had Rachel[4] Sawyer, who married, first, Samuel Elwell of Gloucester, and, second, Cyrus Stevens. Charles[4] Sawyer, who married Sally Corliss. Harriet[4] Sawyer, who married General John Webber.

Mary[3] Dolliver, born Aug.16, 1760; married Aaron Parsons of Gloucester, 1784. They had Aaron[4] Parsons, born 1790; died unmarried. Nancy[4] Parsons, born 1784; died unmarried. Winthrop[4] Parsons, born 1795; died 1873, aged 78; married Susan Riggs of Gloucester; they had son Aaron[5] Parsons, born May 4, 1844.

Paul Dolliver was a ship-master; died on his passage home from the West Indies, Aug. 17, 1760. Rachel, his wife, died in Gloucester, June 15, 1820, aged 89 years. In this family was a book mark which was presented to the city of Gloucester by Samuel E. Sawyer, and is hung in the Public Library, engraved with the name of Dolliver.

PETER DOLIVER AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

Peter[1] Doliver. The first mention of this man is in the following deed, book 22, leaf 63, Salem Essex Registry Deeds South District:

Thomas Sanders to Peter Doliver,

Recorded April 1, 1710.

To all christian people to whome this present deed of sale shall come. Thomas Sanders of Gloucester in the County of Essex, New England, shipwright, sendeth greeting:

Know Yee, that the said Thomas Sanders, for and in consideration, of Seventeen Pounds, Ten Shillings current, and passable money, of New England, to him in hand paid to satisfaction, before the ensealing of and delivery of these presents, by Peter Doliver, of said Gloucester, in the county aforesaid, Cooper—a certain parcel of upland, situated in said Gloucester, containing about one acre, be it more, or be it less, and is bounded, Eastwardly, by land now in the possession of Widow Ellery. Westerly, by land of William Sergant the second, of said Gloucester. Northwardly by common land, belonging to said Gloucester. Southwardly, partly by said Dollivers, own Land. (See Commoners Grant to Joseph Elwell and Wm. Ellery.)

The remainder of this deed, I will not insert here, as it is of no importance, excepting to show that Peter[1] Doliver, was the owner of land, previous to the buying of the above, which is dated, the Seventeenth day, of February, Anno Dom. One Thousand, Seven Hundred, and Seven, Eight (1707–8.) The above bounds correspond to the bounds of the property of Wm. and Ann Dolliver, and the abuttors Ellery; and land of Elwell's, which was purchased for Wm. and Ann, looks to me, to be the same as the above Dolliver's own land. Peter Doliver was not granted common land; it is not so recorded, and no other deed is on record, showing that he bought land. Then, certainly, he must have inherited it, and if this is so, he was a son of William and Ann (Higginson) Dolliver. He was no doubt, then, the M[r]. Dolliver, of Parson Chandler's diary, who died 1752; and it looks to me, as if the Capt. W^m., who died 1772, and the Paul, who died 1749, were his brothers.

Peter[1] Dolliver (whom I shall call the son of Peter Dolliver of the deed of 1707–8) married, in Gloucester, Jan. 25, 1722, by the Rev. John White, pastor of the First Church of Gloucester, Abigail, daughter of Capt. Thomas and Abigail (Corney) Sanders, daughter of Capt. John and Abigail (Skilling) Corney. Abigail Sanders was born in Gloucester, 1705. Thomas Sanders, her father, was born in England, 1675; his wife, Abigail Corney, was born in Boston, 1677. Captain Corney was married in Gloucester, Nov. 18, 1670. (I commence my record from the above Peter who married Abigail Sanders, 1722; perhaps some of the younger members of the family may eventually connect him with the family of Samuel Dolliver.) Capt. Thomas Sanders commanded the sloop Merry Meeting, and was in the employ of the colonial government until his death in 1742. (See Mass. Archives, 1722, 1724, 1725, also Louisburg expedition.)

Children of Peter and Abigail:

William[2] Dolliver, born in Gloucester, June 17, 1724. He married Dec. 5, 1745, Mary, daughter of Jabez Marchant. They had son William[3] Dolliver, who died young. Mary, the wife, died, and Captain[2] Dolliver married, May 14, 1759, Abigail, daughter of Thomas Sanders, second (his cousin), who was lieutenant with his father in the Merry Meeting, and took command after his father died 1742. He was in government employ until his death, October 24, 1774. Her mother was Judith, daughter of Capt. Andrew Robinson, born 1679, and his wife Rebecca Ingersoll. Capt. William[2] Dolliver had by Abigail, son

William[3] Dolliver, born Feb. 15, 1762. He married August 7, 1790, Sally, daughter of Col. Joseph Foster and Lydia Giddings Foster. (See Fosters from Reginald, by Paymaster Joseph Foster, U. S. N. For Giddings, see History of Ipswich, ancestry of Elder Daniel.) Both father and son were prominent ship-masters of the olden time; the son died 1828.

William,[3] the son, had no children by his wife Sally, but had a son William P.[4] Dolliver, born in Gloucester, December 18, 1813, who married Elizabeth Collins of Gloucester. They had Elizabeth Ann[5] Dolliver, born in Gloucester, Aug. 7, 1838, who married Thaddeus Friend of Gloucester, and has several children; they reside in Boston. William C.[5] Dolliver, born Feb. 3, 1841; married Ann Hamilton of Gloucester; no children. John S.[5] Dolliver, twin with Wm. C.; never married. Edwin C.[5] Dolliver, born Sept. 21, 1845; married Bertha Begg of Brookline. They have several children; reside at Chelsea, Mass. Josephine[5] Dolliver, born April 7, 1848; never married.

William P.[4] Dolliver was a merchant and was a man very much respected; a very prominent Odd Fellow and Mason; he was elected to various offices of trust in his native town. He died in Gloucester, 1891, aged 78, greatly lamented; his sons are men of business and well to do.

The death of William, the grandfather of above, is not recorded in Gloucester. The son William died 1828; his wife Sally died 1834. Abigail, or, as she was called, Madam Dolliver, died 1816.

Peter[2] Dolliver, son of Peter and Abigail Sanders Dolliver, born in Gloucester May 3, 1726; died Feb. 5, 1806; married September 24, 1748, Abigail[5] Ingersoll, born April 16, 1727. She was the daughter of Josiah Ingersoll (Josiah,[4] Josiah,[3] George,[2] Richard,[1] the emigrant), and Mary[4] daughter of Samuel Stevens, born 1665, and Mary Ellery, born —— (Samuel[3] Deacon James,[2] William,[1] the shipwright).

Peter[2] and Abigail (Ingersoll) Dolliver had Peter[3] Dolliver, born Sept. 17, 1749; died young. Peter[3] Dolliver, born October 8, 1753; bap[d] 1st church Oct. 14, 1753; married Harriot, daughter of Hon. Thomas Sanders, 3d, and wife Lucy, daughter of Rev. Mr. Smith of Falmouth, Me.

Thomas Sanders was graduated at Harvard and was a very talented man; he died 1774.

Peter[3] and Harriot (Sanders) Dolliver had Peter[4] Dolliver, born in Boston, Nov. 21, 1777; was born blind and died unmarried previous to 1816. Harriot[4] Dolliver, born in Boston, August 6, 1781; died prior to 1816, single. Charles Sanders[4] Dolliver, born in Boston, Sept. 5, 1779; died 1850, single; born blind. Caroline[4] Dolliver, born in Boston, October 22, 1783. Amelia[4] Dolliver born in Boston, Dec. 21, 1784, blind; died 1849, single.

Peter[3] Dolliver commanded a company in Col. Paul Dudley Sargent's Regiment, and this was the first regiment to enter Boston at the evacuation by the British. He served during the whole war, and was one of the original members of the order of Cincinnati. He died in Boston 1816, and was buried in Granary graveyard; his wife died, I think, previous to him. I append his will.

In the name of God Amen. I, Peter Dolliver, of Boston in the County of Suffolk State of Massachusetts, Gentleman, being in good health of body and of sound mind and memory do make this my last Will and Testament. First and principal I commit my soul into the hands of my redeemer and maker and my body to be decently buried at the discretion of my Executors herein named and as for such goods worldly as I am possessed of the same as follows, Imprimis. I will that my just debts and funeral charges be paid as soon after my death as may be. Second. I give and bequeath unto [13] Peter Dolliver [14] Charles Dolliver [15] Harriot Dolliver [16] Caroline Dolliver [17] Amelia Dolliver the whole of my estate at my death in equal divisions I appoint Harriot and Caroline Dolliver sole Executors In the year 1808. Feb. 3. Probated July 1816. Witness John Bray and two others.

Caroline,[4] the only child of Peter[3] Dolliver and Harriot,[4] who was not born blind, married, 1817, Col. Benjamin Huntington, a broker of Boston, also colonel of militia. They had: Amelia Dolliver[5] Huntington, born in Boston, July, 1820; died single, 1879. Charles Sanders[5] Huntington, born Nov., 1821; died 1850; was an East India shipmaster from Salem. Frances S.[5] Huntington, born ——; died 1823. Caroline Elizabeth[5] Huntington, born 1824; married William D. Flint of Salem. They had George Huntington[6] Flint, born Nov. 1858. William Deblois[6] Flint, born Nov., 1862.

Frances Sophia[5] Huntington, born July 7, 1828; married April 23, 1850, William A. Wright of Boston. They had: Charles Huntington[6] Wright, born June 6, 1851. Frank Vernon[6] Wright, born October 3, 1855. Mr. Wright is a lawyer in business at Salem, Mass. I have to thank him for valuable information in regard to the family of Peter Dolliver of Boston.

Peter,[3] after the war of independence, became an officer of customs at Boston where he died. Mrs. Dolliver died previous to her husband. Her sister, Lucy Sanders, married Paul Dudley Sargent. Sarah Sanders married Thomas Augustus Vernon, a merchant at St. Petersburg, Russia. Mary Sanders married Erasmus Babbit, a lawyer of Sturbridge, Mass.; her daughter was the mother of Charlotte Cushman, the actress. Thomas Sanders born March 29, 1759, became an East India merchant of Salem; his wife was Elizabeth Elkins, the authoress. They had Charles Sanders, who bequeathed ten thousand dollars to the city of Gloucester for the cause of temperance. George T. Sanders. Catherine Sanders married Dudley L. Pickman. Mary Elizabeth Sanders married Hon. Leverett Saltonstall. Caroline Sanders married Nathaniel Saltonstall.

MAIRE POINT PAPERS, NO. III.

MAIRE OR MARE POINT, BRUNSWICK, CUMBERLAND CO., MAINE.

THIRD PERIOD 1677–1715.

The history of this period, if we could interview the inhabitants of Maire Point at that time, and could recover all the records relating to that period, would doubtless prove far more interesting, exciting and romantic than the history of any other period. That was the era of Indian warfare, desolated homes, fearful retreats by the settlers, and military expeditions from the garrisons and from the Bay.

The noted military leaders of the day knew Maire Point, as Waldron, Andros, Church, and others, visted Pejepscot.

The outbreak of King Phillip's war, so disastrous to the settlements to the south and west served to awaken the fears of the settlers about Cascoe Bay, and steps were taken by the eastern settlers to guard against Indian aggression. Whether the action of the English served to hasten an inevitable outbreak or not, is a mooted question, but certain it is that once the spirit of war was aroused it swept practically unchecked through the Eastern tribes. In September the buildings of Thomas Purchase, the Pejepscot proprietor, were looted by the Indians and the shedding of Indian blood by a party of English getting in hay, was followed by attacks upon Falmouth, Saco, Blue Point and Scarborough.

The following January several families from Falmouth, Saco and other exposed settlements sought refuge in Salem, and it was probably at that time that the Maire Point settlements were permanently abandoned by the early settlers.

The Indian troubles continued in a desultory manner, but entirely to the disadvantage of the English throughout 1676, and although a treaty was negotiated, a fresh outbreak was expected in the spring, and consequently the General Court ordered that an expedition be sent to the eastward.

Therefore, on the 7th of Feb., 1677, a force of 150 men, English and friendly Indians, embarked at Boston under the command of the noted leaders Majors Waldron and Frost, their particular purpose being to overawe the Indians and obtain the release of English captives.

This party effected a landing, 18 Feb., at Maire Point, "about a league below Maquoit" and a parley was had with a party of Indians lead by the notorious Squando and Simon, who pretended to be for peace and promised to deliver up such captives as they had, in the afternoon.

Nothing further transpired till noon the day following, when a flotilla of fourteen canoes was perceived up the bay pulling for the shore and soon a deserted house was discovered in flames. Major Frost in command of a scouting party unexpectedly intercepted the Indians, who, after the exchange of a few shots, resulting in the killing of some Indians, again came to a parley and claimed that the house was fired by accident, that the captives were too far away to reach the ships the preceding day, and finally that the soldiers had been the aggressors in the attack.

The landing a league below Maquoit may have been opposite Bunganock Rock which is popularly said to be three miles distant from Maquoit.

Nothing further being accomplished at this place, the expedition sailed to the Sagadahock, where a garrison of forty men, under Capt. Sylvanus Davis, was established, and then returned to Boston, arriving March 11th, without the loss of a man.

The garrison under Davis was soon attacked and shortly after withdrawn.

Peace was finally made at Casco, 12 April, 1678, which resulted in the return of many of the settlers to Falmouth, but no record is found of a settlement at Maire Point at this time.

BOOK NOTES.

The Drake Family in England and America, 1360–1895, and the descendants of Thomas Drake of Weymouth, Mass., by Louis Stoughton Drake, Boston, 1896.

Sixteen pages of this valuable genealogy is devoted to the English ancestry of Thomas Drake, and 273 pages to the American family. An account of the family of Sir Francis Drake is appended, together with an interesting account of the attempt by certain American Drakes to obtain a supposed property awaiting claimants.

The Drake family has found in Mr. Drake a painstaking and conscientious historian, whose work, from the long list of subscribers, is evidently appreciated. A deserved tribute is paid to the deceased brother of the author, who had the same tastes as the compiler, and whose work relating to the Connecticut Drakes is to be continued by the compiler of this volume.

The portraits are good and numerous, and the index is as thorough as need be. The book is evidently one of those genealogies destined soon to become scarce.

An Historical Sketch of Bradford, Mass., in the Revolution (including East Bradford, now Groveland). By Louis A. Woodbury, M.D., Groveland, 1895.

This little volume of 112 pages, attracts attention, not only by the interesting manner in which is told the story of Bradford's aid to the patriot cause, but by its completeness, and the very many excellent illustrations.

The names of the town's officers, committee of safety, etc., soldiers, and some account of individuals are printed.

The price is but seventy-five cents.

The Follett-Dewey, Fassett-Safford ancestry of Captain Martin Dewey Follett and his wife Persis Fessett, by Harry Packer Ward, 1896. 8 vo, cloth, pp. 249.

This is an historical genealogical account of two ancestral lines of the compiler, besides giving a history of contemporaneous events, including abstracts from diaries and other interesting data. There are several illustrations, and much of general as well as of special interest. Price, $2.

QUERIES.

51. Lewis. Thomas Lewis of Greenland, N. H., called "Jr.," 1687. Was called yeoman in 1688. His signature appears to two bonds to William Ardell of Boston, merchant, to which is affixed a seal which is perhaps on a chevron between three estoilles an annulet. The witnesses were in one case Ephraim Foulsham, Edward Hulton, and in the other Stephen and John Johnson. Will some one enlighten me regarding the above Thomas Lewis, and his right to use coat armor? L.

52. Blood. Descendants of the Concord and Groton families of Blood or others, whether bearing the name or not, are requested to communicate with Eben Putnam, Salem, Mass., who is compiling a genealogical history of the Blood families in America.

53. Higginson. Eben Putnam, Salem, Mass., is collecting data regarding the Higginson family. He would be pleased to receive information pertaining to those bearing the name or their descendants.

54. Information desired of the ancestry of Abigail Hancock, who married William Middleton of Stonington, Conn., in 1759.

55. What was the ancestry of Arthur Middleton, the signer of the Declaration? From what place did they (the Middletons) come to America?

56. Ancestry of HannahBrown, born 1691, probably in Ipswich, Mass., and married Edward Cogswell.

57. James of Barrington, R. I., or Edward or Edwin of Bristol, R. I., which?

58. Nathaniel Adams, born ——; died ——; married Jan. 23, 1731, Hannah Wheeler.

Nathaniel Adams, born June 8, 1739 (Groton, Ct.); died Ft. Griswold, Sept., 1781; married Jan. 4, 1770, Elizabeth Comstock. Sarah born (Groton, Ct.), Jan. 17, 1773.

59. Ebenezer Briggs was married to Silence (or Silena) Macomber at Shutesbury, Mass., Dec. 10, 1768. He died in 1812, she in 1819. Any information as to the previous family record of Ebenezer Briggs, or Silena Macomber, will be gladly received. E. C. T.

60. Henry Cook, or Cooke, was in Salem in 1638, and married Judith, daughter of George Birdsale, in 1639. What was the ancestry of Henry?

61. Thomas[2] Gage, born 1656 of Rowley, married Sarah, and had Thomas born 1678, William born 1680, and four daughters. What were the names of Sarah the wife, and the four daughters?

Thomas[3] Gage, born 1678 of Rowley, married Mary Smith. What are the names and dates of birth of their children?

Moses[4] Gage, born 1705 of Mendon, married Sarah Nelson. What are the names and dates of birth of their children?

62. George Hatslatt, a Hessian Soldier, married Beulah Martin of Paxton (?) between 1777 and 1782. What is the ancestry of Beulah? C. C. C.

NOTES ON STRATTON, OF SALEM.

By Miss E. W. Leavitt.

Anne Stratton, widow of John Stratton, deceased, sometime of Strotley, County Suffolk, Eng., late of Salem, N.E., to her brother-in-law, Joseph Stratton, mariner, sometime of Harwich, County Essex, Eng., now of James City, Va., who owed a debt, in 1629, to John, son of widow Anne Stratton, and his brother, William Stratton.

William, son of John and Anne Stratton, in 1628, and of Ardlye, County Essex, Eng., and was to have come to Virginia with his uncle, Joseph Stratton; but his uncle sailed away with all of William's goods and left Wiiliam behind.

In 1629 John Stratton, his wife Anne, were of Dedham, County Essex, Eng.

In 1640 there were in Salem the widow, Mrs. Anne Stratton, John, the only living son, then thirty-four years old, and daughter Elizabeth, aged twenty-six years, wife of John Thorndike.

Jan. 19, 1641, Mrs. Anne Stratton, widow, of Salem, Mass., John and Elizabeth Thorndike, Dorothy Stratton, spinster, give power of attorney to Capt. Edward Gibbons, of Boston, Mass., and Richard Stillman, of London, Eng., to receive from John Thurston, of Hockston, County Suffolk, executor of the will of Mrs. Mary Dearhaugh, late of Barringham, widow, County Suffolk, Eng., the mother of Mrs. Anne Stratton and grandmother of John and Elizabeth Thorndike, bequests made in said will. — Lechford's Note Book II., pp. 333, 339, 427.

ENGLISHED.

As hand with hand, as dove unites with dove,
Those link'd in wedlock, should be link'd in love,
Love join'd with labour should compleat the state,
And make that lasting which before was great,
When such fruition to terrestriars given,
Who would not wish for marriage in Heaven?
Or who thus blest, would wish to enter there?
Wedlock's a Heav'n beyond what angels share.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

A Genealogical History of the Descendants of Stephen and Ursula Streeter of Gloucester, Mass., 1642, afterwards of Charlestown, Mass., 1644–1652, with an account of the Streeters of Gondherst, Kent, England. By Milford B. Streeter, Brooklyn, N.Y. Salem, Mass., 1896. 8vo, cloth, pp. xxxvii, 323. $4.

The title is a description of the book itself, but falls short of enumerating all there is within the covers.

For instance, the thirty-seven pages of preliminary matter not only give an account of the Streeters of Gondherst, Kent, but an account of all Streeters in England, of whom records could be found, prior to the Restoration. A pedigree showing the probable ancestry of Stephen Streeter is printed, as also a cut of the arms of one family of Streeters in England. The main portion of the work is the result of the devoted labor of the compiler for many years, and records all families of Streeter, Streater, etc., etc., of whom he could find traces. The index is remarkably thorough, and is the work of Mr. Perly Derby, who is responsible for the arrangement of Mr. Streeter's material.

The type is large, and therefore clear, and the appearance of the book is good. The name of Eben Putnam appears as the publisher, and that portion of the work dealing with the English records is from his pen. A limited edition was printed.

The John Rogers Families in Plymouth and Vicinity, by Jonah H. Drummond. 8vo, pp. 26.

This pamphlet is a reprint from the collections of the Maine Historical Society, and is a welcome contribution to the genealogy of the Rogers families.

Mr. Drummond has set at rest the identity of the early John Rogers of PlymouthCounty.

63. Thurman–Burton. Information is wanted of the ancestry of Asa Thurman, born Rhode Island; and married in Worthington, Mass., about 1792, Sabra Burton, Worthington. Children known of: Asa, married Margaret Van Elten; Phoebe, married Brewster. Had they other children? and who were Sabra Burton's parents? E. A. DeW.

64. General A. W. Greeley, Chief Signal Officer, Washington, D.C., desires information concerning Rev. William Balch, son of Freeborn and Elizabeth (Fairfield) Balch, who was born in Beverly, Sept. 30, 1704. He married Rebecca Stone, only child of Daniel and Hannah (Woodbury) Stone. Who were the parents of Daniel Stone and Hannah Woodbury? Did Rev. William Balch render effective service to the Revolutionary cause by his sermons and addresses?

65. Moulton–White. Howard Moulton of Stafford, Conn., born there 9 June, 1757; married there, 30 Dec., 1779, Mary, daughter of Joseph and Mary White of Stafford. Wanted — ancestry of parents of Mary (White) Moulton.

Genealogical Researches in Old or New England

May be prosecuted with every prospect of success if expert aid is called upon. The undersigned will undertake commissions of a genealogical nature, for which by inclination and training he is fitted, and endeavor to successfully solve problems presented, or to investigate the accuracy of supposed pedigrees. The charges are as moderate as can be justly expected for this character of work, which is nearly always perplexing, and beyond the ability of amateurs. Personal knowledge of English records and acquaintance with reliable English genealogists has enabled satisfaction to be given in many cases where the search was made in England.

BISHOP FAMILIES OF CONNECTICUT.*

BY NATHANIEL HOLMES BISHOP, OF LAKE GEORGE, N.Y.

PART II.

Descendants of Thomas Bishop, merchant, of Ipswich, Mass. (1636–1671), who went from Ipswich to Connecticut:

Thomas Bishop[1] first appears of record, in Ipswich, in 1636; his foreign parentage is unknown. He died there on Feb. 7, 1670/1, aged about fifty-two, leaving a large estate for those times. His will and the inventory of his estate are on file at Salem, Mass.

His wife's name was Margaret, who died about the year 1680. The inventory of her estate, taken March 31, 1681, by her son Samuel, is also filed in Essex County, Mass. A niece, who is mentioned in Thomas Bishop's will as "Cousin Sarah Bishop," resided with him.

Their children were:

Samuel, born at Ipswich, ——, 1644/5; graduate of Harvard College, 1665; died 1687. He married Hester, daughter of William Cogswell, Aug. 10, 1675, to whom was granted, by Governor Sir Edmund Andros, March 2, 1687, the administration of her husband's estate. The inventory was filed Feb. 11, 1688. Widow Hester Bishop married, 2d, Thomas Burnham, Dec. 16, 1689. He was a widower, born in 1646; and was the son of John and Elizabeth Burnham.

John, son of Thomas,[1] of Ipswich, went to Connecticut prior to 1675. Vol. 3, p. 268, of the Records of Wethersfield, Conn., has the following: Novemb^{r} 3^{d} 1680 M^{r} John

* These sketches here printed cover families of the name other than those included in the article which has been running in this publication since September, 1895.

Bishop And Sarah his wife was Maryed by Lieut Sam[ll] Talcott Jan[ry] in the year of our lord 1675

July 29, 1681. Sarah Bishop the Daughter of M[r] John Bishop & of Sarah his wife was borne July 3[d] day in the year of our Lord 1678.

June 6[th] 1679. M[r] John Bishop Deceased octob[r] in the year of our L[d] 1678.

Records of the Probate District of Hartford, Conn.

At a speciall court, held at Hartford Feb[r] 14 1678–(9) Upon the Motion of Sarah the widdow of m[r] John Bishop of Wethersfield deceased this court have granted the s[d] Sarah Bishop Administration upon the estate of the S[d] John Bishop aforesay'd & shee is hereby appoynted to gather in the debts due to the estate & to endeavour to perfect an Inventory of his Estate & to present the same to the court in March next & m[r] Eli Kimberly & m[r] Nath[l] Boreman are desired by the sayd widow to Assist her, &c.

Note. Wethersfield has always formed part of the Hartford Probate District.

The widow went to the Massachusetts colony to dispose of the lands her husband inherited at Ipswich from his father, Thomas Bishop.

Court Records at Salem, Mass.:

Thomas Bishop (son of the late Thomas and brother of the late John), on March 25, 1684, "owned in Court that his brother, John Bishop, left one child and it was a daughter."

Suffolk Co. Probate Office, Boston, Mass., Vol. 9, p. 83. Boston Aug. 23, 1682:

"Said Sarah informeth that part of the Estate left by her second husband, is within this Colony (Mass.), she to Adm[r] on sd. part of the estate."

Suffolk County Probate Office. Ibid., No. 1239.

John Bishop, Weathersfield (Conn.), 1682, August 23, Administratrix's Bond.

Sarah Bishop of Weathersfield in Connecticut Colony, widow, Nathaniel Bishop and Anthony Checkley, mercht. both of Boston in the Massachusetts Colony are holden for the county of Suffolk for 300 pounds current money of New England for estate of John Bishop, deceased, Said Sarah to administer on his estate.

(Signed)
SARAH BISHOP,
NATHANIEL BISHOP.

The landed possessions of Sarah, widow of John Bishop, of record, are as follows — Vol. 3, p. 243, Records of Wethersfield, Conn.:

"January 5th 1686 } land belonging unto Sarah Bishop unto } her heires And Assigns for euer lying in Wethersfield on Connecticott River which she purchased of Mr John Buttolph as it appeareth by her Deeds Dated March the 10: 168$\frac{5}{6}$ Signed & sealed by the said John Buttolph & withnessed by Nathaniell ffoot & Samuel Talcott And Acknowledged before Samll Talcott Asst. march 10: 168$\frac{5}{6}$ one peice being part of a homlott former ly belonging unto Mathias Treatt Deceased containing one acre one Roode And Eleven Rods beit more or less it is bounded on the streate East & land of William Goodrich north & west & land of Dorcas Treat south."

Ibid., Vol. 3, p. 268.

"Wethersfield, May 30th 1688, Lands belonging unto Sarah Bishop & unto her daughter Sarah Bishop & unto their heirs for euer which was granted unto them by the towne by way of Exchange, & layd out by Capt: Samll Talcott: Capt: John Chester & serjt: John Robbins being a committee Cchosen by the said towne to lay out the said land viz;, one peice lying in the bounds of Wethers field in hang dogg swamp & plaine containing twenty acres more or less it is bounded on land of m^r^ Gershom Bulkeley north, northweste & on the Common East South East, & on land not laid out South South West & North North East."

As Sarah was the only child, the line of John Bishop of Wethersfield continued traceable by that surname no longer than 1694.

A native of Wethersfield recently stated that "John Bishop's widow was a resident in said town in 1694, and, as a land-owner, received more land in an allotment then made to such from the common lands comprised within the township." Can any one inform the writer if the daughter Sarah married, and if so who was her husband, and what became of their descendants?

Nathaniel Bishop, who was on the bond with Sarah, widow of John Bishop, was a brother of Henry Bishop, who first appeared at Newport as a citizen in 1638, and was admitted an inhabitant of New Haven in 1644, where James Bishop, the first secretary of the New Haven Colony, also lived. Henry removed to Boston about 1655, and married the widow of Samuel Wilbore, of said town, in 1656.

Nathaniel Bishop was a resident and owner of a homestead and tannery in Ipswich before he moved to Boston, where, on Bishop's lane, now Hawley street, he owned a valuable property. He had a tannery in Boston, and owned the famous tavern "Blue Bell," near the (then) shoreline of what is now Batterymarch street. As no legal proof has yet been found to show that Thomas, Nathaniel, and Job Bishop, of Ipswich, and Edward and Richard, of Salem, and John Bishop, of Newbury (who went to New Jersey and became a member of Governor Carteret's council), were brothers, or anyway related (though some genealogists have asserted a close relationship between them), it is interesting to know that Nathaniel and Henry were brothers.

In the inventory made of Henry Bishop's estate, taken at Boston, Nov. 6, 1665, "Nath. Bishop deposed that this paper containing a true inventory of the estate of the late Henry Bishop his brother," etc. I have seen the original paper in the Suffolk Registry of Wills, in Boston.

Thomas, son of Thomas[1] Bishop, and brother of the John of Wethersfield, was born at Ipswich in 1646, and was engaged in mercantile ventures, owning and commanding his vessel while trading in the West Indies. He possessed considerable real estate in the Massachusetts colony. His history is still being investigated, the facts of which will, at some future day, be published. Some of the published genealogical notes, relating to several persons by the name of Thomas Bishop, natives of New England, are not trustworthy.

Job, son of Thomas[1] Bishop, was born at Ipswich, Mass., about 1657. Court testimony gives that he "was about 20 in 1677." His wife, Johanna, a sister of John Tuttle, represented to the court, on March 31, 1691, that "the said Job went to sea, and had been gone three years." Accordingly, she was granted the administration of his estate. In the Essex County, Mass., Registry will be found, in Vol. 5, between l. 45 and 69, dated 1648, that Job Bishop sells Stephen Cross 14 acres on south side, bounded N. and S. by land of Mr. John Rogers, deceased, W. by river, S. by Town Common, "which my father Thomas bought of Rich. Saltonstall Esqr."

As there has been much ambiguity in relation to statements made about "Job Bishop, of Ipswich," where two Jobs lived at the same time, it is important to know that a Job Bishop appeared in Ipswich soon after Thomas and Nathaniel Bishop settled there. It was he who married Rev. George Phillips' daughter, of Watertown, Mass., and, after her death, married Mary, by whom he had three daughters, Dinah, Sarah, and Hannah. These daughters have been given, by genealogists, to Job, the son of Thomas above mentioned, regarding whose children, if he had any, we have no information. Job, the son of Thomas, commanded a vessel trading to the West Indies, of which he was probably owner, as his father owned interests in four vessels at the time of his death.

One of our oldest genealogists writes me that "Job Bishop died at sea, and the surviving members of his family (the three daughters of the Job[1] he gives to this Job) removed to Connecticut," but he could not offer any evidence to prove that any member of Job's family went to Connecticut. I hope that some of our Essex County genealogists will succeed in finding what became of the three daughters of the original settler, Job[1] Bishop, and will trace their lines of descent. As to Job, Capt. Job Bishop, the son of Thomas,[1] of Ipswich, it will be a fortunate investigation that results in showing if he had any children, and if they migrated with Samuel Bishop's children, their cousins, to Connecticut. In order to assist such an inquiry I will state that Job[1] Bishop, the settler's, three daughters were:

"Dinah, borne the 19 of June, 1657.
Sarah, borne May 19, 1659.
Hannah, borne December 24, 1662" (?) — leaf torn off.
Their mother's name was Mary ——.

Job[1] Bishop married his first wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Rev. George Phillips, "one that he brought from England" in 1648. "She died 27 Feb. 1652." I find in the Boston Registrars' Office, in the book of deaths, from 1630 to 1800:

'Elizabeth, the daughter of Job and Elizabeth Bishop, of Ipswich — dyed 27. 12. 51" (1651). It will be seen by the date of Mrs. Job[1] Bishop's death that this daughter may have died about the same time as her mother. I have not been able to find records of the births of other children of Job[1] and Elizabeth Bishop.

Nathaniel, the youngest son of Thomas[1] Bishop, died a minor, at Ipswich, May 10, 1673, about two years after his father's decease.

QUERY.

Malcom. The late Howard Malcom, D.D., formerly a pastor of Federal Street Baptist Church, of Boston, Mass., was the son of John James Malcom and Deborah Howard, married in Philadelphia in 1798.

John James Malcom was the son of John Malcom and Hannah Roberts, married in Philadelphia in 1772.

Hannah Roberts was the daughter of Hugh Roberts, one of Wm. Penn's Councillors.

Who was the father of John Malcom? There is a family tradition that he was a sea captain during the Revolutionary War and was lost at sea. But this has never been traced satisfactorily.

Granville Malcom, M.D.,
Haverford, Penn.

NOTES.

The delayed issues of the Essex Institute Historical Collections, comprising Nos. 13–24 of Vol. XXXI. for the whole year 1895, and Nos. 1–6 of Vol. XXXII. for the first half of 1896, have been issued.

Mr. Rantoul, the newly elected president of the Society, contributes a memoir of Rev. Edmund B. Willson (1820–1895), his predecessor in office, which is accompanied by a portrait, a remarkably good likeness of Mr. Willson. Mr. Willson was a man who practised all the virtues, and was endeared not only to his parishioners, but all who came in contact with him, and was thoroughly appreciated in Salem.

A description of the famous country house of Hon. William Browne, and an article upon the English ancestry of "Rear Admiral" Thomas Graves, of Charlestown, by Eben Putnam, together with an account of the Pillsburys, of Leek, Staffordshire, England, by Miss E. A. Getchell and Eben Putnam, with the index, complete Volume XXXI.

The particularly noteworthy paper in the succeeding volume is that entitled "Some Claims of Salem on the Notice of the Country." This is the address of Mr. Rantoul before a Historical Pilgrimage from Philadelphia, and deals chiefly with the events of Gage's residence in Salem when that place was the temporary capital of the colony, and Leslie's raid; Mr. Rantoul presents some new matter, especially in the notes appended concerning that event. He thinks, with reason, the force which marched to Salem from Marblehead comprised 246 men.

Another paper, dealing with the same period, but not showing the same exhaustive study as the former, and covering a much wider range, is Mr. Streeter's "Salem before the Revolution." Mr. Streeter is especially hard upon the Loyalists, and must find excuses for such of them as he has cause to praise, for their being "unhappily involved with the Tories."

The valuable Topsfield Baptisms are continued by Mr. Dow.

It is strange, with the thirty-two volumes of most valuable contributions to Essex county and colonial history which the Institute has published, that the Collections are not more generously supported. A membership of nearly 1,000 in the Society would seem to indicate that the cause of local history and genealogy was anything but dormant in Essex county, yet it is unlikely that the receipts from subscriptions to the Collections exceed a third of their cost. The genealogical public are remiss in allowing the Collections to lag, on account of the loss their publication entails on the Society. Subscription, $3 per annum.

Putnam Leaflets, Vol. I., June, 1895–June, 1896, pp. 96. A series of Leaflets designed to record current events of interest to members of the Putnam and Putman families, as well as to put into print original sources of information from which the material was gathered for the "History of the Putnam Family in England and America," and such additions and corrections as have come to hand since the publication of that work. The publication is continued.

"First Steps in a Pedigree and Family Record," by Spencer A. Woolward, Vicar of Totternhoe, Dunstable, London. Elliot Stock, 1890. This is a few leaves bound together, suitably printed, designed for the purpose of collecting information. A beginner following the rule laid down by Mr. Woolward will not have occasion for regret.

Genealogical Researches in Old or New England

May be prosecuted with every prospect of success if expert aid is called upon. The undersigned will undertake commissions of a genealogical nature, for which by inclination and training he is fitted, and endeavor to successfully solve problems presented, or to investigate the accuracy of supposed pedigrees. The charges are as moderate as can be justly expected for this character of work, which is nearly always perplexing, and beyond the ability of amateurs. Personal knowledge of English records and acquaintance with reliable English genealogists has enabled satisfaction to be given in many cases where the search was made in England.

BISHOP FAMILIES OF CONNECTICUT.

THE MIGRATION TO CONNECTICUT OF MEMBERS OF SAMUEL BISHOP'S FAMILY.

Samuel Bishop, son of Thomas Bishop, of Ipswich, died in Ipswich, Mass., in 1687. His widow, Hester (Cogswell) Bishop, under commission from Gov. Sir Edmund Andros, became the administratrix of her husband's estate. The Probate Records of Essex county, Mass., Vol. 8, fol. 74, show that "Mrs. Esther Burnham, alias Bishop, was chosen Adm'x" and was "Thro' alteration of Gov't not capable of p^{r}fecting the same. Therefore Renouncing y^{e} same, Desiring it may be conferred upon Samuel Bishopp, eldest son of s^{d} Sam'l." The date of this is 17 Jan., 1703/4, at which time the youngest son of said Samuel, 20 Dec., 1703, chose the eldest son as his guardian, to which office the said eldest son was appointed.

The children of Samuel Bishop and Hester (Cogswell) Bishop were:

Margaret, born May 17, 1676. She married Ichabod Griggs, born at Roxbury, Mass., Sept. 27, 1695, bp. Oct. 10, 1675, died ——, 1718.

Of their nine children, the youngest was Ichabod, who lived in Newent parish, then, in 1741, a part of Norwich, Conn.; since 1786 a part and now the whole of the township of Lisbon, Conn., in which place was baptized his oldest child, Joshua, 8 Jan., 1743. About the time of his second child's birth (Ichabod), he removed to Tolland, Conn., in which he held official positions, civil and ecclesiastical, and there died, May 9, 1795. Leveret Griggs, D.D., who died a few years ago in Bristol, Conn., was a descendant from Ichabod Griggs and his wife Margaret Bishop.

At Norwich, Conn., "the semi-county seat," two offices were carefully searched for the original entries relating to Samuel and John Bishop, brothers, and sons of Samuel, son of Thomas,[1] of Ipswich, Mass. The books of record in the town clerk's office are models, and have copious indices.

Samuel Bishop, son of Samuel,[1] was born at Ipswich, Mass., Feb. 6, 1678/9, died at ——, Conn., Nov 17, 1760, aged 81 years. He married, as per Norwich records, Sarah Forbes, Jan. 2, 1705/6. She died March 13, 1759, aged 73 years.

According to the Norwich Records their children were:

Thomas,	born Nov. 14, 1706:	died June — 1724.
Samuel,	" Feb. 2, 1708/9
Sarah,	" March 7, 1710:	died 1710.

Samuel Bishop, son of Samuel of Ipswich, Mass., went, about the time of his majority, with his youngest brother, John, whose legal guardian he was, into the north-eastern part of Norwich, Conn., to lands adjacent to its northern bounds.

The tract had, in part, been the common land of the Connecticut Colony, and as such assigned for occupation to a remnant of the Indian people who had been numerous there. When that tract, called at first the "Crotch of the Rivers" (where the Quinebaug and the Shetucket join and form the Thames), was, near 1700, opened to purchasers, a section of it was bought by several gentlemen of Ipswich, Mass., of whom one was Samuel Bishop. In 1723 the first church in that part of Norwich was formed. The first parish established there in 1718, and called Newent then, retains that as still its legal name. That community of voters was incorporated as the town of Lisbon in 1786.

As Mrs. Frances M. Caulkins' History of Norwich, Conn., published in 1866, is now difficult to obtain, I will give, from its pages, all that relates to this migration of Ipswich Bishops:

p. 258. "Samuel and John Bishop were early settlers in this district. They were probably brothers, and sons, or grandsons, of Thomas Bishop of Ipswich. Samuel married, in 1706, Sarah Forbes. John, 1718, married Mary Bingham. Samuel was admitted 1702, and John in 1710."

p. 257. "Capt. Fitch sold this grant to certain purchasers from Ipswich, Mass., viz.: Joseph Safford, Richard Smith, Mesbach Farley, Matthew Perkins, and Samuel Bishop."

p. 439. "The church was constituted and Rev. Daniel Kirtland ordained its minister, Dec. 10, 1723. The original members were: Daniel Kirtland, the pastor, Samuel Lathrop and Joseph Perkins, who were chosen deacons, John Bishop, Jeremiah Tracy (son of Thomas Tracy of Preston) Isaac Laurence, and Isaac Laurence, jr., the church resting on seven pillars, a favorite number in that day."

p. 344. "At the rebuilding of the Norwich bridge, 1728, as men were gathered on it, the main timber broke, and people were thrown into the river. Among the most considerably wounded was John Bishop."

p. 260. "In 1725, the proprietors of the common and undivided land put an end to all controversy by giving a quit-claim deed to Capt. Jabez Perkins, Lieut. Samuel Bishop, Mr. Joseph Perkins, and Mr. John Safford, of all the land in the crotch of the rivers, etc. . . .

"In 1745 the descendants of Owaneco and other principal Mohegans, for the sum of £137, executed a quit-claim deed of the Indian reservation in favor of the English claimants. This instrument, which extinguished the last aboriginal claim to land in the nine-mile-square, was in substance as follows: Ann, alias Cutoih, Betty Aucun, widow, Wedemow, daughter of Mahomet, deceased, Ann, otherwise young Ben's wife, all of whom are descendants of Owaneco, late sachem of Mohegan, and the said young Ben, or Ben Uncas, jr., and Daniel Pauganeek, all of Mohegan, for the consideration of 137 pounds in bills of credit — to Capt. Samuel Bishop, Joseph Perkins, Jacob Perkins, John Safford, Joseph Safford, and Solomon Safford, to all of them in proportion as they now possess — do now relinquish all right and title to the tract of 300 acres more or less in Newent, in the crotch of the rivers Quinebaug and Showtucket, called the Indian Land, abutting southeasterly on the Quinebaug — April 9, 1745."

About nine years after Samuel Bishop had become a citizen of the Connecticut Colony, the following conveyance of a portion of his father's estate became of record in the Essex County, Mass., office, — Vol. 29, p. 259, Oct. 24, 1711: "We, Samuel and John Bishop, both of Norwich, New London Co., Conn., and Aaron Burnham, Ips., and wife Esther, and Ichabod Griggs and wife Margaret of Roxbury all heirs unto Samuel Bishop, late of Ipswich, de'cd, for £16, deed to John Pingra of s[d] Ipswich all our right in comon land in Ipswich which our father Samuel Bishop of Ipswich purchased of Richard Saltonstall Esq., Sept. 23, 1680."

The children of Samuel and Sarah (Forbes) Bishop will, I hope, be followed on their lines of descent by Connecticut genealogists. I can furnish but little in relation to any of them. The son, Samuel, born Feb. 2, 1708/9, was clerk of the parish of Newent in or before 1734, and continuously for many years. He married, 1st, Oct. 6, 1731, Abigail, only child of Daniel Corning, who, born in Beverly, Mass., died in Newent, Conn., May 28, 1746, aged fifty-seven years. Abigail (Corning) Bishop died March 12, 1747, aged thirty-two years. Samuel Bishop married, 2d, Abigail ——, who died April 4, 1788, aged seventy-seven years. Capt. Samuel Bishop died in Hanover, then Lisbon, now Sprague, Conn., Feb. 13, 1790. Issue by each wife survived him:

Hester, daughter of Samuel Bishop of Ipswich, Mass., was born May 21, 1681, at Ipswich. The date of her decease may be found in the Newent Church Records. In 1724 she was resident in Newent, Conn., and then was admitted to membership in the church there; was specified as the wife of Aaron Burnham, born at Ipswich, Mass., 12 Sept., 1676, son of Thomas Burnham, jr. The said Aaron was admitted later to the same membership. He was a mariner. After her husband's death she removed from Newent and joined her kindred.

Thomas, son of Samuel, of Ipswich, Mass., was born there Sept. 21, 1683. Vital statistics of him have not been obtained by me as yet. The paternal homestead may have become his distinctive possession. Any notes relating to his line will be acceptable to the writer, and full credit will be given to persons furnishing them.

John, the youngest son of Samuel Bishop, of Ipswich, was born Sept. 20, 1685. He died Nov. 14, 1755. It was he who came, under the legal guardianship of his elder brother, Samuel, from their native town of Ipswich, Mass., to Newent, Conn., and who was admitted a citizen there eight years later than the admission of his brother to the same settlement. Had he remained in Ipswich we would not, in all probability, as a people, have enjoyed the works of that gifted descendant of his, Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, the distinguished American poet, for it was John Bishop's daughter, Temperance Bishop, who married Dr. Holmes's ancestor, "Captain and Doctor David Holmes," of the Newent, Conn., Records.

John Bishop is noted as "a prosperous farmer, a worthy citizen, and a well-reputed Christian man." He bought his farm of Mesbrack Farley, who was also an Ipswich man. He married July 30, 1718, Mary, daughter of Thomas and H—— (Backus) Bingham, born Feb. 26, 1697–8; died Oct. 17, 1724. Miss Bingham was probably of Windham, Conn. He married, 2d, Aug. 22, 1727, Temperance Lathrop, who survived him and married Capt. James Grant, Dec. 14, 1763, and again married Sept. 16, 1773, Elkanah Hewitt.

The Norwich Records give the following entries of children born to John Bishop and his first wife H—— (Backus) Bingham:

Mary, born June 25, 1719.
Deborah, born May 22, 1722.
John, born Aug. 4 and died Sept. 14, 1724.

Children by second wife, Temperance (Lathrop) Bishop:

John, born Oct. 13, 1731.
Temperance, born Oct. 15, 1733.
Joseph, born Aug. 28, 1735.

An abstract of the will of John Bishop will supply the names of such of his children and their married names as are not found of record elsewhere.

Norwich Wills, Vol. 1, p. 373.

John Bishop's will, drawn Nov. 14, 1754: mentions John, Joseph, Benjamin, Samuel, Mary Allen, Deborah Cushman, Temperance, Esther, Zerriah and wife Temperance: farm lately bought of Joseph Woodcock at Newent, parish of Norwich.

In an early copy of the Records, in the clerk's office at Norwich, it is given that John Bishop died in 1724, and married a second time in 1727.

The clerk can show the visitor, however, the tattered original book of record, when it will be found that in copying from it into the new book a clerical error in the old one was not noted, which will lead one astray. It is the omission of the son John's birth, not entered in the original copy, which confuses the genealogist.

In this place opportunity is offered to correct a grave error made by Dr. Savage, in his Genealogical Dictionary, which has caused a large amount of costly and useless searching among several families on both sides of the Atlantic. It relates to this John Bishop and Dr. John Bishop of Bradford and Medford, Mass., two individuals who were made one man by Dr. Savage, who could not be made to change his opinion, against which a descendant of Dr. Bishop personally protested during the lifetime of Dr. Savage. The author of the Genealogical Dictionary had not the shadow of any evidence to support his theory. Wyman supported it; and many other genealogists, even to this day, follow Dr. Savage in his errors, to the great loss of their clients and the placing of obstacles to truthful inquiries. I have shown that John, the son of Samuel Bishop, of Ipswich, migrated to Connecticut and died there. Dr. John Bishop, who is called by Savage the son of Samuel of Ipswich, — erroneously, — is claimed by his descendants to have been connected with the Bishops of Sussex County, England, and was the first of his own line who came to New England.

He appears in Bradford (once a part of the Ipswich Colony), Mass., about 1718. Bradford Church Records give:

Sarah, w. of Dr. John Bishop, adm. Feb. 1719–20.
Sarah, of John & Sarah Bishop, born ——, 1720.
John, " " " " " bap. March 18, 1721–22.

In April, 1723, Dr. John Bishop moved his family to Medford, and died there about 1739, leaving widow Sarah and children Sarah and John. His descendants remained in Medford until about the year 1868. Mrs. John Bishop was Sarah Bond, from a well-known Essex County family. John Williams, the early settler, and wife Jane had a son John, who married Rebecca Coleby, daughter of Anthony Coleby and wife Susanna. This John was the father of Sarah Williams, who was the wife of Joseph Bond and mother of Sarah Bond (of Haverhill, Mass.), the wife of Dr. John Bishop. Joseph Bond, the husband of Sarah Williams and father of Sarah Bond (wife of Dr. John Bishop), was the son of John Bond and Hester Blakeley. The date of this daughter's marriage to Dr. Bishop has not yet been found. — See N. E. Hist. Geneal. Register for April, 1894, p. 213.

The children of John Bishop and Temperance (Lathrop) Bishop, his wife, were:

John, born Oct. 13, 1731; bap. Oct. 17, 1731; married Ruth ——, who was born Oct. 15, 1735; admitted to Newent Church, 1759.

Temperance, who, on the Newent Records, is termed Temperance Bishop, jr., born Oct. 15, 1733.

She was married Nov. 12, 1761, to David Holmes, widower, of Woodstock, Conn. On the Newent Records he is given as Capt. & Doct. David Holmes. His military title preceded his medical one, and pertained to him as having served in the contest that resulted in England's acquisition of Canada.

From the said David and Temperance (Bishop) Holmes, his wife, came the parentage of Rev. Abiel Holmes, D.D., LL.D., and, among other descendants, in the third degree, Oliver Wendell Holmes, M.D., LL.D., the poet, with a brother and a sister to them, the wife of Rev. and Hon. Charles W. Upham, M.C., late of Salem, Mass.

A descendant of John Holmes, of Woodstock, Conn., sent me the following during 1893:

"As to Temperance (Bishop) Holmes, it is recorded that 'Her exalted character and noble bearing impressed all who knew her.' As the Town Records make her Mrs. Temperance Bishop (prior to her marriage with Capt. Holmes), it is contended by some that Bishop was not her maiden surname; but I find that anciently, in New England, the honored and generally much-desired title of Mrs. was frequently bestowed upon unmarried females* who had attained to the age of thirty years, or thereabouts. Her mother was Temperance Lathrop, and both the Christian and surname have been perpetuated in the family.

"Dr. David Holmes had a son named Lathrop, and my father had a sister named Temperance. Dr. David Holmes's first wife was Mehitable Mayo, by whom he had eight children, my grandmother being the youngest.

"He also had eight children by Temperance Bishop, his second wife. The second son by her was the Rev. Abiel Holmes, the father of Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes."

Abiel Holmes, born at Woodstock, Conn., 24 Dec., 1763, died at Cambridge, Mass., 4 June, 1837. He married Mary Stiles, daughter of Pres. Stiles of Yale College.

Criticisms on the foregoing genealogical notes, or any contributions for their enrichment, will be thankfully received by the author, and due credit will be given for the same in future publications. It is the author's desire to discover the foreign parentage of the early Bishop families of New England and New Jersey. To attain that end he has employed several genealogists in Great Britain to search the government record offices as well as church registers. Any information now in the possession of descendants of these early Bishop families which will throw light upon their foreign ancestry, if sent to the author, Lake George, Warren County, N. Y., may assist in accomplishing his object.

PATRONYM AND ORIGIN OF THE GOLDTHWAITE FAMILY.

BY R. G. CARTER, U.S. ARMY.

The principal throughfare in Pateley Bridge, called High street, is a long narrow avenue of shops and houses of mixed age and design that climbs the hill eastwards from the bridge. Though none of the present houses are of special antiquity, the street itself is undoubtedly very old, reminding one of the curious narrow streets of Normandy (whence many of the early inhabitants of this neighborhood emigrated), and which restricted thoroughfares were formed at a time when the traffic of foot and horse passengers was alone thought of. The street is, doubtless, laid upon a British or Roman highway. No fewer than three separate paved ways have been met with at different depths while excavating in the neighborhood of the bridge, the original Celt-Roman ford across the river being, like that at Hampsthwaite, concealed by the river gravel of many centuries. The town possesses several good inns and other houses of accommodation, besides a variety of shops and all the ordinary requirements of visitors intending a long or short stay. There is a good Wesleyan chapel, built in 1776; it contains the old canopied pulpit from which the celebrated founder of the sect, the Rev. John Wesley, preached on several occasions. He not only visited Pateley Bridge many times, but was also at Braisty Pasture, Hardcastle Garth, and North Portune Houses, Brimham. One of the ministers of the old chapel, it is interesting to note, was the Rev. Joseph Kipling, whose grandson is the well-known popular novelist, Mr. Rudyard Kipling, who is no stranger to Nidderdale, and is author of a local story entitled "On Greenhow Hill." The ancient church or chapel-of-ease to St. Wilfrid's Ripon, erected apparently after the completion of that noble pile towards the end of the thirteenth century, is now a deserted but interesting ruin, situated upon an eminence about a half-mile east of the town. It was dedicated to the Blessed Virgin, and not to St. Cuthbert, as is commonly asserted. From manuscripts in the record office it is found that a chantry was founded by royal license in this chapel in 1320 by the celebrated cleric and statesman, John de Markenfield, chancellor of the exchequer, and Richard de Lynton, chaplain; mass was to be celebrated daily in the chapel for the souls of the said John and his kinsman, William de Hamelton, who likewise was one of the most distinguished men of his time.

The church, as stated, is now in ruins, having fallen to decay at the beginning of this century. The main portion of the old building is of the time of Edward I., while the tower was only built at the end of the seventeenth century, during the long (fifty-eight years) incumbency of the Rev. Thomas Furniss. His initials and those of the parish church-wardens appear above the tower arch. In the burial-yard adjoining the church is an old octagonal shaft, which has a dial upon it, and which bears the same initials, T. F., along with the following others: F. L., I. B., A. C., R. B., and the date 1714. Likewise in the church-yard are some tombstones of interest. Here, in truth, repose the ashes of many who in generations past *have bred the after-glow of an honorable and enduring fame, or who have transmitted it to live after them in future ages.

In the church-yard is an ancient carved stone, 19 inches by 14½ inches and 8 inches thick. The figure upon it is curvilinear, conforming with the rectangular shape of the stone, and having in the centre a rude kind of cross, the whole of the carving being raised slightly above the surface of the stone, in the style of the thirteenth—fourteenth century, or coeval probably with the foundation of the church. The view from the church-yard is of great extent, as well as one of the finest and most picturesque in Nidderdale.

* The italics are the writer's.

The new church of St. Cuthbert was built in 1826. In the tower is a fifteenth-century bell brought from the old church, and inscribed, Sancte Petre Ora Pro Nobis; the last letter of Nobis appearing reversed. Between each word of the inscription is a small shield bearing the sacred monogram I.H.S., and above this are two crowns, a very uncommon device. The registers of the church of Pateley, which begin with the year 1552, contain many interesting references to the customs, fees, and appurtenances of the church and parish at different times. The present incumbent is Rev. Alex. Scott.

Ages before the monks obtained their mining rights in this neighborhood the lead mines had been worked by the inhabitants of the district. On Jan. 23, 1734–5, two large pigs of lead, each weighing upwards of eleven stone, were turned up on Hayshaw Moor at Greenhow, three miles to the west of Pateley. Both of them bore raised letters, as follows: Imp Caes Domino Avg Cos VII. (or, unabbreviated, Imperatore Cæsare Domitiano Augusto Consule Septimum), while upon the other side was the word Brig, thus denoting that the lead had been smelted in the country of the Brigantes in the year A.D. 87. One of these pigs of lead, though now more than eighteen hundred years old, is almost as good and perfect as the day it was fashioned. It is preserved at Ripley Castle. The other is in the British Museum. At Ripon, some ten miles east, was discovered a handsome gold torque, a heavy bronze sword, a vase of Roman workmanship, and portions of a tessellated pavement. In addition to these interesting proofs of the Roman occupation of the district must be mentioned the discovery in Nidderdale, in 1868, of a valuable collection of Roman coins. These coins were accidentally discovered by two youths while playing in the cavern known as Tom Taylor's Chamber, in the picturesque How Stean gorge, near the head of Nidderdale, which hoard had probably been placed there by the original owners on their leaving the island, now more than fourteen centuries ago. It is recorded in the "Saxon Chronicle" that A.D. 418 the Romans collected all the hoards of gold that were in Britain and "they hid in strange places, so that no man might find them, and some they carried away to Gaul." Twenty-five silver pieces and four brass ones are in the possession of Mr. Metcalfe, of Castlestead, upon whose estate they were found; while ten pieces (being duplicates) are held by Mr. Yorke, of Bewerley Hall. These coins have all been deciphered and identified, and the whole collection, after being photographed, have been reproduced and published, with explanatory notes, in that valuable work, "Nidderland and the Garden of the Nidd, a Yorkshire Rhineland," by Harry Speight, from which the foregoing has been taken, as well as what follows.

Pateley Bridge is undoubtedly the Kenaresforde, als. Neresford, of "Domesday;" derived from the Anglo-Saxon, neer, lower, cognate with the Teutonic and Scandinavian, neder, nieder, from which the dale, perhaps, also takes its name. The terminal, ford, moreover, proclaims it to have been situate on or near a Roman highway, which circumstance accords with many discoveries which have been advanced in support of the Roman occupation of the place. The given compound has evidently the meaning of the lower ford, in contradistinction to one higher up the dale, probably at Wath, where the river was formerly much wider than it is now, and the name still indicates that a ford existed there. That Pateley Bridge was situate upon a Roman thoroughfare is highly probable, although this is not shown, like many others of this era in Yorkshire, upon the "Itinerary" of Antonine. But the necessity of some good passage-route for the expedition of the Roman soldiery upon the subjugation of the warlike hordes of native Celts inhabiting this remote mountainous and wooded region can hardly be questioned. It is held, therefore, that Pateley Bridge lay along an important route through this highland country, which, starting from the great camp at Overborough, near Kirkby Lonsdale, took an almost direct course eastward, crossing Ribblesdale at Stainforth, over Malham moor by the street and Ebor gate, passing Grassington, and thence over Greenhow hill to the ford at Pateley Bridge, still holding eastward up the High street to Ripon, and joining the great Watling street three miles east of the city; evidence of the old Roman presence having been found along the whole line of this march.

Considering that the Romans with the conquered Britons worked the lead mines at Greenhow, a very high and exposed locality, we may reasonably infer that in winter, at any rate, they would seek lodgment at a lower and more sheltered situation; Pateley Bridge being the most suitable and accessible place for winter habitation, we find again further evidence here of a Roman or early British settlement. The position and extent of the principal encampment have not as yet been accurately defined, but there is no doubt that the site of Castlestead formed part of the original camp or fortress. A strong guard-house, or mansione, would be stationed at the ford, as customary all the year round, but of the position of this nothing is known. When the mansion at Castlestead was built, thirty years ago, the mound on which it stands was found to be so shaped and designed as to leave no doubt of its having been fashioned by artificial means as a place of habitation, although it bore the appearance at first sight of being a large tumulus. But no traces of burial were observed, nor was any foundation or evidence of stone erections discovered; but stone would not be necessary in a district where timber was abundant. The top of the mound was slightly hollowed, and enclosed on all sides by the great agger, while the river, which is now spanned by an ornamental bridge about one hundred feet in length, formed a natural defence on the north and east sides; the land sides being probably protected with felled trees, etc.

The discovery of Roman coins of such an early date in the dale (none of those found being later than about A.D. 130), coupled with the two pigs of lead, bearing the impress of the Roman equivalent to A.D. 87, seem to point to the probability of this part of the country having been invaded and conquered by the army of Julius Agricola shortly after his celebrated landing in Britain about A.D. 75. The Emperor Hadrian, who died A.D. 139, and who spent some years in England, is known to have visited this part of Yorkshire, and it is not unlikely that he travelled from the great Roman city of Isurium (Aldborough) through Ripon and Pateley (visiting the Greenhow lead mines) to several western stations.* The old Britons of this isolated region forgetting in time the civilizing arts and influences of their departed conquerors, Pateley Bridge, as upper Nidderdale generally, must have lapsed into a state of semi-barbarism, and for centuries after the Roman evacuation can have been but the shadow and echo of its former self. We have to pass on to Norman times before we get any positive evidence of the locality again. Then in 1086 it is stated in "Domesday" that Gospatric, the Saxon owner, who was permitted to retain the estate, had but half a carucate of land in Neresford to be taxed, "and it is waste." The same record, however, mentions that there were one and one-half carucates in Chenaresford (Pateley Bridge) and two carucates in Wiveshall (Wilsill) belonging to the archbishop of York, an old property comprised in the township now known as Bishopside, which was granted to the see of York by the Saxon king Athelstan, first proclaimed king of England A.D. 939–40, and afterwards held by the archbishops of York of the king in chief.

* On the south wall of the mansion at Castlestead there is carved a life-size head in relief of the Emperor Hadrian, with a suitable inscription above an elegant canopied seat.

During the civil wars the men of Nidderdale were up in arms either on the side of the King or Parliament, several of the leaders being Nidderdale squires. Upon the restoration of peace, a good deal of house renovation and rebuilding took place, and nearly all the houses at Pateley Bridge appear to have been built after that time. That there was at least one hostelry in the town in the period of the wars appears from an indictment in 1648, wherein it is stated that one Robert Inman ("Bold Robin," of Bouthwaite) and his son, Michael Inman, then a youth of eighteen years, were "returning from Skipton fair through the village of Pateley Briggs." Here they encountered, drinking at an ale-house, a surgeon named Webster and a number of soldiers belonging to the Protector's army, who were conveying medicaments and ammunition to Barnard castle, for the forces there, to repel the Duke of Hamilton's invasion. "Bold Robin" was challenged to guide the party over the moors to Kirkby Malzeard, but refused to do so; the report before the council states that the said Robert Inman (being a man of great size and muscular power) did dismount and openly fight and assault the soldiers. At any rate, the mare on which "Bold Robin" rode was "annexed" and used in the service of the Parliament; whereupon arose these actions at law, and in the end the surgeon, Webster, was indemnified. The depositions before the barons were published, from which it appears that Capt. Anthony Beckwith, a son-in-law of Robert Inman, raised a troop (in which Owine, the son of the said Robert Inman, was a lieutenant) in the Parliament's service. It is also stated that this troop was stationed at Pateley Bridge, that Robert Inman had "received many woundes for that his affecion to the said Parliament; that his house had been spoyled; his cattle stolen, and that he had lost to the value of £1,000, owing to the war; further, that he had been cast into prison at Rippon by Lieutenant-Colonel Norton, in that he had refused to take the oath of allegiance with the Cavaliers."

From the Inmans referred to, or their branches, descended the Liverpool family of Inmans, the well-known transatlantic steamship owners. At least six of the seven principal conspirators concerned in the Gunpowder Plot came from Nidderdale or had family connections there, and the baptismal entry of Guy Fawkes is still shown in the parish register of the church of St. Michael-le-Belfry in York, under date April 16, 1570.

Another remarkable and interesting fact connected with this region, once the home of the Goldthwaites, is that Ramsgill, only five miles from Pateley Bridge, was the birthplace of Eugene Aram, the character of Bulwer's, so full of pathetic interest wherever the story has been read the world over. He was born here in 1704, and married at Middlemoor, in 1731, Anna, daughter of Christopher Spence, of Loft house. The old thatched house in which the Arams lived was pulled down many years ago. In a cottage adjoining the site of the old dwelling, now occupied by the village constable, is a curious carving of a human head, which is believed to be the work of Aram, and to have come originally from his house. One of Aram's daughters, Elizabeth, married a Yorke, and died at North Allerton, Jan. 30, 1805. She was quite a celebrity, and was sought out by people from far and wide. Eugene Aram moved to Knaresborough in 1734, and lived in a small cottage up the "White Horse" yard; and here, beneath this humble straw-thatched roof, the "English Erasmus" had his little school. Here his children were born.*

While in prison, shortly before his execution for the murder of Daniel Clark, in 1759, Aram, at the request of Rev. Thos. Collins, then vicar of Knaresborough, wrote a very clear and concise account of his family antecedents, in which he traces the family back to the "lords of the town of Eyram or Ayram, now called Eryholme, on the southern bank of the Tee, and in the Bishopric of Durham."

* In the Knaresborough church registers are the following entries relating to Aram: Baptisms — Jan. 28, 1734, Anne, daughter of Eugenius Aram; Feb. 22, 1737, Henry, son of Eugenius Aram; Nov. 11, 1739, Elizabeth, daughter of —— Aram; Oct. 8, 1737, Anne, daughter of Eugenius Aram; Jan. 8, 1761, Henry, son of widow Aram; 1774, Ann Aram, Knaresborough. The last mentioned, Aram's widow, died in a house in Blucher street, then called Hitton lane. A son of Aram's, Joseph, settled at Green Hammerton as a saddler, was married and had a family.

At Gowthwaite Hall, near Pateley Bridge, was born in 1730 the celebrated professor, William Craven, D.D., scholar and philanthropist, of whom Whittaker, the historian, remarks that "to the attainments of a profound scholar he added the humility of a saint, and to the manners of a gentleman the simplicity of a child." Dr. Craven's first tutor was the notorious Eugene Aram, who taught the boy in his father's house at Gowthwaite. He was appointed professor of Arabic at Cambridge in 1770, and elected master of his college in 1789. Another pupil of Aram's at Gowthwaite Hall was George Homer, who was at one time deputy paymaster of the forces at Guadaloupe.

In the vicinity of Knaresborough, the Plumpton toll-bar is noteworthy for having been kept some time last century by Daniel Dodson, originally a flax-dresser, and afterwards a school-master of Knaresborough. Daniel Dodson's daughter married Thomas Greenhalgh, whose grandson, the late Hon. Frederic T. Greenhalgh (Greenhalge), is the well-remembered governor of Massachusetts. He was a native of Clitheroe, in Lancashire, where his grandfather had settled early in the century, and where his father, William Greenhalgh, an engraver by trade, was born in 1810.

Beyond Gowthwaite are two deep and romantically wooded ravines excavated by once powerful torrents. They are called Colthouse gill and Riding gill. Close by is a field long known as Wave park. The farm buildings at Colthouse are built on morainic drifts, and the gill-beck flows down the north side of them.

Formerly this was a grange belonging to Byland Abbey, and appears to have got its name from a grant made by Roger de Mowbray to that monastery of pasturage here for eighty mares and their foals. A place of similar appellation is situated at Ribblehead, under Ingleborough, where the monks of Furness had a park or enclosure for the rearing of mountain ponies, bred for various service in their wild and rugged country.

THE SCOTTS OF SPRINGFIELD AND PALMER, MASS.

BY O. P. ALLEN.

The first glimpse one obtains of John Scott, the progenitor of the name in Springfield and Palmer, is in the Springfield record of his marriage in 1659. After giving the subject much study and research, the writer has arrived at the conclusion that possibly John and William Scott, who both arrived in Springfield and Hadley, respectively, at about the same time, were brothers, and were emigrants from England. Future research may disprove this conclusion, but thus far no trace of their parentage has been found in this country. One evidence of the consanguinity of these two men is the similarity of the names of their children.

John Scott m., July 26, 1659, Sarah Bliss, dau. of Thomas and Ann Bliss. Her father, an emigrant, settled in Hartford about 1639; the date of his death is not known, but his widow, a capable woman, removed with her children to Springfield, where she d. Aug. 28, 1684.

John Scott bought a small tract of land in 1664 on the Agawam river. The records say that in 1664 "The Jury also presented Capt. Pynchon and Jno. Scott for not maynteyning their fenses on the West side of ye River, a breach of the law of this Jurisdiction." He was one of the soldiers who took part in the celebrated "Falls Fight," in 1676, and he was a citizen of Springfield in 1678, when he took the oath of allegiance. He d. January, 1690, leaving an estate valued at £224 18s., which was apportioned to his widow and children. His widow m., 1690, Samuel Terry, of Springfield, and d. Sept. 27, 1705.

V William, b. Jan. 16, 1720.
VI Amy, b. Nov. 3, 1725; d. at the age of 18 years.

8 John[3] Scott, William,[2] John,[1] b. March 9, 1708–9; unm.; d. at Hadley while visiting there, Oct. 3, 1737. An inventory of his property enumerates a lot of 100 acres in the Elbows (Palmer) at £400; a negro man £120; a tract of 120 acres of land in Brimfield £70; and other property amounting to £679. He also had an assignment of land in Bernardston, on account of his grandfather John Scott's service in the "Falls Fight" in 1676. From the above it will be seen he was one of the slave-owners of Palmer. His farm was located east of Mount Dumplin.

9 Elizabeth[3] Scott, William,[2] John,[1] b. June 20, 1714; m., 1734, Stewart Southgate. She d. at Leicester,

Sept. 19, 1748. Mr. Southgate was the son of Richard, the emigrant from Coombs, Suffolk Co., Eng., who settled in Leicester 1715. Stewart was educated at Harvard. He came to Palmer in 1732, and was chosen proprietor's clerk and surveyor of the district, in which capacity he served till 1740. He returned to Leicester in 1742, where he resided till his death. He there became a staunch Quaker and defender of the doctrine. Children:

I Elizabeth, b. Jan. 26, 1735; d. Jan. 28, 1737.
II John, b. Jan. 15, 1737.

Lieutenant Scott was well educated and well read in law; appreciating his fitness for the position, the town petitioned the governor to appoint him a justice of the peace, which was granted. He was a very active man during the Revolutionary period, and was appointed the agent of Hampden Co. to collect and forward material for the army. He was clerk and treasurer of the Elbow plantation from 1746 to 1750; treasurer of Palmer, 1752 to 1754; selectman, 1761 to 1775; representative, 1777. At the time of his death he owned land in Palmer, Greenwich, Wilbraham, Ludlow, and West Springfield. The largest part of his estate was devised to his wife Abigail. Lieutenant Scott was one of the Palmer slave-owners. He had several born in his household, Peter and Nancy being their parents. He gave each of his children a slave, the boy Cæsar going to John Scott, of Middletown. Rose went to William. She was a smart, good-looking girl, and a good cook. She was given her freedom before her master's death, after which she lived for twenty years in the family of Asa Bates. The boy Hannibal went to Dr. Calvin Scott, and the girl Tibbie to Margaret. Children of Lieut. William and Abigail Scott:

I Margaret } d. Nov. 11, 1748.
11 II Aseneth } Triplets, b. Dec. 11, 1746.

She was a fifth cousin of the writer. He m. (2), Nov. 27, 1792, Mrs. Susan Newcomb, of Somes, Conn. He d. in Somes, Conn., Aug. 18, 1795.

William[4] Scott graduated at Harvard in 1771 and received a grand ovation on his return home; he then studied law some time in the office of lawyer Pynchon, of Springfield. On the completion of his studies he was appointed justice of the peace in Palmer in 1774. His father having conducted a tavern at the old Scott homestead for many years, built for his son near by, in 1774, one of the finest houses in town for a tavern. Here Mr. Scott held courts of justice and conducted an extensive business out of town. His wife was a woman of remarkable ability, and looked after the interests of the tavern and farm in his absence. It was at this house that Washington stopped for breakfast on the morning of Oct. 22, 1789, on his visit to New England. After the death of his first wife, Mr. Scott removed to Troy, N.Y. Children:

BOOK NOTICES.

THE REGISTER BOOK OF THE LANDS AND HOUSES IN THE "NEW TOWNE" AND THE TOWN OF CAMBRIDGE, WITH THE RECORDS OF THE PROPRIETORS OF THE COMMON LANDS, BEING THE RECORDS GENERALLY CALLED "THE PROPRIETORS' RECORDS." Printed by order of the City Council under the direction of the City Clerk. Cambridge, 1896. Ro. 8vo, pp. 409.

This sumptuously printed book, issued from the University Press and distributed under an order of the Common Council, is due in a great measure to the efforts of the late Walter W. Pike, ably seconded by Mayor Bancroft, and successfully brought to a completion by the present appreciative City Clerk, Edward J. Brandon.

Of the series of Proprietors' Records there are three volumes of originals, besides a copy not entirely accurate made in 1841; of these volumes, I. is practically for the period between 1634 and 1741, with a few later entries; II., 1751–1773; III., 1784–1829. The original pagination is adhered to, although it is evident that certain leaves are misplaced in the bound original, a circumstance to be borne in mind by genealogists. Moreover, the dates heading the early pages and descriptions of lots are not those of the day such lots were granted or purchased, but the days when the landowners brought in their lands to be registered.

Other volumes of the series are to follow, and when the city shall have printed her first volume of town proceedings, and vital statistics, both of which begin with the year 1632, a mine of original evidences will be easily accessible to students.

The Early Records of the Town of Lunenburg, Mass., including that Part which is now Fitchburg, 1719–1764. Compiled by Walter A. Davis, City Clerk. Fitchburg, 1896. 8vo, pp. 384.

In 1895 the Fitchburg Historical Society petitioned the city government to print and so preserve the early records of Fitchburg and those of Lunenburg prior to the setting-off of Fitchburg (1764), and this volume is the result or rather a part of the work ordered by a vote of the city government. The Proprietors' Records are to appear as a separate volume. When the territory of Lunenburg was first established as a town it was called Turkey Hill, and extended westward from Groton. This was in 1719, and the original survey and allotment is printed followed by the town record to the close of 1764. The latter part of the volume gives the family records from 1727 to 1764, and are supplemented by a good index. Lunenburg, established in 1728, is the south part of Turkey Hill.

It is to be hoped now Fitchburg has done this much that the older town will complete its printed record to recent times, keeping pace with the avowed and praiseworthy purpose of Fitchburg to bring her records down to date.

The book is well printed by the Sentinel Company, a home concern.

THE EARLY RECORDS OF THE TOWN OF PROVIDENCE, VOLUME X., BEING THE BOOK CALLED TOWN COUNCIL No. 1, 1692 to 1714, etc. Providence, 1896. Sq. 8vo, pp. 158.

The Town Council in Providence considered little else than probate affairs and the regulation of taverns, etc. Therefore this volume is really a probate-act book for the period, and should be examined in hand with Vols. VI. and VII. of the series, which contain the first book of wills for the town. The editors and commission, Messrs. Rogers, Carpenter, and Field, serve without compensation, and aside from these printed records have done a great and valuable work in preserving and arranging great files of ancient public papers, which are now indexed and accessible.

SUPPLEMENT TO HOW TO WRITE THE HISTORY OF A FAMILY, by W. P. W. Phillimore. London, 1896. 12mo, pp. 218 to 425. (Pagination continued from the second edition.)

This is a "guide for the genealogist," particularly for him who would seek information concerning English records, although extremely useful to beginners. Although this little work is styled a "supplement," it is really complete in itself, and shows considerable acquaintance with American genealogy and methods, as well as deep knowledge of home archives.

THE THOMAS BOOK, GIVING THE GENEALOGIES OF SIR RHYS AP THOMAS, K.G., THE THOMAS FAMILY DESCENDED FROM HIM, AND OF SOME ALLIED FAMILIES, by Lawrence Buckley Thomas, D.D. N.Y., 1896. Ro. 8vo, pp. 627. Illustrated.

Dr. Thomas has not, we think, shown that Sir Rhys was the ancestor of any of the Thomas families of America, although nothing is more likely than that he may have descendants here, but he has given us a very good genealogical history of an ancient and interesting Welsh family, and has made accessible to those interested a great many clearly drawn-up pedigrees, both relating to the Thomas family and to allied families, which are especially numerous and well treated. No fabulous claim is made, but each reader is left to judge from the evidences presented whether or no he can agree with the author.

The illustrations are very nice and interesting. The book will appeal strongly to families originating south of New England. The appearance of the book is excellent, and one only regrets that a more exhaustive index was not attempted.

Soldiers in King Philip's War, being a critical Account of that War with a concise History of the Indian Wars of New England from 1620–1677 (also), official lists of the soldiers of Massachusetts Colony serving in King Philip's war, and sketches of the principal officers, etc., etc., also, lists of the Narraganset Grantees, with an appendix, by Geo. M. Bodge. Leominster, 1896. Ro. 8vo, pp. 502.

This is the greatly desired second and much improved and enlarged edition of Rev. Mr. Bodge's great work, which first appeared in serial form in the New England Historical Genealogical Register. It is practically an official work, for the original papers in the State archives are withdrawn from vulgar inspection, being sadly worn, and there is no official of the State so able or competent to master the details as Mr. Bodge has done. No library or lover of genealogy can afford to be without this book; to students it is invaluable. The new matter is a careful compilation of facts and names which formerly had to be sought in various books and places, and are properly inserted, being necessary to supplement the records of soldiers and service.

THE JESUIT RELATIONS AND ALLIED DOCUMENTS, TRAVELS AND EXPLORATIONS OF THE JESUIT MISSIONARIES IN NEW FRANCE, 1610–1791. The original French, Latin, and Italian texts, with English translations and notes; illustrated by charts, maps, and fac-similes; edited by Reuben Gold Thwaites. Vols. I. and II. Acadia. Burrows Bros. Co., Cleveland, 1896.

The two volumes so far issued of this series show that the promises of the publishers in their prospectus have been more than kept. Under the able editorial supervision of Mr. Thwaites this edition, as complete as may be made, of the Relations will take a foremost place among American classics. Students have been able to procure copies of some of the Relations and access to others in the original text by seeking out the libraries so fortunate as to possess copies, but except one or two well-known editions of selected Relations the bulk of these valuable papers have been practically inaccessible to those who need them most.

The English translation is literal in the sense of true to the meaning of the original without losing the power of expression in good English, thus making the Relations interesting reading for those who may not be especially interested in the doings and sufferings of the Jesuit Fathers and pioneers of New France and covering that whole territory now partly in Canada and partly in the United States. The students of New England history, as well as those of the history of New York, of the Middle West, and Mississippi valley, must seek for information in these reports written by the men in the field to their superior.

The Relations begin with Lescarbot's and Bertrand's papers of 1610, and ten documents are printed in these two volumes extending to 1614.

As a contemporaneous expression of opinions upon certain enterprises, of collections of data, scientific, especially anthropological, and by men qualified to write of what they saw, the value of these papers has long been realized;

now, through something more than a mere speculative business enterprise, a well-known Western publishing house is about to place all this material in the hands of any one who may care to investigate the early settlement and civilization of North America. At the end of each volume appear the valuable annotations of the editor: biographical, bibliographical, historic, scientific. Truly, we of the present day are fortunate.

Circulars of information regarding the scope of the work, cost, etc., will be supplied upon application to the Burrows Bros. Co., Cleveland, O.

GOVERNOR EDWARD WINSLOW; HIS PART AND PLACE IN PLYMOUTH COLONY, by Rev. W. C. Winslow. Paper, pp. 10. Reprinted from New York Genealogical and Biographical Record.

This paper of Dr. Winslow's is a brief résumé of the chief events in Winslow's life and of his services to Plymouth Colony — not that such a tribute is needed to establish the fame of the Governor, for his name will forever live in history. The rewriting of the history of the Pilgrims which is now going on, the demolition of the former ideas as to the prominence of the Pilgrim polity, leave standing out more prominently than ever the characters of such men as Winslow. He was one of the three or four of the first or subsequent companies who could claim gentle blood. He, together with Brewster and Bradford and the true Pilgrim contingent on the "Mayflower," made it possible for the working out of the plans of the religious portion; and inculcated a spirit which enabled the small and weak colony to survive until strengthened and sustained by the Puritan migration from the Bay.

THE CHATFIELD FAMILY, principally from records in the Naugatuck Valley, Conn. Compiled by Wm. C. Sharpe. Seymour, Conn., 1896. Paper, pp. 32.

The Chatfields descend from George and Thomas, who with a brother Francis settled early in Connecticut.

Mr. Sharpe has published many papers of local historical and genealogical interest and value, and this pamphlet is another worthy genealogy.

THE GENEALOGY OF THOMAS RUGGLES OF ROXBURY, 1637; OF THOMAS RUGGLES OF POMFRET, CONN., AND RUTLAND, VT.; OF ALITHEAL SMITH OF HAMPTON; OF THE DESCENDANTS IN PART OF SAMUEL LADD OF HAVERHILL. By F. L. Bailey, 1896. Paper, pp. 44.

This is a well-printed and well-arranged family ancestral record, and much information is given concerning the families of Preston, Corliss, Griffin, Haines, etc., and shows the great pains of the compiler.

The author does not show the paternal ancestry of Thomas Ruggles but in order that a mistake in the "Chute Genealogies," * lately published, may be corrected, we here give the line:

Thomas Ruggles, of Nazing and Roxbury, was the son of Thomas, of Sudbury in Suffolk and of Nazing in Essex, whose father, Nicholas, of Sudbury, was a son of Thomas Ruggles, of Sudbury, elder brother of William Ruggles, and whose will was made 21 June, 1547. From William Ruggles above mentioned descended Thomas of Hartest (son), and Thomas of Lavenham, Suffolk (grandson), the latter of whom married Margaret Whatlock and was not the father of Thomas of Roxbury, as stated by Mr. Chute. (See the "Ruggles Lineage," privately printed for Henry S. Ruggles, of Wakefield, Mass.)

ESSEX COUNTY DIALECT, by Helen Mansfield, reprinted from the Bulletin of the Essex Institute. The writer seeks to show the Teutonic origin of many words and names in Essex County, and quotes a large number of examples taken from the early records of derivations of names, changes in spelling and pronunciation, etc. It is an almost unworked field, and has been approached by Miss Mansfield in the proper manner and spirit. The paper should be read especially by beginners in genealogy.

THE ESSEX ANTIQUARIAN, January, 1897, No. 1, Vol. I. An illustrated monthly magazine devoted to biography, genealogy, history, and antiquities of Essex County, Mass., edited by Sidney Perley and Geo. Frs. Dow.

Every attempt to establish and maintain a county genealogical journal should be encouraged, and we trust the projectors of this, which succeeds the Essex County Historical and Genealogical Register,* will have the success they deserve. There is a great wealth of material, and the long list of promised contributions awakens great anticipations.

"THE IRISH IN AMERICA" is the title of a reprint from the columns of the "New York Sun" of a letter by J. D. O'Connell, of Washington, in reply to President Eliot. As usual it is a generalization of the claims based upon the fact that a man born in Ireland is Irish; or, born in America, American. That is not to be disputed; but the emigrants from Ireland prior to 1800 were, from what we know of them, and particularly those of earlier date, nearer the original stock of Scotch and English who had been pouring into Ireland for two hundred years and more, and were undoubtedly more nearly allied to Scotch and English people than the Irish emigrants of later years. They were a fine people, and more readily fall into a Scotch or English classification than Irish. Scotch-Irish is a term which perhaps originated among the inhabitants of Ireland who adopted the Scotch Presbyterian religion, and when confined to its use in America is a very good term, as it describes a certain class of people, as "Yankee" describes a certain class of people. One would not call a German or Irishman born in New England of foreign-born parents a "Yankee." He might so term himself. Why is it that most of the advocates of the claims of an Irish foundation and origin of the people of this great country are from the class that is not usually embraced by the term Scotch-Irish?

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Although PUTNAM'S MONTHLY HISTORICAL MAGAZINE has reached its seventh year, counting from its first appearance as the Salem Press Historical and Genealogical Record, the number of subscribers remains small — too small to provide any profit after the payment of the printer's bill. The Magazine was not published with any expectation of profit, and there would be no disappointment on that score if subscribers would but remember to meet their dues promptly; but as high a proportion as fifty per cent. wait several months before remitting, and there is usually quite a number who fail to pay their dues until one, two, or even three years in arrears. The Magazine needs the money, and our friends should remember that fact. Every subscriber receiving this number is requested to remit promptly for the year 1897, and for such sum as he may be in arrears.

It has been suggested that those who appreciate the Magazine and would like to see it thrive, form a class of special subscribers or patrons, contributing $5 or $10 toward the expenses yearly. As there is no society or group "backing" the Magazine, such a scheme would be eminently proper; but the same results will be obtained, and in a way to do more good, if those who have sufficient interest in the publication of early New England Records and early American Genealogy will subscribe for one or more duplicate copies to be sent to small libraries in their vicinity, or to friends interested in genealogical pursuits.

A remarkably interesting series of early records have been prepared for the coming year, and it is hoped that the volume for 1897 will appeal to even a wider constituency than former volumes.

Subscribers are requested to send their subscriptions for the coming year to EBEN PUTNAM, Publisher, Box 5, Danvers P.O., Mass.
